RED HOT IRON BAR ENCIRCLES WORKER'S LEG

Fiery Serpent Coils Itself Around Limb of Joe Clanisky in Mill.

HIS FIRST DAY'S WORK

Inexperienced, He Failed to Protect Himself With His Pincers.

RESCUED BY COMRADES

They Untwist Metal Clamp Burning Through His Flesh to Bone.

Half an hour after Joe Clanisky went to work at a strange, perilous job at the Republic Iron and Steel Works, East St. Louis, Thursday, he was attacked by a fiery serpent which clutched him in its deadly grip.

In vain he fought the monster with his hands until he was rescued by his fellow workmen.

He is at St. Mary's Hospital, where it is said that it will be necessary to amputate his leg.

Clanisky, just hired, and known to his foreman only as "No. 616," entered the rolling room at the foundry at 7 a. m., ready to go to work.

He had never been in such a place before. Everything was strange to him.

In front of him was a big machine, much like a great printing press. Back of that was a furnace, at whose door stood a man bared to the waist.

The man was pulling white hot ingots one after the other from the furnace. Others took them from him and put them on the machine that looked like a printing press.

The foreman came to "No. 616" and put a long pair of tongs in his hands, telling him that his duty would be to catch one of the long steel rods as it came from the roller.

Bewildered by Danger.

A gong sounded and the white hot ingots dropped into the hopper. The big rollers began to turn.

Clanisky was one of a row of men who stood in front.

Suddenly, from a multitude of holes on the face of the rolling machine, darted points of fire. The red hot rods made from the ingots were coming out.

They were so hot that they were pliable and would sink to the floor of their own weight unless they caught them with their tongs and pulled them out straight.

Clanisky was to catch one of them. But which one? Nobody had told him that. Besides the tongs were heavy and hard to handle. "No. 616" was confused.

He saw one of the rods, a snake of living fire, leaping toward him.

Desperately he raised the tongs and tried to catch it, but he missed.

On came the serpent, writhing now as its length became greater. Suddenly the end dropped to the floor and slid along.

Clanisky's only thought now was to get out of the way, but it was too late. Before he could jump to one side the red bar had struck his leg. The force of the rollers was still behind and the metal was soft and pliant. The rod wrapped like a grapevine around his leg, burning away the clothing and burying its fiery surface to the bone.

Grasps Glowing Ingot.

In his agony Clanisky grabbed the rod with his hands and tried to pull it away.

The hot metal sank through his palms like a warm knife in butter.

Screaming with agony, Clanisky was about to sink to the floor when his fellows came to his aid. Two men caught the end of the rod in their tongs and ran around "No. 616" in a circle until his leg was freed.

He was unconscious when they put him in an ambulance and hurried him to the hospital.

"TROOPS COULD HAVE AVERTED MASSACRE."

ST. PETERSBURG, June 21.—The Parliamentary Commission sent to Bialystok to report on the recent massacre of Jews there, has returned to St. Petersburg and possibly will present its report at today's session of the House. Parliament will be asked to insist upon the immediate prosecution of the subordinate police and military officers who are found guilty of complicity in the massacre. The commissioners declare that the attacks on the Jews could have been stopped at any stage of the rioting by the energetic intervention of the police and troops.

A regiment of infantry and one of the Dragoons, the regular garrison at Bialystok, were in the city when the rioting started, and they, the commissioners say, were amply sufficient to restore order, as proven by the fact that the minute the troops ordered the bands of roughs to disperse they did so.

MILD WEATHER IS THE PROMISE

It Will Be Fair With Westerly Winds.

June started in to save its reputation Thursday. The cold storage weather which had prevailed for several days was put back in the ice box and the day promised to be at least underdone, if not rare.

Close observers detected several degrees of warmth in the sun's rays and suburbanites discarded their ear muffs. Elbow gloves were worn at half mast and the peek-a-boo waist was back—and front.

The forecast: "Fair and mild Thursday night and Friday; westerly winds."

In the last 24 hours there were severe windstorms on Lake Superior and rains in the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys and the Lake region. Temperatures are generally higher on the North Pacific Coast and in the Eastern States.

ENTOMBED MEN CLIMB TO TOP BY AIR SHAFT

Seventy-Five Colorado Miners Caught in Smoke-Filled Underground Workings.

SURFACE FIRE IS CAUSE

All Avenues of Escape Were Believed to Have Been Cut Off.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

LAFAYETTE, Colo., June 21.—Seventy-five miners employed in the Industrial mine property at Superior had a narrow escape from suffocation this morning, when fire destroyed the shaft house, hoisting apparatus and tipple at the mine, filling the underground workings with smoke.

An alarm was given as soon as the flames were discovered and the men escaped through the airshaft. Several were overcome, but none were injured.

It was at first reported here that the flames had cut off all avenues of escape and that all the miners would perish. The damage will reach $10,000.

LOCK CANAL IS ORDER OF SENATE

Debate on Panama Canal Ends in Victory for Those Who Want Quick Action.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Congress has adopted the lock type for the Panama Canal. The vote of the Senate today finally approved the type.

This action ends the dispute between the advocates of the sea level and the lock type.

The Senate lost little time today in beginning its consideration of the sea-level Panama CVanal bill, wishing to take a final vote before adjourning for the day. The first speech on the subject was made by Senator Cullom in opposition to the sea-level bill on the ground both of expense and impracticability. He contended that the President had authority under the Spooner act to construct a lock canal.

FINED FOR LOITERING.

Henry Creveling and Morris Dooley were each fined $10 in the City Hall Police Court Thursday on charges of loitering. The men were arrested Sunday night by the squad of officers, led by Sergt. Driscoll, which raided the Suburban Club at 2216 Chestnut street.

The men were stationed a short distance from the club door, and, according to the evidence given, Creveling would go to the door and press a button whenever he saw anybody approaching the place.

Creveling said that he was employed by the proprietor of the club to see that no person entered who did not have a card or was accompanied by some person holding a card, who vouched for him.

Under Pile of Scrap Iron.

George Guian, 1611 South Tenth street, was bruised and scratched while working on a scrap iron pile of the American Car and Foundry Co. when a section of the pile slipped and caused him to fall down the side of the heap. He was taken to the City Hospital.

SENATE PASSES ST. LOUIS FREE BRIDGE BILL

House Measure Was Amended by Committee Which Recommended Passage.

GRANTS EMINENT DOMAIN

Bartholdt Expects to Secure the Concurrence of the House This Afternoon.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Senate passed the St. Louis free bridge bill at 12:10 o'clock this afternoon.

The House bill was reported to the Senate by the Committee on Commerce this morning with a recommendation that it be amended to grant the right of eminent domain in Missouri and Illinois to the city of St. Louis for the purpose of locating the bridge and necessary approaches and terminals and that the bill so amended be passed.

The bill was called up by Senator Stone at noon and was passed, with the eminent domain amendment, in 10 minutes.

On account of the "right of eminent domain" amendment the bill will have to be sent to the House for concurrence.

This will be done this afternoon and Representative Bartholdt will attempt to have the matter disposed of as soon as it is sent over.

Bartholdt was in the Senate when the bill passed and rushed over to Senator Stone's seat and congratulated him.

The "Eminent Domain" amendment to the free bridge bill is as follows:

That for the purpose of carrying into effect the objects of this act, the City of St. Louis may receive, purchase and also acquire by lawful appropriation and condemnation in the states of Illinois and Missouri, upon making proper compensation, to e ascertained according to the laws of the State within which the same is located, real and personal property and rights of property and every use of the same necessary and proper for the construction, maintenance and operation of said bridge and approaches, consistent with the laws of the United States and said states respectively.

On account of the pure food discussion the House may not reach the free bridge bill this afternoon.

NOT DRUNK IF HE FINDS WAY HOME

MAN ADMITS DRINKING

Former Bartender Says John Carman, Defendant, Was Intoxicated.

Distinctions were finely drawn in Judge Douglas' court Thursday relative to the extent that John R. Carman has been in the habit of "getting under the influence."

Mrs. Ida H. Carman, whose suit for divorce against him was on trial, had testified when it was up a few days ago that John was his own best customer when he owned a saloon at Theresa avenue and Walnut street and that he came home intoxicated with great regularity. Others had testified to the same effect.

Thursday Mrs. Mary B. Hendershot, proprietress of a saloon on Laclede avenue, was handicapped in giving her testimony by the allowance she insisted upon making for differences of opinion relative to inebriety.

In spite of being cautioned to just tell what she saw, she insisted on saying that in her opinion Carman was drunk every day. She added that she did not know that he was. It was only her opinion.

Judge Douglas asked her how she arrived at that opinion and she said it was "just his talk," and she laughed real roguishly. Pressed further, she said she smelled his breath.

"Did you get close enough to him every day to smell his breath?" asked Judge Douglas. Mrs. Hendershot said she was that close only six or seven times.

Former Bartender's View.

Henry J. Weekman, who used to tend bar for Carman, said that in his opinion Carman was drunk all the time.

Albert Theis said he had seen Carman "feelin' good" eight or nine times, and had heard him "talk foolish," but had never seen him "staggerin'."

He was a salesman of some sort and he was asked if he went to Carman's saloon to make sales. He said no, and Judge Douglas suggested that it was, perhaps, to make purchases. Albert said it was even so.

Harry Knapke, barkeeper at the Madison Hotel, said Carman was never drunk, because he "never had more than I had."

"How much did you have?" asked Judge Douglas.

"Same as him. We could both get along."

"Your idea is that as long as a man is able to find his way home he is not drunk, is it?" asked the Judge.

"That's it."

Carman himself admitted that he took a very little every day, but denied that he was ever drunk to the extent of doing things he would not otherwise have done.

Relative to his wife's allegation that he had smashed a clock and a basketful of glassware, he said: "I did slap the clock off of the wall, and maybe it did fall on the ediahes."

The provocation for this, according to Mrs. Carman, was that she did not say "Good morning" to him when he came home.

Judge Douglas took the case under advisement.

Mrs. W. C. Arnold, Once an Actress, Acts as She Tells How She Shot Frank L. Phelps, Her Husband's Friend, When He Mentioned the Compact.

VOWED LOVE AND WANTED HER TO LEAVE HUSBAND

First Report Was That Phelps Had Committed Suicide and Mrs. Arnold Confessed Only After Her Husband and a Friend Had Joined Her in Denials.

Acting her part in the tragedy as she told the story, Mrs. Pettie Arnold, a former actress, described to Chief of Detectives Desmond at noon Thursday how she killed Frank L. Phelps at her home, 806 Market street, shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

She snatched from Desmond's desk the pistol with which she had snuffed out Phelps' life, leaned back in her chair, leveled it calmly at the Chief's head and snapped the trigger. In this manner, she said, she had slain the man who had vowed his love for her and insisted on her fulfilling a pact made between them that they would end their lives together.

A few minutes later she confessed to killing her brother, George Reeves, seven years ago, on Penrose street, St. Louis, when he objected to her living with Arnold. She was tried for that offense and acquitted on a plea of self-defense.

By gesture, facial expression and voice she depicted the fatal encounter with Phelps, who, she admits, confessed to a burning, overwhelming passion for her and had urged her for months to desert her husband, W. C. Arnold, and flee with him.

She admitted writing a letter, signed with Phelps' name, bidding farewell to the world and assigning as his reason for ending his life his consuming love for her. She said she had written it two weeks ago, at Phelps' dictation, just to humor him, for he was sick and despondent, but she never thought he intended attempting to force her to fulfill the suicide agreement into which she had entered through compassion for the suffering man.

Mrs. Arnold said there had been a struggle in the little bed chamber occupied by Phelps, and in this connection the police are puzzled, for the dead man when found lay on his back, the bedding was not disturbed and there were no indications of a fight in the room.

Her husband was taken into the Chief's office and told what Mrs. Arnold had said. The man's face blanched and he almost collapsed.

"I can't believe it, I can't believe it," he cried, as they led him away.

The woman told the story calmly and, apparently, completely, but Chief Desmond is not satisfied and says he will investigate several theories he has evolved and which he believes will develop startling phases in the case. Her confession follows:

"I am the common-law wife of W. C. Arnold, having lived with him 11 years. I had known Frank L. Phelps for something over two years, and for the past year he had lived at my house. He had nothing and we took him out of charity. We fed and clothed him and gave him a place to sleep, the back room in the rear of our kitchen.

"A few months ago he confessed to me that he loved me and tried to get me to desert my husband and elope with him, but I refused to do it. He was in bad health then and I felt sorry for him.

"He seemed worried and despondent and several times threatened to kill himself. He said he wanted me to die with him, and to humor him I agreed to end my life when he did. He got me to write a number of letters, telling of our intention to commit suicide together, but I tore up all of them except one he had me write two weeks ago.

"I was sitting at the table in the dining room one night when he came in and said: 'Now, write what I tell you.' Then he dictated the letter I gave up yesterday in which he said we were to die together, that he loved me and was going to die for me.

"He was awfully despondent after that and was sick Wednesday. My husband, Mrs. Langdon and myself were in the parlor listening to the phonograph until 6 o'clock. I put in a new record and then went into the kitchen to see how supper was getting along.

"As I stepped to a cupboard, where Phelps could see me from his room, he beckoned to me to come to him, and I went in. I stepped up to the bed, and, as I did so, he drew a revolver and said, 'Now We'll both die together.'

"He snapped the trigger in my face, but the revolver didn't go off and I grabbed his hand and we struggled for possession of the gun. Finally I got it. I stepped back from the bed a few steps, took aim at his head and fired.

"Then I threw the revolver on the bed beside him and ran into the other room, crying 'Frank has shot himself.'

"When I shot him he was lying on his back with his left side exposed toward me.

When the police arrived at the house they found Phelps dead on his bed and Mrs. Arnold, her husband and Mrs. Langdon in the room. All were in great excitemen and said that Phelps had killed himself.

When Sergt. Hoffman asked her later if Phelps had left anything, she recalled the note she had written, at his dictation, two weeks ago and produced it. She was so wrought up over the tragedy that she denied having indited it.

Letter Given to Police.

This is the letter Mrs. Arnold gave to the police:

"St. Louis, May 19, 1906.

"To the World: I am going to bid my darling good-by. I can not stand this life any longer. I have tried so hard to keep my love for you quiet on account of your husband, but it has come to where I can't stand it any longer. You have been so good and kind to me, how could I help loving you? I told my friend that I would have to die for I could not stay here and see you with your husband. Of course, you don't know that. I want the world to know that I died for the love of another man's wife.

"Fool that I am. I know I can't have her here, so I will try my best to take her with me. I want to die in her arms. I know she will let me. Then I will die happy. If I can't take her with me I know am a fool, for she loves her husband only, and all I want is to die in my love's arms. O, God, help me. My love for this woman is more than I can bear. I want her to pay $12 that I owe. She will know what it is for and she must have everything belonging to me, and nobody else but her. Mrs. W. C. Arnold, 806 Market street, second floor. This will be my last day with her. God forgive me for this act, but I must do it. FRANK L. PHELPS.

"P. S.—I love this woman because she is so good to me, for I have always found her a perfect lady. As soon as I die I want my baby to have

AMMONIA TANK BURSTS; FUMES FELL FIREMEN

Explosion at Polar Wave Ice Manufactory Causes a $50,000 Fire.

ROOF BLOWN HIGH IN AIR

Chief of Night Crew Shuts Off Pipes and Prevents Second Report.

HUNDREDS WATCH BLAZE

Work in Relays Made Necessary by Pungent Odor of Chemical.

An immense tank of ammonia exploded in the condensing room of the Polar Wave Ice Co. at Duncan and Newstead avenues early Thursday, igniting the fume-laden atmosphere of the apartment and causing a loss, of $50,000.

Employes of the concern fought the blaze desperately, but were compelled to retreat by the overpowering odor of escaping ammonia. The firemen stood on an ice storage house to the east, from which they poured streams of water on the flames. The fire was extinguished by 6:30 o'clock, an hour and a half after it began.

Prompt Work Saves Plant.

The explosion tore a huge gap in a corner of the roof, blowing it 15 feet into the air. It fell back, aflame, and in an instant the entire covering of the room was burning. Shortly after it tumbled in with a crash.

John Morissey, chief of the night crew, with a squad of men, prevented the destruction of the whole plant by shutting off the valves of the ammonia pipes leading from the engine room into the condensing section. This averted the danger of another explosion.

The plant occupies a great area, the buildings being one story high. The freezing apparatus is an intricate system of double pipes, through which ammonia and water flow into the condensing room, 50 by 60 feet. Two great tanks of ammonia are in this room.

One of these leaked, and it is believed that the explosion was caused by spontaneous combustion. The report was deafening and men working in other departments hastened to the place and tried to extinguish the flames, but could not face the powerful odor. The fire department was forced to fight the blaze in relays for the same reason.

A number of valuable motors in an adjoining room were badly damaged, but with this exception the fire was confined to the one division of the plant.

The fire was spectacular, and though it occurred shortly after daybreak, hundreds of residents left their homes and watched its progress.

P. W. Whitelaw, president of the company, estimated the loss at $50,000, and said the destroyed portion would be immediately rebuilt.

Mr. Whitelaw stated that the fire would in no wise check the service of the company, it having several other large plants in different sections of the city in which is stored ice in sufficient quantities to meet every demand. He said the damaged plant will be again in operation in two weeks.

Engine company 29 was stalled in the mud at Papin street and the Clayton road while responding to the alarm. It was stuck there for several minutes.

Baby Goes Into the Bean-Raising Business!

Shelbyville, Ind., June 19.—A sprouted bean was discovered in the nose of a 10-months-old baby by physicians today. KELLY TO ENTER POLITICS AGAIN

Former Speaker of the House of Delegates to Resume Old Life.

HEALTH IS FIRST RATE

Says His Friends Have Urged Step and He Will Not Refuse Them.

Charles F. Kelly, former Speaker of the House of Delegates, is going back into politics.

He says so himself and with such earnestness and boyish enthusiasm that there is no doubt as to his intention.

"I haven't voted for four years," he says, "but I am going to make up for lost time now."

The four years during which "Charley" as his friends still call him, has not voted, date back to the time when he made a hurried trip to Europe while the boodle investigation was on. All of the charges made against him at that time have been dropped and he believes that his score is clean and he has as much right as anyone to get into the political game.

One of his plans is to put up a Democratic delegation from the Twentieth Ward and try to have it seated at the convention this fall.

"I had a pretty hard time of it," said Kelly to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday, "but I don't think the people have it in for me now. I was pretty sick for a while. My brain was in a whirl and my nerves were unstrung and I was unconscious for nine weeks.

Feels Better Than Ever.

"But last Sunday I felt better than I had felt for five years. It was a beautiful day and I walked down Cass avenue and it seemed to me like life was worth living again.

"The boys were out all along the street, my good friends of the old days. They took me by the hand and told me how well I was looking and they said to me, 'Charley, why don't you get back in politics?'

"I told them I didn't want to, but they wouldn't listen to me. They told me I had just as many friends as I ever had and they needed a leader. Now, I don't want to be a leader. It wouldn't look right. I said to the boys that I'd rather be in politics than eat, but they mustn't try to make a leader out of me.

"I told them I was willing to help them get up a delegation for the fall convention, and, say, they were just tickled to death. They said to me: 'Charley, we've been on the shelf for four years just because we needed a man like you to whoop things up in this ward. You're the fellow we want and we're going to put your name at the head of that delegation.'

Not to Head Delegation.

"Now, of course, I can't let them do that. I have never done anybody a wrong, but there might be some people who would think it didn't look right.

"I insisted that they leave my name off, but I told them that I would work with others to see that a good, strong delegation is put up. Of course, I don't want it called the Kelly delegation, because I don't think that would do any good.

"I don't think I've done anything that I should be ashamed of now. I may have been foolish, but then, everybody makes mistakes. Politics comes natural to me. For years I was crazy about it, but I was in it mainly because I wanted to show how much power I had to do things for my friends.

"Pretty near everybody likes to hear the plaudits of the people. They certainly sounded good to me, and maybe I'll hear them again. You never can tell. Anyway, you can just put it down that I'm going to be active in politics from now on."

HUNT WILL RUN AS INDEPENDENT

Congressman Withdraws as Candidate in Direct Primaries.

HE DOUBTED FAIR PLAY

Wanted to Name One-Half the Judges and Clerks, but This Is Refused.

Consternation was thrown into the ranks of the Democracy of the Eleventh Congressional District Thursday by the action of Congressman John T. Hunt, through his private secretary, Thomas Brennan, in withdrawing his name as a candidate in the direct primaries to be held June 27 for the nomination of a Congressman from that district, and the further announcement that he would run as an independent against George C. Neville, who will be the Democratic nominee.

This announcement was made to the Board of Election Commissioners and Hunt's action means a split in the Democratic vote that will probably result in the election of a Republican to Congress from the Eleventh District. It is said that Congressman Hunt, who is now in Washington, withdrew his name from the direct primary because he feels that he would not receive fair play at the hands of the Democratic Campaign Committee in his district.

This committee has held eight meetings in preparation for the Congressional campaign, and George C. Neville, Hunt's opponent for the Democratic nomination, has managed to be at the scene of each meeting, or to have his representative there, and has worked so effectively that he has a majority of the 18 committee members pledged to his support. Congressman Hunt has taken no action beyond filing his name with the Board of Election Commissioners.

On Wednesday, it is said, Hunt's campaign manager, Eugene Devine, had a conference with Neville and after telling him that Hunt was convinced that the Congressional Campaign Committee was against him and would favor Neville in the appointment of judges and clerks for the primary election, asked Neville if he would consent that Hunt should control the appointment of one-half the judges and clerks. To this Neville is said to have agreed, but, when the matter was laid before Building Commissioner James Smith, who is chairman of the Congressional Committee, Smith refused his consent for the carrying out of such an agreement.

Congressman Hunt's withdrawal of his name as a candidate before the primary election is the result of this action of Chairman Smith, leaving Neville as the only Democratic candidate. The Board of Election Commissioners is now considering the question of whether Hunt's name can be withdrawn from the ticket at this time.

INVENTOR IS CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Caleb H. Jackson, Once Prominent in Railway Circles, Arrested.

CLAIM HE KEPT $10,000

He Says It Was Legitimate Business Transaction and Predicts Acquittal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Caleb H. Jackson, 62 years old, prominent many years ago in Harrisburg, Pa., as the inventor of a switch and signal device for railroads, and subsequently connected with the Westinghouse company in Pittsburg, was arrested here charged with the embezzlement of $10,000. Jackson waived examination and said he preferred to have the case go to trial.

The papers in the case allege that Jackson has acted as agent for Benjamin F. Karns of Los Angeles and Washington, D. C. On Jan. 18, 1905, he received from the Exploration company of New York, $54,000, the proceeds from some property owned by Karns and sold to the Exploration company.

Two days later Jackson sent Karns $44,000, and at the same time telephoned him congratulating him on the transaction going through successfully, and saying he was sending the proceeds to Karns.

The defendant said the whole thing was a legitimate business transaction, and that the charge of embezzlement against him could not stand.

WAS HIGH OFFICIAL OF A CABLE COMPANY.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 21.—Caleb Jackson, until ten years ago, was largely identified with the Westinghouse interests at Pittsburg. He was one of the high officials of the Standard Underground Cable Co., then a part of the Westinghouse interests, and later he was connected with the Union Switch and Signal Co. here.

When he left Pittsburg he went to New York, where he was soon affiliated with the Union Electric Light and Power Co. there. Little is known here of the later movements of Jackson.

STAB WOUNDS ON UNCONSCIOUS MAN

John O'Brien was found at midnight at Broadway and Park avenue suffering from severe knife wounds, and who told conflicting stories as to how he came by his injuries, was cut in the saloon of Thomas Macklin at Broadway and Clark avenue, according to the police. Macklin's bartender is under arrest in connection with the affair.

O'Brien is employed on a down-river Government boat. He visits at the home of Louis Shingler, 1437 South Broadway, when he is in the city. He was there late Wednesday afternoon. When he left there at 6 o'clock he said he was going up town.

About midnight he was found by Policeman Fritsch leaning against a wall at Broadway and Park avenue, in a stupor. When he was aroused he said he thought he had been stabbed. He was sent to the City Dispensary and thence to the City Hospital. His condition is said to be serious. He is 54 years old.

James Rigney, who was arrested by Sergt. Hickey and Patrolman O'Leary on suspicion of having stabbed O'Brien, denies all knowledge of the affair and says he does not know of any trouble occurring in or near the saloon Wednesday night. He says he was asleep in a chair when he was arrested. He was taken to the City Hospital to be identified by O'Brien, but O'Brien was unconscious and Rigney was returned to the Four Courts.

THREAT OF SUICIDE.

Note Found in Park Gave Fictitious Address.

William F. Kingsbury, keeper of Lafayette Park, Thursday morning found in the park, near the edge of the lake, the following note, written in lead pencil on ordinary tablet paper:

"Dear Tootsie:

"Perhaps when you find this I will be on the bottom of the lake in Lafayette Park. It was not your fault. I am out of work. William Dittner, 340 Lami street."

Mr. Kingsbury turned the note over to the police of the Soulard Street Station. An investigation revealed the fact that there is no such number as that given. No one could be found in the vicinity on Lami street who knew anything of a William Dittner. His name is not in the City Directory.

HAD CLEVER SCHEME.

East Side Man Charged With Swindling Grocers.

Charles Krueger is held in East St. Louis on warrants charging him with obtaining goods under false pretenses. Four grocers identified him as a man who had deceived them. They said that his plan was to go to a store and order a bill of goods sent to a certain address, to be paid for on delivery.

As part of bill he would select tobacco and cigars and other small articles and put them in his pockets telling the grocer to charge them along with the order. The grocers' delivery men would find either vacant lots or houses where the name of the purchaser was not known when they reached the address given.

WOMEN MOB A CABINET OFFICER

Leaders Arrested Before Home of English Chancellor of Exchequer.

FIGHT WITH THE POLICE

Suffragists Tried to Compel Official to Hear Their Complaints.

LONDON, June 21.—Miss Ballington, Miss Kenney and three other leaders of the militant women's suffragists were arrested in Cavendish Square today for creating a disturbance outside of Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith's house. Mr. Asquith is the particular bugbear in the present ministry of the women's suffragists and special police have been stationed in the neighborhood of his residence to prevent threatened attacks upon it.

A score of women with banners assembled in Cavendish Square this forenoon and announced their determination to be heard by Mr. Asquith. They defied the police until their leader was arrested and dragged off to the police station.

The women were arraigned in police court. Miss Billington was fined $50 or two months' imprisonment whereupon she expressed the intention of "becoming a martyr" and of going to jail. The hearing of the other cases was adjourned.

The Countess of Carlyle, herself an ardent suffragist, referred to the affair at today's meeting of the Women's Liberal Federation. She said she was shocked when passing through Cavendish Square to see "so-called women suffragists fighting police and making an impertinent mockery of womanhood."

The Countess repudiated any connection with the "poor misguided women" who attempted to mob the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his own house.

WORK TRAIN AND OWL CAR CRASH

Motorman and Negro Injured in Twenty-Second Street Collision.

HAD A CHANCE TO JUMP

Wreckage Was Being Hauled From Building at Fourth and Pine.

Anthony J. Meyer of 2619 Prairie avenue, motorman on an Eighteenth street car, was seriously bruised and cut when his car struck and partly derailed a work car at St. Louis avenue and Twenty-second street early Thursday.

Philip Whittner, a negro living at 1925 Linden street, who was riding on the front platform, was probably internally injured. His forehead was cut and his right leg bruised. John Raney of 2507 North Spring avenue was slightly bruised by being thrown against the car by the shock.

The Eighteenth street car was going north on Twenty-second street, down grade to St. Louis avenue, when the collision occurred. Motorman Meyer said a westbound Cherokee owl car had just crossed the Twenty-second street track as he was approaching, and that he was not expecting another car to cross at that time of the morning.

Suddenly, without ringing the bell two work cars came west on St. Louis avenue. Meyer attempted to stop his car. He reversed, and would have had time to jump, but stuck to his post. He was pulling the sand lever to give the wheels a better grip on the wheels when the chash came.

The injured men were taken to the office of Dr. F. S. Haeberle, 2305 St. Louis avenue, where their wounds were dressed. Dr. Haeberle said he thought Whittner was internally injured, and a city ambulance was called. Meyer was taken to his home.

The rear car of the work train was struck forward of the hind trucks, which were pushed from the rails. The trucks were damaged and the car was uncoupled and pushed to the side of the street to prevent it blocking traffic. The Eighteenth street car was badly crushed. Four passengers escaped uninjured. The work train was loaded with lath and timbers from the building being wrecked at Fourth and Pine streets.

PHIL'S NOW A FARMER.

Pat Short Hears From an Earthquake Victim.

Phil Hacquette, who is known to all old-time St. Louisans of merry bent, and who once came near running for the City Council and almost as near beating Albert A. Aal in a foot race, has re-established communication with his frends here.

Phil was in San Francisco when the earthquake shook the glasses of his back bar. After the disaster his long silence was a mystery to those who knew him, and many of them jumped to the conclusion that the was among the lost.

But the rotund and jolly Phil was not killed. He just rolled out of Frisco on the ground swell and kept on going until he bumped against a farm at Belmont, Cal.

There he anchored and there he wrote a letter, which reached his old friend, Pat Short of the Olympic Theater, Thursday.

After telling how his "Art Palace," with its $40,000 worth of paintings (Phil's figures), were destroyed, he goes on to say:

"So here I am at Belmont, digging potatoes out of the ground and picking cherries out of the trees. Tell the boys it's the hardest work I ever did."

Unless Phil lost some of his weight when he rolled away from Frisco, his statement that picking cherries off a tree is a difficult task for him will go unchallenged by his St. Louis friends.

GOV. FOLK IN TOWN.

Gov. Folk spent Thursday in St. Louis on his way home from Bloomington, Ind., where he made an address to the graduating class of the University of Indiana.

"I am merely passing through the city," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Planters Hotel. "This morning I had a little talk about police matters with Commissioner Jones and I probably will see Mr. Stewart during the afternoon. I am not here for any purpose."

TOO SLEEPY TO DIE.

Girl Promises to Drink Poison After Rest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., June 21.—"Kiss me good-by and feel my left stocking," pleaded Hattie Parker, aged 15, of Omer H. Fales, aged 19. In the stocking was a vial of laudanum and a note. "Don't read that until you have looked behind grandpa's picture," she said. Fales, whose parents had forbidden him to go with the girl, disobeyed. The note was a pathetic farewell, threats of suicide being mingled with scriptural quotations. "If I can't be with Omer," it said, "I can be with Jesus."

Fales flew to the Police Station. They found Miss Parker sound asleep. "I meant to take the laudanum," she explained, "but I was too sleepy. I'll take it tomorrow.

Back of "grandpa's picture" was another suicide note interlined with Biblical references.

DATE TREE IN APPENDIX.

Seed Sprouts and Indiana Man Dies.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind., June 21.—Charles C. Howard died here after suffering with acute appendicitis. An operation was performed the week before and a date seed was found in his appendix. The seed had sprouted and was the cause of the trouble that ended his life.

Nothing Doing.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Mr. Hardpan: No, I can't buy you the dress and that's all there is about it.

Mrs. Hardpan: I think you might if you'd only remember all I have to put up with——

Mr. Hardpan: If you'd only remember how little I have to put up with you wouldn't ask me to put up for a dress.

HER PRAYER IS ANSWERED

Maria Jessop, After 18 Years of Orisons, Gains Husband She Longed For.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Miss Maria Jessop of 335 Ohio street prayed for 18 years for a husband and now she has one. Her prayers were addressed to an image of a saint, a heavy bust, which lent a devotional air to her bedroom. For long years she prayed and there was nothing doing. Then in a faithless moment she hurled the bust out of her window. It landed on the head of R. P. Costimino, who was passing by. He was put out instanter.

Miss Jessop ran down to his assistance, had him carried into her home, and there nursed him. He was cut and smashed about the head, and in a bad way generally. But the nurse brought him around, and now they are to be married. The unfortunate bust was "busted" into a hundred fragments, but Miss Jessop's faith in the efficacy of prayer is stronger than ever.

BREATHITT FEUD TRIALS JULY 2

Confessions of Jett and Spicer Make Prosecution Confident of Victory.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 21.—The trials of James Hargis, former County Judge of Breathitt County; Ed Callahan, former Sheriff; Alex Hargis, B. F. French, John Abner and John Smith, charged with the murder of James B. Marcum, is to be called for trial at Bettyville, Lee County, Monday, July 2. Both the prosecution and the defense have already announced that they will be ready.

Following the trials at Bettyville, all of the men will be next placed on trial in this city in September for the murder of Town Marshal Jim Cockrill, and after that Judge Hargis, Callahan, Abner and Smith will be tried in Jackson for the murder of Dr. D. B. Cox.

Since the confession of Curtis Jett and Asbury Spicer, Mrs. Abrella Marcum, widow of the murdered attorney and Byrd S. Jouett, her attorneys, and Sam Jett, the persons interested in the prosecution, have sufficient corroborative evidence to convict the accused on all of the charges.

Mrs. Marcum is perhaps the most contented woman in all Kentucky as she has at last secured the evidence she has been striving to obtain since the day her husband was killed. While the confession of the slayer of her husband came as a complete surprise to her it has been her belief that some of the men implicated by Mose Feltner in his famous deposition would eventually come forward and tell the truth. Jett and Spicer will now be used by the prosecution in all of the future trials of the Hargises, Callahan and French.

Mrs. Marcum will go to Bettyville and exert every energy toward the conviction of the slayers of her husband.

Burke departs for Kansas City Wednesday night.

SOLID BLOCK FOR $2,000,000 STORE

Library Board Sells Eighteenth Street Property for Butler Bros.

After several months of negotiation, the Public Library Board has concluded the sale of the block between Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Olive and Locust streets to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., which will place there a 10-story building costing $2,000,000 to be occupied by Butler Bros., wholesale merchants.

The price paid for the block is $600,000.

The sale of this property will furnish the Library Board funds to proceed with the construction of the $1,000,000 Carnegie Library on the site of the old Exposition Building, on Olive street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth.

The building to be built for Butler Bros. on the newly purchased site is to be one of the largest and most complete of its kind in the world. The library property was selected on condition that the alley running through the block could be vacated, so that the entire block might be used for a single building. This was done and the directors of the Library Board Wednesday signed contracts for the sale.

The firm of Butler Bros. was formed in Boston in 1877 and has been established in St. Louis eight years. There are houses in New York, Chicago and St. Louis, the St. Louis house at present being at Thirteenth street and Washington avenue. Homer P. Knapp of St. Louis is vice-president of the company.

CHICAGO INSPECTING SMALL PACKING PLANTS.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Chief Sanitary Inspector Hedrick yesterday detailed three inspectors to make a thorough investigation of the small packing plants which heretofore have escaped the limelight by being scattered throughout the city.

The truth of the claim made by the big packers that the former really were to blame for the meat scandal will then be tested. Particular attention, it is said, will be paid to the light, air and ventilation of these plants as well as to the question of cleanliness. The "small fry" is said to have made considerable progress in cleaning.

It's a Good Habit to Eat at May's

Our handsome and cosy fifth floor restaurant stands on a good, firm foundation. It was built to last, not only materially, but in the hearts of the public. We started out by making it a point to give more than we promised. We've done this right along, and will continue to do it. Such methods account for the continued praise that we receive daily, in the name of the restaurant. Many have already acquired the habit of eating at May's. Have you?

"TO the Front" and "AT the Front"

One woman asked: "Why do you say, 'To the front,' when you're 'at' the front?" The point is a good one. But we belong to the Army of the Ambitious. Though we know we're "at the front" (we say it modestly), still we are striving for the best that is in us—the best performance in every single branch of this immense mercantile institution. Without ambition we'd stand still; and standing still is going back. That's not our style. With the Million Population Club we cry, "To the Front."

ACTOR'S WIFE SAYS MAN KEPT HER PRISONER

Declares She Was Held in Suburban House for Six Months.

WAS BEATEN INSENSIBLE

Alleged Captor Struck Her, Then Ran, When She Escaped.

FOUND BY HER HUSBAND

Returns to Parents' Home in Omaha—Accused Man Gets Away.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., June 21.—Held a prisoner, she alleges, against her will, for six months, after being chloroformed and kidnaped from her parents' home, Mrs. Dora West has succeeded, according to her story, in escaping from her captor. The man followed her to the street, beat her into insensibility and started to carry her back to his rooms, when a crowd gathered. He dropped her and ran.

Clay West, the husband of the woman, is an actor, and was away on a theatrical engagement. William McDonald, a boarder at the Wests, became infatuated with the young bride.

On Jan. 7, Mrs. West declares, while she was playing the organ in the parlor of her home, McDonald placed a handkerchief saturated with chloroform over her face, and she became insensible.

When she regained consciousness she found herself, she asserts, in a house on the outskirts of Beatrice, 40 miles from her home, held prisoner by a woman. There McDonald frequently visited her, she says, and sought to make her promise to go with him and keep her whereabouts secret. She refused, she says, and has continued a close prisoner.

Meantime, West was sent for, and a systematic search was instituted. It was learned on Saturday that Mrs. West was at Beatrice. McDonald, who heard that West was on his track, took a room at a small hotel, kept a close watch on Mrs. West, and finally saw her escape from her prison and start for the railway station.

McDonald overtook her near the station, and when she broke and ran, he dealt her several vicious blows on the head, rendering her unconscious. Then he placed her on his shoulder and ran with her. A crowd had gathered, and, seeing that he was about to be captured, McDonald dropped the woman and escaped.

Mrs. West is now with her parents.

ST. LOUIS BANKS SHOW GAINS.

Report to U. S. Comptroller of Currency Indicates Their Prosperous Condition.

The report of the banks of St. Louis, which has just been made to the Comptroller of Currency in Washington, D. C., shows that all are in flourishing condition. A striking example of their progress is the report of the City National Bank, on Franklin avenue, at Eleventh street. This bank, only nine months old, already shows resources of one million dollars. The exact figures to the United States Comptroller are $1,063,377.36. This remarkable report of the City National Bank is a pride to St. Louis financiers and a credit to its officers, most of whom are prominently identified with Franklin avenue business firms.

NEW FLAG FOR CHILDREN.

Tattered Banner at Playgrounds Is Replaced.

Santa Claus didn't visit the little tots who were romping about the playgrounds at Eleventh and Mullanphy streets Wednesday afternoon, for the real Santa Claus only comes at Christmas time, but a warm-weather Santa called on the children while they were at play and presented them with a big, new flag to replace the torn and tattered Old Glory that was flying, still majestically, from the tall flagpole.

William Kramme of 3500 North Eleventh street, who has lived in North St. Louis for a long time, happened to go by the playgrounds on a street car and saw the smoky old flag.

He stopped at a flag store on his way home and bought a new flag for the children. A mighty cheer went up from the patriotic little throats as the new stars and stripes was strung up to replace the flag that had seen so much service.

DISPENSARY TO COURT.

Driver Leaves Surgeons to Prosecute Case.

John Armstrong, driver of a parcel delivery wagon for Frank Buckley, was given half an hour during the dressing of his injuries at the City Dispensary Thursday to go to the City Hall Police Court, where he was arraigned with his employer and Walter M. and Fred S. Love, proprietors of a rival establishment, on cross charges of disturbing the peace.

Armstrong was fined $5 and the Loves were each fined $10. Buckley was discharged. When the case was finished, Armstrong returned to the dispensary, where the dressing of his wound was continued.

According to the story told by Armstrong, he started past the place of business of the Love brothers Wednesday afternoon. He saw Walter and smiled at him. He said Love accused him of laughing at him and struck at him as soon as he got close enough. Armstrong's finger was injured and his neck and ear were lacerated. Walter Love bit him, he testified. Fred Love went to the assistance of his brother and hit Armstrong on the head with a rock, inflicting a slight scalp wound.

The Love brothers admitted their part in the fight, but said that it all started because Armstrong was laughing at Walter. Buckley took no part in the disturbance.

Chuckled Too Soon.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"Those two women very nearly got off without paying their fare," said the street car conductor to a man on the platform.

"How did you discover that you had overlooked them?" was asked.

"I could tell by the way they giggled," he replied.

CULTURE PLAN DIVORCE PLEA

Husband Tried to Improve His Wife, but She Complains of His Pedagogics.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Mrs. William Palmer Armstrong, whose husband said her culture did not equal his, and gave her daily "stunts" to do in the way of memorizing the dictionary, obtained a divorce Wednesday. It was the task of the girl-wife each night, before retiring, to properly spell and thoroughly define the meaning of many words not ordinarily in present use. As a side line, and by way of recreation, she was expected to commit to memory such trifles as Milton's "Paradise Lost" and the majority of Shakspeare's plays. According to the plaintiff, the tasks were hard and the results were not all that her husband desired.

FIRED TO QUIET FATHER.

Jacob Anthoni Explains Five Shots at His House.

Several shots fired from the second-story porch at 910 South Sarah street late Wednesday night were heard by Policemen Hancock and White, who later arrested Jacob Anthoni who lives at that address.

Anthoni explained to Lieut. Donegan of the Newstead Avenue Station that he fired the shots to frighten his father, who he feared was going to attack members of the family. Anthoni said his father returned home intoxicated Wednesday night, and brandishing a knife, threatened to "clean out" the house. After a struggle, Anthoni succeeded in ejecting his father, and when the latter returned and tried to force an entrance, Anthoni went out on the porch and fired.

SHOOTS DIVORCED WIFE AND NIECE

Californian Pleaded in Vain With Woman ee Return to Him.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 21.—W. F. Ketring shot and probably fatally wounded his divorced wife and her niece, Miss Bessie O'Day, at the home of the former early today.

Ketring has been separated from his wife for two years. Calling upon her last night, he asked her to return to him. She refused and Miss O'Day stepped to the telephone to call the police. As she did so Ketring knocked the telephone from her hand and shot both women.

WANT BETTER PRICES.

Stationers Trying to Find Legal Way to Get Them.

NEW YORK, June 21.—At the annual convention of the Stationers and Manufacturers' Association yesterday, E. R. Williams of Minneapolis said he thought something ought to be done concerning prices.

"We don't propose anything that will violate the anti-trust law," he said, "but we do believe that prices can be legitimately regulated. In my own town, for instance, before the establishment of the local stationers' organization, the stationers spent more time 'knocking' one another than they did in 'boosting' their own business."

The wild Manchurian ginseng, such as is sent to the Emperor of China, costs from $650 to $800 gold a pound. The imported American ginseng brings only $18 to $30 a pound.

OMAHA BANKER IS DOGCATCHER

Head of Humane Society Seeks Appointment to Introduce Humane Methods.

OMAHA, Neb., June 21.—Alfred Millard, cashier of one of the largest national banks in Omaha, was yesterday confirmed by the City Council for the office of poundmaster and dogcatcher.

Millard is president of the Nebraska Humane Society and the appointment was of his own seeking. He said last night:

"I shall so conduct the office that more respect will attach to it than heretofore, and the animals will be treated with more consideration."

What? A Landlady Did This?

A man giving his name as Farrell and representing himself as an engineer for the Terminal Railroad Association called at the home of Mrs. A. J. Lucas, 2145 South Jefferson avenue, Wednesday afternoon to see about renting a room. He said he would move in, but discovered that he did not have enough money to pay for the hauling of his trunk. Mrs. Lucas advanced him the needed amount and has not seen him since. She has asked the police to arrest him.

A Waste of Words.

From the Cleveland Leader.

John: What sort of a girl is that bosom friend of yours?

Sue: She's perfectly charming. She is bright, witty, intellectual and accomplished. And she's awfully jolly, and the best-hearted girl you ever saw. She's a good fellow, too, and——

John: Say, why don't you say she's ugly and be done with it?

HER SUIT AGAINST PLATT DISMISSED

Mae Wood Instituted Case, but Failed to Prosecute It.

OMAHA, Neb., June 21.—In the Circuit Court here yesterday, the Mae C. Wood damage suit for $200,000, a former clerk in the Postoffice Department at Washington, against Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York and the United States Express Co. was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

Miss Wood sued for services alleged to have been performed for Senator Platt and the express company in looking after matters of interest to them in the Postoffice Department.

APPLICATION OF BABCOCK STAYS

Not Withdrawn Because of Spencer's Objection Made on 'Change.

At the office of Secretary Morgan of the Merchants' Exchange it was stated Thursday that the application of A. E. Babcock, commission merchant, who once sued the Exchange, had not been withdrawn on account of the objection filed under the rules by Harlow B. Spencer, son of the late Corwin H. Spencer.

The rule of the Exchange, the officials say, do not bar Mr. Babcock from membership, on account of his having entered a suit. In the case of Mr. Babcock, the suit was dismissed some time ago. Mr. Babcock made application for admission by the transfer of a certificate of membership issued to W. J. Currie.

The rules of the Exchange permit such transfer, but the objection of Mr. Spencer was made under the rule that the certificate of Currie could not be admitted because of a debt owed by Mr. Currie to the Spencer estate.

Some of the members of the Exchange expressed the opinion that Mr. Babcock would withdraw his application for membership under the transfer of the Currie certificate and substitute another not open to the same objection under the rules as that raised by Mr. Spencer.

SHINGLE WEAVERS STRIKE

Union Calls Out 7000 Men in Northwest.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 21.—President Botger and Secretary Campbell of the shingle weavers' union last night announced the calling of the State strike, which has been threatened for some time as an outgrowth of the labor troubles in the shingle mills at Ballard.

The special convention of the weavers held at Ballard Sunday, declared that unless the shingle mills should, before Thursday morning, act to settle the Ballard trouble, the union would call a strike.

Union officers state that they expect to call out 7000 men.

LETTER CLEW IN MURDER MYSTERY

Police Find Threatening Note in House Where Mrs. Kinnan Was Slain.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Interest in the Kinnan murder mystery centered in the fact that 60 witnesses have been summoned to appear before Coroner McDonald this morning to testify at a hearing preliminary to the regular inquest.

Mrs. Alice Kinnan was beaten to death on the night of June 8 on the front porch of the old mansion at Washington avenue and One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street, which was occupied by Mrs. Kinnan and her aged mother, Mrs. Louise M. Stenton.

Although the police and the Coroner tried to keep the matter secret, it was learned last night that perhaps the only clew to a possible assailant was discovered by a policeman last night. He was stationed at the Stenton house to guard it. He was not in the house, but in some manner he got hold of a letter addressed to Mrs. Kinnan, postmarked two days before her murder and written by a man, threatening her with bodily harm.

DELMAR TRACK GETS REHEARING

Club Contends Before Supreme Court It Is Entitled to Trial.

The Delmar Jockey Club, which was fined $5,000 and the franchise of which was declared forfeited in an opinion rendered by the Supreme Court a month ago, is to have a rehearing. The court in Jefferson City Wednesday granted the club's motion for a rehearing.

The judgment rendered by the court was upon the pleadings filed by both Attorney-General Hadley and the club. It was maintained by the State that the club admitted nonuse of franchises and violation of law in pooselling.

This is denied in the motion for a rehearing. The jockey club contends that it is entitled to a trial of the allegations of misuse, abuse and perversion. The motion declares that judgment has been entered against it without a trial of the issues, and invokes the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is to the effect that no one shall be deprived of property without due process of law.

The motion says the club has been fined $5000 for misuse of its corporate franchises, while, it contends, it has never been given a trial on this allegation. Regarding its failure to hold fairs, the motion says no trial has been had, yet a judgment rendered.

The attorneys, in their motion, contend that it is not right that a judgment of ouster should be entered against the jockey club, even though it be held that it has not power to sell pools, and even though it has lost its charter privilege to hold fairs. It is held that it has many other privileges which are not contrary to the statute, and which would be lost under the judgment of ouster. Among these privileges which it contends a right to exercise is that of conducting horse races for prizes or purses.

Now that the motion for a rehearing has been granted, it is considered probable that the case will not be disposed of by the Supreme Court for many months. It will not be taken up by the court before the October term, and a final opinion will probably not be rendered before the first of the year.

VAN BLARCOM IS SUED.

W. H. Thompson Executors Demand $330,200.

Suit has been begun in the Circuit Court by the W. H. Thompson Trust Co., executor of the estate of W. H. Thompson, against J. C. Van Blarcom for $330,200, value of 850 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Commerce and dividends.

The allegations in the petition are the same as those in the counter claim presented by the trust company in the suit of Van Blarcom and H. C. Pierce against the trust company, which is pending in Judge Fisher's court. The counter claim was withdrawn after it had been demurred to on the ground that it named only Van Blarcom, whereas both Van Blarcom and Pierce were plaintiffs in the pending suit.

These allegations are that Thompson loaned Van Blarcom the shares to enable him to use them as collateral security in financing the Tennessee Central Railroad, the understanding being that Van Blarcom was to protect them from sale and pay the dividends to Thompson. It is charged that he converted 800 shares to his own use and caused the stock to be transferred to the Mercantile Trust Co. The value of the stock is stated as $320,000 and the balance of $10,200 is claimed as dividends overdue, which have not been paid by Van Blarcom.

New Church Legislation.

It is expected that the decrees of the last provincial synod of Maynooth will soon be ratified by Rome and published. A few misprints in the first draft of the decrees sent to Rome have caused the delay. According to the new ecclesiastical legislation in Ireland, parish priests will be appointed in future by concursus.

FIRE IN ASYLUM; ONE MAN KILLED

Inmates of Connecticut Hospital for the Insane Panic-Stricken.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 21.—Fire in the amusement hall connected with the State Hospital for the Insane early today caused one death and created a panic among the inmates of the asylum, who were removed from a dormitory to another building while the fire was raging.

The dead man was a superintendent of a silk mill here. He was a spectator at the fire and was crushed by a falling wall. The burned building was valued at $20,000.

Republic Loses Voters.

San Marino, the smallest Republic in the world, will soon be without voters if its rate of emigration keeps up. It has only 1700, including widows, but it is still a good republic. Recently its Assembly decided to abolish the Executive Council, the members of which have been elected for life. Hereafter members will be elected by the people for three years only.

WOULD EXCLUDE CONTRACT DOCTORS

Chicago Medical Society Votes on Question, but Fails to Decide.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The referendum vote of the Medical Society on the question of the proposed amendment to the bylaws so as to make ineligible to membership physicians engaged in contract practice, failed yesterday because of the rule providing that a referendum vote shall not prevail unless 50 per cent of the membership strength is voting.

The majority of the votes cast, however, favored the amendment.

According to the secretary's report there are 1923 members in the society and 358 votes were registered in favor of the anti-contract amendment, while 201 were against its adoption.

Damage Frauds Sentenced.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 21.—Earnest and Walter Carruthers, brothers, were sentenced yesterday to prison for perpetrating a peculiar fraud on the local street car company. Walter can throw his ankle out of joint at will and the scheme of the brothers was for Walter to fall from a car and then claim damages for alleged injuries to his ankle. Traction companies in a dozen cities have been defrauded by this method.

HOSE LAID 2000 FEET TO FIRE

House Burned by Time Blaze Is Reached, but Others Are Saved.

St. Louis firemen, connected with engine companies 23 and 34, had to stretch lines of hose from River Des Peres 2000 feet to cope with a fire at midnight in Luxembourg, just south of the city limits. The delay caused by the remoteness of the water supply resulted in the complete destruction of the house in which the fire started, but the spread of the flames to other houses was prevented.

Charles Wright was passing the two-story frame residence occupied by Mrs. Mary Schaefer and her family a few minutes before midnight when he saw flames issuing from a rear window. After pounding on the doors and arousing the inmates, and making sure that they could all get out in safety, he ran to a fire alarm box and sent in an alarm.

When the firemen arrived they found that the nearest plug was on the bank of the River des Peres, and they laid two lines from there, but by that time the house was doomed.

Part of the contents were carried out with the help of neighbors. Mrs. Schaefer and her children went to the home of relatives in St. Louis.

CHINA PAYS BIG MULCT TO FRANCE

Massacre of French Jesuit Missionaries Last February Brings Indemnity.

PARIS, June 21.—The Foreign Office has been advised that China yesterday signed a treaty according complete satisfaction to France for the massacre of six French Jesuit missionaires at Nan Chang, Kiang-Si Province, in February last.

China pays $200,000 indemnity to the missions and $400,000 indemnity to the deceased missionaries' families, builds a memorial hospital and punishes the ringleaders of the rioting.

In addition posthumous honors, which the people of Nan Chang demanded, will not be granted to the Chinese magistrate whose suicide was the signal for the outbreak.

The French gunboats in the vicinity of Nan Chang will now be withdrawn.

IVENS' ATTORNEY'S MOTION DENIED

Court Refuses Rehearing for Chicago Murderer Sentenced to Die Friday.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 21.—The Supreme Court this morning denied a motion of Attorney Folts, representing Ivens, the Chicago murderer, sentenced to die next Friday. Folts asked leave to file a more complete record and additional authority in the Ivens murder case.

Judge Hand said court could see no season for granting the motion because it had gone to the original records in case, and had considered the evidence in its entirety.

Ivens' father arrived in the city this morning. Attorney Folts refuses to allow him to talk.

MAN OF 70 ELOPES WITH WIDOW OF 50

Groom Was Anxious to Avoid a Clash With His Three Daughters.

WEDDED IN BELLEVILLE

Tenants of Juengel's Flats Threaten to Move Out of Buildings.

A topsy-turvy wedding was that of Nicholas Juengel and Mrs. Margaretha Girgner, who eloped to Belleville and were married. The aggregate age of these newlyweds is 120, Mr. Juengel being 70 and his bride 50.

In most elopements two giddy young things run away to escape the wrath of parents, but in this case Juengel feared the wrath of his three daughters.

Until Wednesday night Juengel lived with his daughter, Miss Josephine Juengel, in one of four flats which he owns at 3317 South Seventh street. Now he is staying at the home of Mrs. Anna Granacher, the mother of his bride, at 916 Lynch street.

The new Mrs. Juengel says that they are going to move to one of her husband's flats and that her mother is going with them.

When Miss Juengel, who has been her father's housekeeper since her mother's death a year ago, learned of this intention Thursday morning, she said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"They had better not come here. All the tenants feel the same as I do about it. If my father brings his bride here the tenants will all move out and I won't stay here, either. My father had no business getting married."

Daughters Are Displeased.

One of the reasons given by the bride for the elopement is that she was afraid of a charivari.

"Well, they'll get it all right if they come around here," commented the daughter.

A married daughter who occupies one of the flats feels the same way about it. "Maybe some of the children don't like it," said the bride, to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but Mr. Juengel's son went with us to Belleville and helped to get the license and was one of our witnesses at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. M. O. Burkhardt of the Lutheran Church."

When the couple went to Belleville it was their intention to get the license there and come back to St. Louis to be married, but the County Clerk told them that the license would be useless in Missouri, so they decided to have the knot tied in Belleville.

Juengel is a stove mounter and is well-to-do. He has known Mrs. Girgner nearly ten years. She was a frequent visitor at the Juengel home while the first Mrs. Juengel was alive.

TELEPHONE OVERWORKED.

Jury Fines Miss Fernandez for Annoying Man.

A jury in Judge Pollard's court, holding that calling a man up by telephone as often as 44 times a day, even in an effort to collect a debt, amounts to a disturbance of the peace, assessed a fine of $5 against Miss W. J. Fernandez, a public stenographer in the Chemical Building, for persistently calling up Edward A. Plummer in her effort to collect an alleged debt from his son-in-law, James A. Park.

Mr. Plummer, who is 81 years old, says that his hearing is impaired and that it is necessary for him to call some one from an adjoining room to answer the telephone. He says that Miss Fernandez called him up many times each day for a week, always asking for his son-in-law. He had to call someone to the telephone to take the message, he said, and was thus greatly annoyed. He says that on one occasion Miss Fernandez called Park a "dead beat."

Miss Fernandez said that she was only making reasonable efforts to collect "an honest debt" of $49. She has appealed the case.

NEW COPYRIGHT LAW.

Discussion of Provisions Urged by Librarian Putnam.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Librarian Putnam today issued the following memorandum with reference to the revision of the copyright laws:

"The hearings by the two committees on patents sitting as a joint committee, which were begun on June 6 and concluded on June 9, were preliminary merely. The chairman of the House committee announced that his committee would be prepared to resume hearings after the first Monday in December.

The Senate committee has authority to sit during the recess, but the chairman indicates that there is no possibility of any hearings during the summer and no probability of hearings prior to the beginning of the next session. The Senate committee has passed the following resolution, which it instructed me to communicate as widely as possible to the public.

"'Pending further hearings upon the bill the Register of Copyrights is requested to keep record of the discussion of its provisions; and to receive in behalf of the committee, as well as of the copyright office, suggestions for its amendment whether in form or substance, and to digest these also, for convenient consideration by the committee.'"

Game Fines for School.

Judge Lamm has handed down a decision in the Supreme Court at Jefferson City holding that fines collected for violation of the Walmsley game law are to be converted into the school fund of the county in which the offense was committed, and not into the State game fund. The opinion was given in the test case brought by the State Game Warden against the Treasurer of Jackson County.

FISH FEW, HE ENDS LIFE.

Joseph Buechlein Swallows Acid After Catching Three.

Joseph Buechlein of 3728 Kosciusko street committed suicide at his home by drinking carbolic acid after returning from an unsuccessful fishing excursion. Mrs. Buechlin heard her husband fall, and found him lying across the bed in his room. He died in an ambulance on the way to the South Side Dispensary.

Buechlin left home Wednesday, remarking that he would bring home a "big string." He returned late in the afternoon, after fishing all day, with three small fish.

His widow and a baby, 10 months old, survive him. Buechlin's mother, Mrs. Bremecker, says her son made a former attempt to kill himself, but she prevented him by striking a bottle of poison from his lips.

SALOON FOR DRY TRACT.

West End Residents Oppose John Cordell's Petition.

George S. Tivy of 5355 Maple avenue is leading a movement of residents of the neighborhood of Page and Clarendon avenues to keep former Detective John W. Cordell from establishing a saloon at that corner.

Mr. Tivy declares that there is not a saloon within half a mile, and that he has the names of seven-eighths of the property owners on a petition of remonstrance. There is a church in the block and another across the street. The corner is the center of what is probably the largest "dry" area in St. Louis. There is not a saloon in this district, which is bounded on the north by Easton avenue, east by King's highway, south by Delmar boulevard and west by Hamilton avenue.

JURY INDICTS LEXINGTON, KY.

Failure to Repair Its Streets Is Charge Against Municipality.

ESTABLISHES PRECEDENT

"Lives, Horses and Vehicles of Citizens Endangered," Indictments Allege.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 21.—Five indictments were returned by the grand jury last evening against the city of Lexington as a municipality and corporation charging the city with wilfully neglecting to repair the streets.

Patrick Money, City Superintendent of Public Works, is responsible for the indictments, which charge that not only did the city neglect to repair the streets, but permitted them to be torn up and left in such condition "as to endanger the lives, horses and vehicles of citizens."

Mayor Thomas A. Combs says that the streets are torn up because much sewer work is going on, and that the streets will be repaired as soon as expedient. The indictments against Lexington establish a precedent.

BEAUTY CAUGHT ARTIST'S FANCY

But, Oh, She Is Married and There Is a Husband Who Doesn't Follow Ruskin.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, June 21.—B. R. Wilkinson of Millvale, a suburb of this city, has filed suit against A. Bryan Wall, the famous landscape and animal painter, charging him with alienating the affections of Wilkinson's wife. It is understood that Wilkinson demands $50,000 of the artist.

Wilkinson is a messenger employed by the United States Express Co., and was away from home a great deal of his time.

Mrs. Wilkinson was seen on the streets with Wall no later than last night. She has wonderful beauty, is about 27 years of age, with jet black hair and big brown eyes. She always dresses in fashionable clothes. She became acquainted with the artist through the latter's frequent trips to the vicinity of Millvale, where much beautiful scenery abounds. Once, while making a trip there, he stopped at the house for a drink of water, and from that time on the acquaintance of the couple developed.

Wall is known all over this country and Europe as a painter. His work has attracted much attention in Paris, particularly his painting of sheep. Several of his pictures have been hung in the Paris salon. Some years ago Andrew Carnegie became interested in Wall and did a great deal to advance the young artist. Many of his pictures have been hung in the Carnegie gallery here, and he has been awarded several prizes. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Institute and has taken great interest in that institute.

PLANS FOR UNVEILING.

Sigel Manument Will Be Given to City Saturday.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the exercises at the unveiling of the Gen. Franz Sigel Mounment at Forest Park next Saturday afternoon.

After the bugle call has sounded the "Assemble," in memory of the great Union General of the Civil War, the United States Military Band, under the leadership of Frank J. Weber, will play a march, followed by an overture from one of the great masters. After music by the various German singing societies of St. Louis, Judge Leo Rassieur, president of the Sigel Monument Association, will make the presentation address.

Miss Cora M. Rassieur will then unveil the monument as the military band plays "America."

Park Commissioner Robert Aull will deliver the address of acceptance on behalf of the city. There will be more music by the singing societies, followed by addresses by Capt. George W. Bailey and Dr. H. M. Starkloff and a poetic recitation by Hon. Gustave Cramer. E. D. Kargau being the author of the poem. The exercises will close with music and the bugle call, "Taps."

SHOT BY HIGHWAYMAN.

Driving Club Superintendent Probably Fatally Hurt.

NEW YORK, June 21.—John Phillips, superintendent of the Parkway Driving Club and a well-known turfman, was shot and seriously wounded last night by two highwaymen while on the way to his residence in the grounds of the club, Brooklyn.

The thieves succeeded in getting a gold watch and chain, a valuable diamond ring and some cash. Mr. Phillips was taken to the Emergency Hospital in Coney Island, where his condition is critical.

SISTERS TIRED OF MARRIED LIFE

Leave Their Husbands and Start Out to Make Own Living.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Two sisters, tired of married life, have left their husbands and have gone out to make a living for themselves.

They are Mrs. P. W. Kelley and Mrs. L. W. White, daughters of Mrs. A. H. Parsons, who lives near the Soldiers' Home. Mrs. Kelley has been married 12 years and her husband is an employe of the Lake Shore Railroad at Ashtabula, O. Mrs. White has been married a year and her husband is employed in the Pension Office here.

Mrs. Kelley and her 6-year-old daughter came on for a visit to her mother last Easter. About four weeks ago Mrs. Kelley visited the home of her sister, Mrs. White, and the two have not been seen since. They left a note saying they were tired of married life and were going to work for themselves. A thorough search has failed to locate either of the women.

WATER, NOT MEAT, MADE EDITORS ILL

They Drank Pluto, Then Something Stronger, and Two Wouldn't Mix.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Indiana sandwiches and potted meats from which they were made have been exonerated. The 50 ill editors were not poisoned. They had been the guests of Tom Taggart at French Lick. They were introduced to the famous water there and drank deep of it.

Probably 75 of the men carried flasks of stronger liquids in their baggage. They innocently mixed the whisky and Pluto and drank. Not only did they drink it themselves, but they gave it to some of the women folk. The result was a half hundred poisoned editors and a score of women who believed their last day had come. They moaned and groaned on the train and yelled for physicians at every station, blaming meat and sandwiches given them at different Indiana towns. They were enlightened today and promised "never again."

SEND MORE U. S. MARINES TO CHINA

American Legation Guard to Be Strengthened—Disquieting News Received.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Two hundred more American marines will be sent to Pekin to guard the United States legation at the Chinese capital.

It has been stated recently at the Department of State that the conditions in China are becoming normal, but during the last few days advices of a disquieting nature have been received. The Chinese are again becoming restless and their enmity against foreigners is manifesting itself.

This news has caused a number of conferences between Secretaries Root, Taft and Bonaparte regarding the advisability of sending reinforcements to the Pekin legation guard, which now consists of 109 officers and men.

While the State Department officials regard reinforcements as advisable they do not consider them absolutely essential at this time. The question has arisen as to how 200 more marines can be sent to Pekin without incurring the strongest opposition of the Chinese Government and arousing the suspicions of the Chinese populace, which is always ready to grasp every excuse for an anti-foreign disturbance. These questions will be solved somehow and the marines will be sent in the near future.

STEAMER SHAFT BREAKS.

Bald Eagle Officers Reassure Hundred Persons.

The propeller shaft of the steamer Bald Eagle snapped in twain when the craft was just below Hardin, Ill., at 2 a. m. Thursday, and it required the utmost efforts of the boat's officers to calm the passengers.

The boat was rendered almost helpless, but was finally steered to shore. A roustabout walked to Hardin, where he telegraphed to Alton for the steamer Spread Eagle to hasten to the disabled boat and carry its passengers and freight to Peoria, to which point it was bound.

The accident occurred when the majority of the 100 passengers were asleep. The breaking of the shaft sounded like the explosion of a boiler and the boat quivered from stem to stern. The slumberers were awakened by the noise and shock and tumbled from their beds in fright, believing that the craft was going down. Officers of the boat ran to the different staterooms and reassured the passengers. The Bald Eagle will be laid up for repairs for a few days.

"JOKER'S" VICTIM BLOWN TO DEATH

Claim Compressed Air Pump Destroyed Steel Worker's Internal Organs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 21.—Details of a fiendish practical joke perpetrated upon Stephen Borgeon, a young Homestead steel worker, whose internal organs are said to have been blown to pieces by fellow workmen with a compressed air pump, causing him to die in frightful agony the following day, have come to the attention of Coroner Joseph G. Armstrong.

As the result of an autopsy a warrant was issued for John Pretchen, the man who is said to have applied the air to Borgeon. He left Homestead a few days after Borgeon was buried.

Borgeon died June 3. His friends sought to keep the facts concerning the injuries which resulted in his death from becoming known, but the mill authorities reported the death later.

The trouble which led to the death of Borgeon occurred in the Homestead steel works. One of the workmen, said to have been Pretchem, had fallen asleep near an open window. Borgeon is alleged to have rudely awakened him by thrusting at him the nozzle of a compressed air pipe carrying several hundred pounds pressure.

Borgeon's act was keenly resented by the workman, who rushed after Borgeon, seized him and threw him down and applied the air pipe.

KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR.

Otto Peipper Undergoes Operation After Accident.

Otto J. Peipper of 1202 North Fifteenth street is at the City Hospital with a fractured skull as a result of being struck by a car. He attempted early Thursday to cross in front of a northbound Jefferson avenue car in front of 2285 South Jefferson avenue. After being knocked down, Peipper was placed on the car and taken to the car sheds at Geyer and Jefferson avenues.

There a physician said Peipper's skull was fractured and he was sent to the hospital, where he was operated on. His condition is said to be serious.

B. Brockshir of 3654 Olive street, motorman of the car, saw Peipper stepped in front of the car after the gong had warned him.

BRADLEY AMENDS CARNEGIE'S TEXT

Speaker at Washington University Commencement Talks on Wealth.

DISGRACE TO GROW RICH

University Students Hold Commencement Exercises in Huge Tent.

Women who wear aigrettes were denounced. Andrew Carnegie was ridiculed and the purpose of a collegiate education was defined by Rev. Henry Stiles Bradley of St. John's Methodist Church in the commencement address delivered to Washington University students Thursday morning. His subject was, "The Doctrine of Altruism."

He spoke of Christ as "the greatest exponent of altruism," and said that Christ's life was "the living record of altruism. His teachings and his preachings are responsible for altruism."

"Those teachings," said Mr. Bradley, "were not only for all humans but for all creatures. Women who wear aigrettes on their hats should remember this.

"Every aigrette means the death of the mother and her young, since it is only when the mother bird has a little brood to care for that it is possible to capture her and take from her the aigrette which women think is so fashionable.

"To cause such cruelty is contrary to the law of altruism and consequently to the law of Christ."

Amends Carnegie's Text.

The speaker compared Andrew Carnegie to Alexander the Great, saying:

"Alexander regretted when there were no more worlds to conquer. Carnegie regrets that there are no more countries to give his money to. He is quoted as saying, 'It is a disgrace to die rich.' I give you a new quotation, 'It is a disgrace to grow rich.'"

Mr. Bradley said that the purposes of a university education was "to make men good leaders and good servants."

He closed with an optimistic view of the future, saying: "The time will come when all men will be united under the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

The exercises were held in a large tent, which had been erected for that purpose just back of the main buildings. The stage was decorated with the university colors, myrtle and maroon, and college banners. Besides the faculty, Samuel Cupples, Robert S. Brookings, David R. Francis and Charles W. Knapp had seats on the stage.

Rev. Charles S. Mills gave both the invocation and the benediction.

The exercises were preceded by a parade about the grounds, in which the 37 graduates, 17 of whom are young women, participated. The diplomas were given out and the degrees conferred by Chancellor Chapelain.

Announcement was made that Prof. Hambach of the Geological Department, who was injured six months ago, would become a beneficiary of the Carnegie relief fund. He is the first man in St. Louis to receive aid from that source. His injuries have incapacitated him for teaching.

POLICEMAN IS DEFENDED BY GIRL

She Says Ferrick Was Not at Her House When Man Was Assaulted.

Emma Hutchinson, the young lodging house keeper of 1621 Morgan street, will defend her sweetheart, Policeman John H. Ferrick, who is acused of clubbing Thomas Durkin. Miss Hutchinson denies Durkin was Ferrick's rival. She says she will face the Police Commissioners and save the young patrolman from punishment or reprimand.

"I have nothing to tell but the truth," said she to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday. "I will go any place to tell the truth and save him.

"He is my beau. The other man? He is nothing to me. He has lived in the house two weeks. I have scarcely seen him half a dozen times. He is nothing to me.

"Policeman Ferrick was not at my house last Saturday night, the night Durkin was assaulted. I did not see him. The first I knew of any assault was when Policemen Biggio and Sullivan of the Carr Street Station came to the house at 1:30 a. m., got me out of bed and told me Durkin had been assaulted. They kept me locked up at the station until nearly 9 o'clock. I hadn't seen any assault or even heard of it, until the policemen came to the house.

"Durkin pointed out another policeman first and afterward pointed out Ferrick. Ferrick wasn't at the house that night. Somebody else must have hit Durkin. Anyway, Durkin was drinking that night.

"But leave it to me—I'll tell the truth and protect Ferrick."

BUSCH PLANS FOR HUGE TERMINALS

River Front Controlled With Storage Capacity for 15,000 Cars.

ACCESS TO FREE BRIDGE

Manufacturers' Railway to Construct Two Complete Belt Lines.

In pushing the plans for the Manufacturers' Railway (Busch line)—the pending franchise for which has caused a row in the City Council—August A. Busch has bought and obtained options on a big strip of the South Side river front and a larger tract on Second street, which he says he intends to turn into terminal yards with a storage capacity of 15,000 cars.

The land in question is bounded on the north and south by St. George and Vett streets.

In speaking of his plans, Mr. Busch said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday that a belt line, to be built around the city by the Manufacturers' Railway, will bring over his line many of the roads from the West now entering by Mill Creek Valley. He says that the proposed terminal yards will relieve the present congestion caused by the limited trackage.

"Those who are opposing the free bridge," said Mr. Busch, "give as a strong argument that even if you have another bridge you would have no terminals for it. Well, we've bought up enough land for ample terminals. If the bridge is built here on the South Side and we get our bill through St. Louis will be sure of the bridge terminals and at least one railroad to use the bridge.

Belt Line for Two Cities.

"Not only that, we intend building a belt line around St. Louis and also around East St. Louis. We have been assured that several railroads from the West and from the East are perfectly willing to get into St. Louis in other ways than that provided by the Terminal Association.

"What is to prevent the railroads from the West swinging into St. Louis around our belt line and then crossing the river on the free bridge? And what will prevent the railroads from the East striking our East Side belt line on the outskirts of East St. Louis and coming over to this side on the free bridge? The Terminal Association doesn't look so mighty after all.

"With regard to the terminal yards on this side, every railroad man knows that yards are built up by manufacturers building plants near them. That was what built up the Mill Creek Valley. Now we have received bunches of letters from prominent manufacturers inquiring into the prospects of the railway and saying that they would like to place their factories along our route.

"The American Car and Foundry Co. has just obtained a franchise from the city to build a $1,500,000 plant right at the north end of the river front which we are going to turn into terminal yards. That's an official index of the movement south already.

Mile of River Front.

"The property along the river front we have bought or secured options on is about one mile long and half of it is about 800 feet wide and the rest is about 200 feet wide. On Second street on either side of the route of the Manufacturers' Railway we have another mile strip. The width varies irregularly and in some places we have not yet bought the property. It will average about a city block in width.

"The north end of the river front strip adjoining the site of the car company's plant, the ground for which will be broken this summer, is now being laid out with tracks. John J. Baulch, formerly traffic manager for the Terminal Association, is superintending the work.

"Mr. Baulch estimates that the yards will have a storage capacity of 15,000 cars. You can readily see how this will relieve the present congestion. He has also figured out that 15 industries as large as the American Car and Foundry Co. could be accommodated with yard room for their cars. This would mean 30 or 40 of the average sized factories."

Getting Along.

Fighter Is Fined $200.

For breaking two of Fred Steinman's ribs and otherwise injuring him in a fight that originated in a quarrel between his father and Steinman, Charles Bierks was fined $200 in the Dayton Street Police Court Thursday. The case was appealed.

CONFESSES SHE KILLED GUEST WHO LOVED HER

any and everything that belongs to me, Frank L. Phelps, for I so dearly love her. She does not know it, but she was the only friend I ever had, and the only woman I ever loved in my life. I cannot get her so I am ready to die. I have nothing to live for now, no more. I am feeling too bad to write good.

"Blame no one for this but me, Frank. This lady is my best and only friend. Just why I love her so I can not tell but I do. My love for her is so great I can not bear the pain any longer. If I could only ask her to die with me, but O God, I can not. If she will just let me die in her arms I will die a happy man. I do not blame her for nothing because she does not know this. Anyway a better child never lived. God knows I love her. I know I am a fool but I can't help it. I know she is as true as steel to her husband.

"God bless her and him. Only hold me in your arms and let me die easy. I know you will forgive me. Be a good girl. O God, don't let no man love you as I have done for he would do the same as I have done. No one man can stand to love you like I have. He will surely die for you, for you won't throw your husband down for nobody."

Often Told of His Love.

The woman said Phelps confessed his love for her about a year ago, and because she would not listen to his importunities, he almost constantly talked about taking his own life. But he did not want to die alone, she said, demanding that she accompany him into the other world.

Phelps had her write several letters, explaining that he intended to commit suicide and that she would do the same, she asserts, but she had no idea he would carry out his threat and executed the communications to the world more to humor him than anything.

She says that when she declined to run away with him he insisted that they agree to end their lives together, and to ease his mind she entered into this compact.

For this reason, and no other, she told the chief, she inserted in the note the fact that she was to die with Phelps, but she did not mean to do so. Her victim referred to that compact when he asked her if she was going to do it now, she declared.

Her husband, W. C. Arnold, was taken to the Chief's room in the presence of his wife, and was told what she had confessed. The man staggered and nearly fell, his face blanched and he trembled violently.

"I can' believe it, I can't believe it," he murmured and was led from the room.

Tragedy in a Flat.

The flat where the shooting occurred is over a store at 806 Market street. Stairs in a narrow alleyway lead to the second floor. The door from the stairs leads into the parlor. Back of the parlor is a bedroom and back of that a kitchen. In the rear of the kitchen was a storeroom, which Phelps had been allowed to use as sleeping quarters. In here his body was found by the police. The doors were not on a line, and it was impossible to see from the parlor into Phelps' room.

The case was reported as suicide when it happened, and not until Thursday morning was an investigation into Phelps' death begun. The starting clew was one sentence in the letter—"If she would only die with me—if I could only get her to take a drink." This suggested that he had attempted to kill her. Perhaps the two had been in a suicide compact.

Before Mrs. Arnold confessed, both her husband and Mrs. Langdon made statements in which they insisted Phelps shot himself.

Arnold said: "If there is anyhting queer about this case, I don't know what it is. I was in the front room with Mrs. Langdon. My wife had been there. I don't believe she had time to get back to the room where Phelps was by the time the shot was fired.

"What there could have been between them, I do not know. He was an old man and was sick most of the time. He was a poor man that I had acted the part of Good Samaritan to. I took him in because he had no home or friends."

Mrs. Langdon said to a Post-Dispatch reporter at her home:

"I was sitting in the front room with Mr. Arnold, who was entertaining me with his graphophone, and I could look through the open door of the bedroom to the kitchen, where I could see Mrs. Arnold's skirts as she stood at the stove cooking supper. I heard a noise, which I thought was a firecracker in Market street. The dog jumped up to the window to look out and Mr. Arnold remarked that the dog was very attentive. Mrs. Arnold then came running through the bedroom screaming and calling: 'Papa, papa, Frank has shot himself. Get the doctor, quick!' I am positive she was in the kitchen when the shot was fired."

FAMILY HAS MAN FINED.

John Anthoni, a jeweler of 910 South Sarah street, was fined $10 in the City Hall Police Court Thursday for disturbing the peace of his wife, a son and a pretty 16-year-old daughter. The family appeared in court.

Anthoni is also a member of a band. His wife said that Wednesday night he came home after taking part in a musical entertainment and created a disturbance which led her to call the police. Anthoni admitted that he was drinking and that he might have become too boisterous. The fine was stayed during good behavior.

Burglar, Pursued, Escapes.

A burglar who attempted to get into the residence of John Francis, 156 Victor street, was pursued several blocks Wednesday night by Herman Kemker of 154 Victor street, but the thief escaped. Mrs. Francis was awakened when the burglar pried the shutter of the kitchen window. She gave an alarm and Kemker ran out of his house in time to see the burglar running.

Jostled, Loses His Watch.

When William A. Kenzie of 2838 South Seventh street alighted from a Broadway car at Madison street Wednesday night, he was jostled by two negroes who were in the act of boarding the car. Later McKenzie discovered that his watch and chain were missing.

WANTS SEATS FOR GIRLS IN STORES

City Attorney T. L. Anderson Frames Ordinance, Which He Sends to Cramer.

City Attorney Thomas L. Anderson has framed an ordinance which he has forwarded to Councilman F. Ernest Cramer for introduction in the City Council, providing for the furnishing of benches and stools in stores where women are employed. A copy of the proposed ordinance, with a letter stating his reasons for framing it, were mailed to Mr. Cramer Thursday by Mr. Anderson.

In his letter, Mr. Anderson says that it is common knowledge that women in stores are compelled to stand during the time they are on duty, whether they are waiting upon customers or not and that he has been informed by reputable physicians that this practice is detrimental to their health.

He says that there can be no objection to the passing of the ordinance, except a mercenary one, "which should certainly not be considered when health is in question." The ordinance follows:

"It shall be the duty of all employers of females in any mercantile business or occupation to provide and maintain suitable seats for the use of such female employes at or beside the counter or work bench where employed, and to permit the use of such seats by employes to such an extent as may be reasonable for the preservation of their health; and any violation of this section by any employer shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not less than $50 nor more than $500."

SEGREGATION CURE FOR DEGENERATES

Gotham Charity Officer Says State Should Take Charge of Them.

NEW YORK, June 21.—There is no reason why society should not relieve itself of the burden of mental and physical degenerates in two or three generations, according to Alex. Johnson, secretary of the National Conference of Charity and Corrections. This can be accomplished very easily, Mr. Johnson told the school of philanthrophy yesterday, simply by segregating these individuals.

"They should be educated to the fullest extent possible," he said, "and it is astonishing what can be done with a feeble-minded child it it is taught young. They should be taken into the care of the State from childhood until death and thereby the State will be serving not only its own best interests, but of the defective individual. I don't like paternalism in government, but we can't have too much maternalism."

Although Mr. Johnson believes in eliminating back stock he thinks that the idea of heredity has been greatly overworked and that environment is a matter of infinitely more important.

"I would rather be born in the worst slum of the worst parents that ever were," he said, "and be removed to a satisfactory environment at birth than be born under the best possible conditions and then be removed to a bad environment. Heredity is a powerful factor, and we need never be surprised at anything it does.

"Yet this influence is slight compared with that of environment and much that passes as hereditary is really the result of environment."

Mr. Johnson expressed the opinion that Guiteau and probably Czolgosz were degenerates and ought to have been sent to insane asylums instead of being executed.

Operate Your Hot Water System This Summer

You Can With Ease and Comfort

Plenty of hot water is as great a home convenience as any one could wish for. Nothing can illustrate this fact more plainly than the time when the weather becomes so warm and compels you to shut down the furnace and coal range, which at the same time stops the operation of your hot water system.

To enable you to use your hot water system in the summer as well as the winter, the gas water heater was invented.

This appliance you can use in connection with your old system or entirely independent of it. The gas needs to burn only when hot water is wanted.

You can secure hot water, and more of it, quicker, easier and cheaper with a gas water heater. Order this appliance now.

OLD BOREAS WAS DAN CUPID'S AID

Headgear Blew Off Young Man's Head and Landed in Girl's Lap.

SAVED HAT, LOST HEART

Acquaintance Thus Formed Caused Man to Go to Church Regularly.

'Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good. —Old Saying.

A stiff breeze plucked the straw hat from William C. Kallemeier's head, sailed it through the air for a space and then landed it in the lap of Miss Addie Brinkmann. As a consequence they were married Wednesday, the first anniversary of the momentous incident.

The pair happened to be on a boat excursion June 20, 1905. They had met once or twice before at social functions, but the acquaintanceship was of the bowing order only. Kallemeier was with a party of friends and Miss Brinkmann was with her mother, sitting on the deck a considerable distance behind the young man. Then off went his head piece.

Kallemeier, somewhat embarrassed, approached the blushing girl, and recovered his hat. Then he sat down beside her and talked about it—and other things—and when he left her that evening he was wondering why he had never noticed her wonderful attractiveness before.

Miss Brinkmann was first soprano at the Bethel English Church and from the time of the excursion Kallemeier began developing remarkable religious tendencies. He never missed a service at Bethel Church and people started to take notice that Miss Brinkmann was never without an escort, who was always Kallemeier.

Both Were Quite Young.

He not only prayed in church, but he prayed to Miss Brinkmann for her hand and his prayer was answered. They confided their pretty love affair to her family and suffered a severe setback, for her relatives insisted that the girl was entirely too young to think of marrying anybody.

Kallemeier's aunt, with whom he lives at 1428 North Fourteenth street, also opposed the match because of her nephew's youth—he was barely 21—but the sweethearts persisted and finally won the day.

They recalled the incident that had brought them together and decided that no more appropriate wedding day could be selected than the anniversary of that occasion, so they were married Wednesday at the Bethel Church by Rev. T. L. Mueller in the presence of near relatives.

The happy pair left immediately after the ceremony for Waterloo, Ala., where they will remain until July 1, when they will take up their new life in a new home at 3319 North Nineteenth street.

GERMANY WARNED OF TARIFF WAR

Secretary Tells Manufacturers to Prepare for Battle With the United States.

BERLIN, June 21.—At a meeting of the Central Association of German Manufacturers, embracing most of the great manufacturers' organizations of the country, held at Nuremberg yesterday, the general secretary, Herr Bueck, referring to the trade arrangements with the United States, said the association supported the temporary extension of the treaty duties to the United States because German industry at this moment was not sufficiently prepared for a tariff war with the United States.

A continuance of the situation created by the temporary arrangement, however, would be irreconcilable either with the economic interests or dignity of the German Empire. The general secretary felt it necessary therefore to warn German industry to prepare in good time for a tariff war which would be unavoidable if the United States thinks it can continue treating German goods unfairly.

JURY CONVICTS WILLIAMS

Mother's Acceptance of Responsibility Had Little Weight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Ind., June 21.—The jury in the case of Andrew Williams, charged with shooting Marshal Williams, convicted him of assault and battery.

The punishment assessed was a fine of $1 and five months in Jail.

His mother's testimony that she fired the shot had little weight.

WANTS SALE ANNULLED.

Woman Seeks to Recover From Kellerstrass Co.

Dora Griese filed suit in the Circuit Court against John W. Baker, John H. Crabtree and the Kellerstrass Distilling Co. for the annulment of a sale of 150 shares of the stock of the distilling company to her and the return to her of $1500 she paid for it.

According to her petition, the company increased its capital stock from $500,000 to $500,000 in September, 1902, and at the same time "swelled" the value of its assets with the assistance of Baker and Crabtree. She says the valuation of the advertising list was raised from $16,000 to $200,000, a new asset was created in the form of bonus for brands and the valuation fixed at $175,000. The valuation of the still house at Paradise, Mo., she alleges, was raised from $3000 to $25,000, that of a building at Kansas City from $8000 to $30,000 and the value of the good will was fixed at $25,000.

Fifty thousand shares were issued, which were stated to be fully paid and non-assessable, although she asserts that in fact only one-tenth was paid up. Ten thousand shares were issued to Baker and the rest to Ernest Kellerstrass.

The plaintiff says that a prospectus setting forth that the net profits of the company for a year were $50,000, and that the assets were $525,000 led her to buy the shares. She claims to have found since that the representations were incorrect.

Founder of Mill Dies.

The funeral of Thomas H. McMahon, former president of the Crescent Planing Mill Co., will be held Friday morning at St. Bridget's Church, Rev. Father Walsh officiating. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery. Mr. McMahon was 62 years old. He came to St. Louis from Alabama when a boy and became a plumber, working at that trade for many years. Three years ago he organized the Crescent Planing Mill Co. and became its president. He lived at 2637 Washington avenue. His death occurred at the Washington Unive sity Hospital Tuesday night while undergoing an operation.

Judge Cummings Hurt.

Judge Campbell Cummings of 3529 Lindell avenue is suffering from severe bruises about the face and body, received when he fell into a trench on Market street, opposite the City Hall, Wednesday. He attempted to jump across the ditch in his haste to get out of the rain and slipped and fell. He was unconscious for a short time. He was picked up by John J. Manton and taken to the Four Courts, where a physician treated his injuries.

Wrong Labels on Bottles.

Alexander Busch, proprietor of a saloon at 2001 Lucas avenue, who was indicted with his bartender, Jacob Goldgraber, and Henry Stellman of 2300 Market street, for violating the label law, has surrendered and given bond for his appearance. It is expected that the others will surrender at once. They were indicted Tuesday for putting labels on bottles containing a different kind of beer.

BURGLAR RUMOR AROUSES CABANNE

Crowd Surrounded Chandler Home, Where "Thief Was Barricaded."

POLICE WHISTLE BLOWN

When Policeman Came Up, It Was Found Cellar Was Only Locked.

The firing of a shot and the incessant blowing of a police whistle attracted a throng of Cabanne folk to the home of A. C. Chandler, 5634 Vernon avenue, at 9:45 p. m. Wednesday. A "burglar" was thought to have locked himself in the cellar of the Chandler home and was defying capture.

At 9:40 a little boy in the Chandler family rushed to the Arcade drug store, where he told the proprietor that there was a man in the cellar, and asked that the police be called. The Mounted District Station was notified and promised aid "right away."

The little boy said that some man had locked himself in the little fellow's basement playroom, and that his mother and the rest of the ladies were "scared to death."

A neighbor saw the plight of the ladies and went to the Chandler home to stay until the police arrived.

One of the ladies, frightened past telling it, happened to think of the police whistle and ran upstairs and got it, making hasty exit from the house, lest the "burglar" should suddenly decide to barricade the whole house instead of the cellar playroom. After blowing the whistle and attracting a crowd of neighbors, she turned it over to the little boy and he blew.

Night Watchman Cochran was the first man with a revolver to arrive on the scene. He went down to the cellar door and found it locked, sure enough. The ladies were sure they heard the "burglar" trying to hold the door as Cochran tried it.

Wanted More Policemen.

Cochran told them he'd stand watch at the door to see that the "burglar" didn't get out and told the neighbors to call more police to share in the glory of the "pinch."

C. Forrest Bookman of 5576 Vernon avenue, attracted by the blowing of the whistle, appeared on the scene with a revolver. There was only one cartridge in the weapon, and it was fired in the air to attract any wayfaring policeman that might be within earshot.

Meantime someone had run down to the drug store and telephoned to the Chief of Police that a "burglar" was cornered and wanted help.

Policeman Finan of the Mounted District was at Page and Belt avenue when he heard the shot.

Tearing his police manual from his left hip pocket he turned to rule 23, "First aid to burglars in case a shot is heard." The answer was, "Find the shot," so Finan proceeded to obey the manual. He ran over to the Arcade engine house and learned where the trouble was.

By this time the crowd about the Chandler residence had assumed huge proportions. Finally, Cochran, the watchman, decided he couldn't wait any longer, after a full half hour's vigil had been maintained. He broke through the door and found the cellar empty. Someone had locked the door from the inside and no one knew where the key was.

Finan came up puffing, ready to dare anything to make a good "pinch," as the crowd dispersed. Finan had his long run for nothing, but "had did his duty."

To the departing crowd it was explained that the ladies of the Chandler household had heard noises in the cellar and had sent the boy to summon help.

Double Vision Follows Shock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., June 21.—John V. Root, a Monon brakeman, whose skull was fractured by a fall from a train recently, has been removed from St. Edward's Hospital to his home. Since the accident he has suffered from distorted vision, two images of an object instead of one appearing, the optic nerves apparently making separate records on his brain. It is believed that as soon as he fully recovers from the nervous shock the faulty vision will become normal.

TOASTED CORN FLAKES

Make Him Grow

And good—well say—in Chicago two little boys had Toasted Corn Flakes for breakfast one morning about a month ago. Never had them before. Called for four helpings—four helpings each, mind you—and finally emptied the package. A little while later mother caught them out in the kitchen shaking the stray flakes out of the empty package. Won't take anything else now—positively cry when the supply is out. That's what all children think of Toasted Corn Flakes after they once taste them.

And Toasted Corn Flakes are just as beneficial as they are delicious. They supply the very elements that make bone, flesh, nerves and good blood, and that is what every child demands for rapid growth and sturdy health. Toasted Corn Flakes are made of the best white corn, scientifically cooked, flaked and toasted. They digest easily—assimilate rapidly. Give the children Toasted Corn Flakes for breakfast tomorrow morning and they will not crave foods that are harmful. Ask the grocer. A large package for ten cents.

COOK VERDICT IS CONDEMNED IN COLUMBIA

Bankers, Professional Men, Merchants and Officials Unite in Saying That the Evidence Proved That the Post-Dispatch Publication Was Justified.

WIDESPREAD EXPRESSION OF WONDER AT FINDING

Motion for New Trial Presents 19 Reasons for Setting Aside the Verdict Reached by Ten of the Twelve Jurors in Favor of the Former Secretary of State.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 21.—Every banker, every lawyer, every prominent business man and representative citzen in every walk of life is unsparing in his exception to the verdict for $50,000 rendered agianst the Post-Dispatch yesterday by 10 jurors in favor of former Secretary of State Sam B. Cook.

Almost universally the declaration is made that the Post-Dispatch proved beyond peradventure of doubt that its editorial comment on the Salmon Bank disaster was wholly justifiable and distinctly in the interest of the public service.

With one voice Columbia citizens urge the Post-Dispatch to keep up the fight until the question of this right of a public journal to direct attention to a negligent public official is settled right.

Following are some of the expressions of prominent citizens here in regard to the verdict:

TURNER McBAINE, president of Exchange National Bank: The Post-Dispatch was treated unfairly, but it can rest assured of one thing, a just cause never lost in the long run.

S. H. LICHTENSTEIN, clothing merchant: Mr. Cook shouldn't have had a cent.

E. F. AMMERMAN, local manager Pacific Express Co.: To say that I was surprised by the verdict is putting it mild. Surely I thought the Post-Dispatch had proved the truth of the article it published concerning Cook's administration in reference to the Salmon Bank case.

HENRY WISE, prominent grocer: Mr. Cook simply got $50,000 for neglecting his duty. I would never have voted him 1 cent.

ROBERT CONLEY, prominent lawyer: I heard all the evidence, and if I had been a member of the jury I should have voted unhesitatingly for a verdict in favor of the Post-Dispatch.

GEORGE CRIST, contractor: Mr. Cook was guilty of neglect of duty in a public office, and this verdict puts a premium on such neglect. He should be criticised rather than rewarded. I think he was as guilty as his examiner, Bunce. Certainly I do not agree with the verdict of the jury.

H. D. MURRY, local counsel for defendant in Cook damage suit: No such unreasonable verdict was ever rendered by a jury in Boone County.

H. H. TANDY, member of the Board of Public Works: Holding the Post-Dispatch guilty of libeling Mr. Cook seems to be the greatest outrage that has ever been perpetrated in Boone County. I would not have given him 50 cents.

D. A. ROBINETTE, prominent furniture merchant: The records of Mr. Cook's office showed that he had been guilty of neglect of duty. This was brought out in the trial beyond any question. If a newspaper has not the right to criticize a public official, when he has neglected his duty, and especially as important a duty as that of bank examination, then what in the world has it a right to criticize.

JOHN S. BICKNELL, City Clerk: I heard the evidence in the Cook case and am convinced that the verdict should have been for the Post-Dispatch. The case was won on Mr. Cook's personality. It was proved that Bunce was guilty of gross neglect or incompetency and it seems to me that Mr. Cook is to blame for his failure to find out the real condition of the Salmon bank. The Post-Dispatch had far and away the better of the evidence. I am not in favor, and never will be, of muzzling the press. The press has led in reforms of all sorts and this thing of "soaking" a newspaper for comment on a public official does not appeal to me.

C. B. SEBASTIAN, lawyer: The verdict was an outrage. Mr. Cook was not entitled to damages.

JUROR WILLIAM COCHRAN: If I had any doubt as to the correctness of my position in refusing to assess a fine against the Post-Dispatch because of it's fearless exposure of the Salmon bank rottenness, it has been utterly dispelled by the praise I have received from the citizens of Columbia for refusing to subscribe to such an outrageous verdict.

ROY NEWMAN, hardware merchant: It looks as if that jury wanted to muzzle the press as Russia does. The verdict would seem to indicate that every newspaper in America ought to have a censor placed over it. Mr. Cook didn't deserve to win. He shouldn't have had a cent.

JAS. E. BOGS, Circuit Clerk elect: The Post-Dispatch had the better of the evidence.

EDWARD ROLLINS, well-known capitalist, and son of James S. Rollins, who founded the Missouri State University: The verdict simply astounded me. The Post-Dispatch is a great newspaper.

W. B. KAELLIHER: The verdict was appalling. I don't believe the Post-Dispatch should have been mulcted for its criticism of Mr. Cook when it is shown that he has neglected the duties of his office.

J. C. GILLESPY, former Legislative representative from Boone County: It is a mystery to me how the jury reached a verdict in behalf of the plaintiff.

DR. J. B. COLE: After I heard the evidence in the case, showing Mr. Cook's record in the office, and especially after Gen. Crow's address to the jury, I couldn't understand how Mr. Cook had the nerve to bring suit against the Post-Dispatch.

L. N. DEFOE, Professor of Mechanics and Engineering, State University: I thought the Post-Dispatch made an excellent presentation of its record in the Salmon Bank case. It appears to me the verdict should have been for the defendant.

J. W. WALTER, photographer: I did not hear the testimony, but from the accounts of the trial that reached me I was surprised that a verdict should have been returned for the defendant.

W. H. THOMPSON, chairman of the Boone County Democratic Central Committee, sent the following telegram today to Mr. Cook at Jefferson City: "I rejoice with you and Mrs. Cook in the vindication of your good name." W. H. Thompson is a nephew of Joseph H. Thompson, a member of the jury, who voted to make the judgment for Cook $100,000 instead of $50,000.

ATTORNEY EDWIN SILVER, who represented the plaintiff, said: "We are entirely satisfied, but I didn't expect a verdict for more than $20,000. Of course we thought we were entitled to $100,000."

FORMER SENATOR BEN ANDERSON: "I thought a verdict would be rendered against the Post-Dispatch, but I had no idea the judgment rendered would be so large."

MOSS P. PARKER, Coroner of Boone County: The verdict surprised me greatly. From the reports that I got of the trial from others, and the evidence that I heard myself, I don't see how Mr. Cook won. I should not have voted to give him anything.

THOMAS McHARG, furniture dealer: The verdict was outrageous. I think that instead of having $50,000 handed to him, Mr. Cook ought to be required to pay back some of the money that the Henry County people lost in the failure of the Salmon Bank. If the failure had occurred in Boone County he wouldn't have been given a cent, I am confident. I heard most of the evidence, and to say that I was surprised at the verdict would be putting it mildly.

ED CHANDLER, proprietor livery stable: I think Mr. Cook got just $50,000 more than he deserved. I have always considered him a gentleman, but was sure after the evidence in the case that he had neglected the duties of his office.

BERNARD C. HUNT, assistant cashier of the Columbia Savings Bank: The verdict was out of all reason. Mr. Cook was shown to be guilty of neglect of duty and I wouldn't have voted to give him a cent. Jurors Cochran and Dodd, who refused to approve the verdict did the right thing. The Post-Dispatch should carry this case into the higher courts, and I don't believe that Mr. Cook will be able to collect 10 cents on the dollar. The evidence showed that his administration of the office of Secretary of State was loose. I wouldn't have had the evidence come out against me that did against Mr. Cook for the size of the verdict.

REV. M. L. THOMAS, pastor of Columbia Baptist Church: From my understanding of the testimony, I expected the jury to decide in favor of the Post-Dispatch. That ten of the jurors refused to believe the plaintiff guilty of neglect of duty is indeed a great surprise to me.

MARSHALL GORDON, president of the Columbia Dairy Co., and director in the Boone County National Bank: I am astounded at the verdict. If I had been a member of the jury, Mr. Cook would not have been awarded a penny. I heard most of the evidence and I am frank to say that in my judgment it convicted the plaintiff of neglect of duty in failing to discover the condition of the Salmon Bank. What more was needed? The Post-Dispatch's comment on the Salmon Bank failure was not severe or unreasonable. It had a right to ask why the depositors had not been protected by the Secretary of State's office. If we are going to stifle the free and untrammeled criticism of newspapers in respect to the public conduct of public officials, the voice of honesty in our public affairs will be forever suppressed.

IRVIN VIVION, prominent farmer and stockman: The verdict was unjust. Mr. Cook didn't deserve a cent. There is no doubt he was negligent in office.

WILL JOHNSON, farmer: Mr. Cook wasn't entitled to 25 cents. The evidence proved it.

REV. W. W. ELWAND, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church: In a school community like Columbia the verdict was appalling. It strikes at the right of the press of the nation to comment on public men and events. Why, if that verdict were pushed to its logical conclusion it would mean that almost every paper in the State has at one time or another been guilty of libel, and has laid itself open to a suit for damages.

A Blow to the Freedom of the Press.

CARL CROW, manager of the Columbia Herald, sayss

"The verdict is a blow at the freedom of the press. It seemed to me, and practically every man in Columbia with whom I discussed the case, that the Post-Dispatch had made out a perfect defense. Several of our most prominent citizens called at the Herald office today to voice their indignation over what they considered gross unfairness to a great public-spirited ourjnal.

"If the Post-Dispatch was guilty of libel, very few papers are innocent of it, and every paper to escape damage suits must forego any criticism of public officials. Had the verdict been reached by popular vote of Columbia citizens who attended the trial, it would have been 5 to 1 in favor of defendant."

Motion for New Trial.

If Circuit Judge Hinton grants the motions filed by the attorneys for the defendant today a new trial will be ordered.

A new trial will be asked on the following grounds:

Comes now the defendant and moves the Court to set aside the verdict and judgment heretofore rendered herein, and grant defendant a new trial of the issues herein joined and for reason of its motion defendant says:

1. The verdict and judgment are against the law.

2. The verdict and judgment are against the evidence and the weight of the evidence.

3. The verdict and judgment are against the law and the evidence.

4. The Court erred in refusing legal and proper instructions offered by defendant.

5. The Court erred in giving illegal and improper instructions offered by the plaintiff, towit, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18.

6. The Court erred in modifying instructions offered on behalf of defendant and in giving said instructions in a modified form.

7. The Court erred in giving illegal and improper instructions of its own motion.

8. The instructions given by the Court are contradictory, confusing and misleading.

9. The Court erred in excluding, on objection of plaintiff, competent, relevant and material evidence offered by defendant.

10. The Court erred in admitting, over the objections of the defendant, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial evidence offered in behalf of plaintiff.

11. The Court erred in refusing the demurrer to the evidence offered at the close of plaintiff's case.

12. The Court erred in refusing the demurrer to the evidence offered at the close of all the evidence.

13. The Court erred in refusing to give defendant a trial upon the issues made in the plea to the jurisdiction of the Court, which is set out in its answer.

14. The rulings of the Court upon the question of jurisdiction is in conflict with the constitution of this State, and with the constitution of the United States in denying to the defendant corporation the equal protection of the laws.

15. The verdict herein is excessive.

16. The verdict herein indicates prejudice and passion on the part of the jurors.

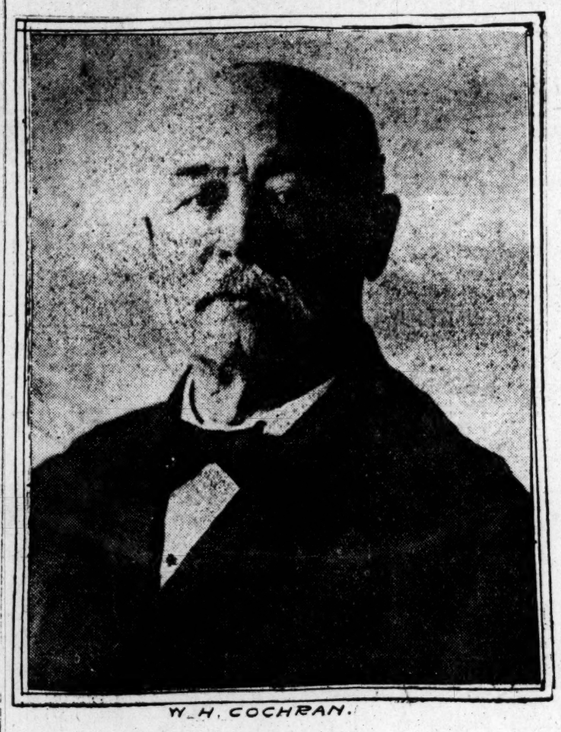

17. The instructions given by the Court at the request of plaintiff are violative of the State constitution in denying to defendant the right of free criticism and comment upon the admitted public acts of public officials.

18. The instructions given in behalf of plaintiff are erroneous in requiring defendant to prove that plaintiff's admitted dereliction of duty as a public officer was due to sinister or corrupt motives.

19. The instructions given in behalf of plaintiff are erroneous in that they tell the jury that plaintiff is not responsible for the negligence of his subordinates in office unless he had notice or knowledge thereof.

S. C. HUNT, Vice-President of the Boone County Trust Co.—The verdict was a great surprise to me. Though I am personally friendly to Mr. Cook, I don't believe he was entitled to a penny's damages. The evidence showed conclusively that the Salmon Bank had long been in a rotten condition. Mr. Bunce, who examined the bank, was shown to be incompetent and Mr. Cook was resposible for Mr. Bunce. I believe a newspaper has the right of criticism of the conduct of a public official and that the Post-Dispatch was justified in its criticism of the Secretary of State. This verdict means that if President Roosevelt cared to sue for libel every paper that has criticised his administration he might collect thousands of dollars from the Democratic press of the country. It means that the country press might be held liable to the extent of thousands. It means that the newspapers of this country must eventually cut everything out of their columns but the society notes and the funny page.

JUROR IN THE COOK SUIT WHO DECLARES VERDICT UNWARRANTED

W. H. COCHRAN.

POLICE AWAIT PREACHER WHO ABDUCTED GIRL

Claim Chicago Pastor Is Guarding His Daughter at Centralia, Ill.

WARRANTS ARE ISSUED

Thwarted Suitor Advised to Obtain Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Grace Monroe, the 18-year-old beauty who was abducted by her father, Rev. Alexander Monroe, has been located in Centralia, Ill., where her father is still guarding her, and where, it is alleged, he is trying to make her marry a young dentist of that place.

William Leiferman, who says he is the accepted suitor of the girl, appealed to the police for assistance. He was told that a habeas corpus proceeding offered the best solution of the trouble. Meantime two constables are camping in the shadow of the parsonage in Chicago Lawn, with warrants for the fighting parson.

Miss Monroe has been removed from her position as teacher and pianist in the Sunday School because of "unenviable notoriety." She was given permission to attend church.

GIRL HELD ON FARM; DEFIES HER CAPTORS.

CENTRALIA, Ill., June 21.—Miss Grace Monroe, the pretty young minister's daughter who was removed from her home at Chicago Lawn early Tuesday, was brought direct to this city by her father, the Rev. Alexander Monroe and James Shanklin.

When the party arrived here they were met by a closed cab and were immediately driven to the home of young Shanklin's mother, where they remained over night.

When the details of the manner in which the young lady was forced to come here became known this morning, her captors were somewhat disconcerted, and her father lost no time in spiriting her away to his farm north of this city, where, according to young Shanklin, she will be detained until she gets over her infatuation for her young lover, William Leiferman.

The girl asserts that he laughs best who laughs last, and maintains that she will yet marry young Leiferman in spite of the strenuous efforts of her father to separate them.

James Shanklin, the young dentist, who assisted the Rev. Alexander Monroe in "kidnaping" his daughter, disclaims any desire to marry the girl, and claims that he was actuated to take the part he did merely through his friendship for the family and at the urgent request of Mr. Monroe, who was anxious to get the girl away from what he called the hypnotic influence of young Leiferman.

The movements of the pastor and his daughter have been conducted with great secrecy, and while their ostensible destination this morning was the farm, young Shanklin, who has resumed his work in the dentist office, disclaims any knowledge of their whereabouts. No serious trouble is anticipated from Leiferman.

OKLAHOMA CELEBRATES ADMISSION

Ten Thousand Persons Attend Statehood Festivities in Oklahoma City.

LONG LIST OF SPEAKERS

All Candidates for State Offices Allowed Five Minutes to Speak.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA, O. T., June 21.—The first formal jollification over the passage of the statehood bill to, be held in Oklahoma, is in progress here today, attended by at least ten thousand residents of both territories.

Gov. E. W. Hoch of Kansas, accompanied by Gov. Frank Frantz of Oklahoma, arrived at 12 o'clock today. They were met at the train by a crowd of ex-Kansans for Gov. Hoch and a citizen's committee on reception with automobiles, tallyhos, carriages and other conveyances.

After parading the city and partaking of an informal luncheon at the Indianhoma Club the march to the speaking grounds was resumed.

Wheeler Park, where the speaking took place, is one of the prettiest plats in the country, and it is estimated fifteen thousand persons were on the ground.

After addresses of welcome by Mayor Messenbaugh, President I. M. Holcomb of the Chamber of Commerce and representative business men, Gov. Frantz introduced Gov. Hoch, the principal speaker of the day, whose address was a congratulatory expression to the people of the Territory upon their admission to the union.

Every candidate and everybody who may become one, was invited to make a five-minute talk after the principal addresses.

All business houses and banks closed their doors at noon in order to permit their employes to participate in the festivities.

The display of fireworks tonight, costing $1500, will be the most brilliant ever seen in the Southwest.

Special invitations were sent to every Mayor, all the commercial clubs and every city and town officer of the two territories, and nearly every such city or town sent some special representative.

Telegrams were received from Govs. Folk of Missouri and Lanham of Texas conveying regrets.

GOV. PATTISON BURIED.

Ohio's Late Executive Laid to Rest at Milford.

MILFORD, O., June 21.—After a simple funeral service attended by high state officials, party associates and friends from all parts of the country the body of John M. Pattison, late Governor of Ohio, was this afternoon consigned to the grave, his family alone being present at the grave.

Judson Harmon of Cincinnati, attorney-general in President Cleveland's Cabinet and a life-long friend, spoke on the political life of Gov. Pattison.

Bishop Henry Spellmeyer of Cincinnati delivered the funeral sermon. The interment was in Greenlawn Cemetery.

PASTOR SUES BISHOP HENDRIX FOR $25,000

Claims He Was Assigned by Conference Without His Consent.

TRIAL AT KENNETT, MO.

Prominent Missouri Ministers Are Witnesses in Rev. Osbron's Suit.

KENNETT, Mo., Jue 21.—The trial of Rev. A. T. Osbron's suit for $25,000 damages against Bishop Eugene R. Hendrix opened here today before James L. Fort.

The plaintiff was a member of the St. Louis annual conference of the M. E. Church, South, and was stationed last year at Jackson, in the Charleston District. He left his charge about seven months before the end of the conference year without the consent of Bishop Hendrix of Kansas City, who was at that time in charge of the St. Louis conference.

On Sept. 23 last the St. Louis annual conference, in session at Carruthersville, Mo., assigned Rev. Osbron without his request, and he claims that the proceedings of the presiding Bishop on that occasion were seriously detrimental to him. After the conference adjourned he filed suit against the Bishop. The case was transferred to Kennett on a change of venue.

Dr. W. F. McMurry, pastor of the Centenary Church, St. Louis; Dr. William B. North, pastor of the Clayton Church; Rev. M. T. Haw, secretary of the St. Louis conference; Rev. H. P. Crow, presiding elder of the Charleston District, and other distinguished Missouri ministers are among the witnesses.

Will the President's gold pen or his eagle pen put anybody in the Penitentiary?

There might be considerable less hell in our success, much as it pleases such statesmen as Uncle Joe Cannon.

It is hoped that Providence will defend the people of Missouri from public officers who fail to do their duty. Publicity is costly.

WHAT SORT OF A "SUCCESS"?

The returns on growth in manufacturing establishments the Census Bureau has tabulated for use this Summer and Fall are intended to support the Dingley system as something the country can afford to "stand pat" upon.

The recent dinner party in Washington at which the totals were read to the guests was clearly part of this purpose. With Speaker Cannon and other "stand-patters" present, a preliminary test of the totals was made at the dinner table before trying them on the public. Evidently they were adjusted through such processes as this for the purposes of a stand-pat campaign in support of Dingley monopolies. Evidently they are now satisfactory as they stand to all who are satisfied with monopoly as it stands. The verdict of Speaker Cannon is that the showing is "a —— of a success."

At least he is reported as saying after hearing the totals that "the country is a —— of a success," by which characteristic utterance he means not the country but the Dingley system as thus represented statistically. So the country must take the totals as he has passed this judgment on them and see for itself what he thus indorses as representing metaphorically the maximum of the infernally successful.

On the totals as they come from the Census Bureau with this indorsement, we have an increase of 5.4 per cent in the total number of manufacturing establishments in five years. Five and four-tenths per cent in five years is a little over one per cent a year.

The percentage of increase in the number of salaried officers, however, is nearly eight times as great. They have increased 41.3 per cent. Their total salaries including all rakeoffs and perquisites for "insiders" have increased at the astonishing rate of 51.2 per cent, while there has been an increase of only 16.3 per cent in the number of workers employed as operatives.

The total increase of salaries, "etc.," is reported in percentages as 19 per cent higher than the percentage increase claimed for wages. "Miscellaneous expenses," the kind trust officials may manipulate to show why they cannot increase wages or dividends or lower prices to the public, have increased 63 per cent.

All these increases are charged against the consumer. What he gets in return, according to Messrs. McKinley, Blaine, Harrison and Dingley, is "an increasing home market"—a larger number of factories in his neighborhood at which he can sell his "produce"—his garden stuff and his raw material.

The showing on this is a beggarly 5 per cent in five years, with a fraction thrown in for consolation. As a matter of fact a reliable showing would probably exhibit a 5 per cent decrease in the number of factories rather than an increase of any kind.

It is notorious that the method of Dingley monopoly is to close down factories already established rather than to establish new ones. It is notorious that this has been going on all over the country and that the "home market" of the West especially has suffered enormously from it.

When with his 50 per cent increase in official salaries Speaker Cannon indorses with a blank the success of a 5 per cent increase claimed for the number of factories established under the Dingley monopoly system in five years, he will have a surprising number of people to agree with him that there may be something essentially subterranean and politely expressible only by a dash in a success of this kind.

The number of births in London is enormous, but 100,000 children die there every year from neglect. Increasing birth rates with such conditions can hardly be approved, even by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

A JUDICIAL REFORM.

Under a constitutional amendment recently adopted by the people of New York State, 14 additional justices of the Supreme Court will be elected in November.

The lawyers have taken up the matter and have appointed a committee which will place in the field an entire judicial ticket, to be nominated by petition. They will have nothing to do with political organizations or committees. The design is to secure the selection of fit men who are not under obligations to party.

It is a good example to follow. There is no reason in common sense or political expediency why judicial offices in Missouri should be awarded as prizes for political services or as opportunities for unfit men to qualify themselves for "big practice" later on. Judges should be not only above reproach. They should be beyond the power of reproach to reach them. Only by maintaining a character of purity can the popular confidence in the courts be maintained.

This is a worthy work for the bar associations of the State. The nominations for all judges—Circuit, Appeals and Supreme—can be practically taken from the party conventions if the lawyers will adopt some such method as that in New York. It will not require a crusade to induce conventions to accept the nominees of these petitions. It is possible that partisanship can be entirely eliminated by agreements like those which regulate the nominations of candidates for the School Board in St. Louis.

Such a reform would strengthen the bench and raise the character of the courts. Objections to it, there are none, except those which may occur to the minds of men whose interest it is to have political and partial judges on the bench.

It is difficult to find any reasonable basis for the Mayor's refusal to let Forest Park be used for a popular Independence Day celebration. Fireworks under proper direction are less objectionable in the park than anywhere else. It is a good thing to have the fireworks concentrated and handled so that they will offer the least danger and annoyance. Certainly the park should be open to the people for a celebration of the Fourth.

THE COOK VERDICT.

The people of Missouri are even more deeply concerned in the verdict of the Cook case than the Post-Dispatch. This newspaper is the immediate sufferer, but the verdict has a far-reaching significance for the public. It touches the policy of publicity which is the bulwark of popular defense against political injustice, official wrong-doing and social corruption.

The facts concerning the insolvency of the Salmon Bank at Clinton and the negligence of the Secretary of State's office, upon which the Post-Dispatch based its comment, were clearly established in the evidence submitted to the jury. It was proved that the bank was insolvent for years, but through the failure of the Secretary of State's office to take proper action, continued to do business and thus involved in ruin 1400 innocent depositors. The facts were admitted in the trial and Mr. Cook pleaded ignorance as a defense. His subordinate, Mr. Bunce, confessed on the witness stand to negligence and incompetence. The testimony conclusively showed that the Salmon Bank was protected in its improper methods by the incompetence and negligence of the Secretary of State's office, but the jury not only refused to hold the public officer responsible for these conditions, but heavily penalized a newspaper for directing public attention to them and for criticising the conduct of the office which brought about such tragic results. The Post-Dispatch was punished, as Mr. John L. Dodd, one of the dissenting jurors said in protesting against the verdict, for its "great public service in calling attention to the Salmon Bank failure," and "for its fidelity to the public."

This verdict places a premium on official negligence and incompetence and a penalty on public criticism of official negligence and incompetence. As Mr. W. H. Cockran, another dissenting juror, well said, "it muzzles the press in the free exercise of the right to criticize public officials * * * it is a blow at the freedom of the press"—free publicity and comment in the interest of the public. It should be borne in mind that the restraining effect of this verdict is not directed to the press alone, but to individual citizens who are warned thereby that it is dangerous to criticize the official conduct of their own public servants. The verdict raises an issue of the deepest import to the people of the State.

The sickening of 50 carniverous editors from eating ham and chicken sandwiches will be spread with telling effect in all the vegetarian tracts.

THE PLACE TO BEGIN.

"American colleges today," said Prof. William G. Hale of the University of Chicago to the students, "nourish loafers and develop idlers. Students are allowed too free a rein in scholastic work and are permitted to encourage a new conception of the university as a place of social and athletic activities, placing 'fun' above study."

If there were not so many reckless talkers in the universities the students might not harbor such a conception.

The reticence of nature is overlaid by a puffing volubility, the reserve of self-respect is known too much by rumor and report, the dignity of responsible position is unobserved in the mad glare of the limelight.

A man whose vocabulary is commonplace will not command a hearing among thoughtful people. And a university professor who expresses his ideas in the language habitually employed in cheap boarding houses will not help students to attain high ideals.

Whether or not the universities nourish loafers and develop idlers need not be discussed. But one thing is certain. If the men who are instrusted with the training of young men and women have themselves no distinction of style or elevation of thought, young persons will not be enriched morally and intellectually by their instruction and example. If American colleges need reformation, Prof. Hale's elegant vocabulary invites attention to the best place to begin.

CHILDREN AND PUBLIC STREETS.

From the New York World.

In a general way the duties of the police with regard to public streets are to prevent obstructions and disorderly conduct and to protect always persons and property from threatened violence and crime. The ordinances against fast driving and motor speeding are direct and positive. It seems possible that stricter attention to speed ordinances would leave room for discretion in police treatment of children who must play either in the streets or nowhere in the open.

OUR CAVES.

Dr. Cyrus A. Peterson, president of the Missouri Historical Society, is conducting a desultory exploration of Cliff Cave. If your information of the cavate features of St. Louis is deficient, it may be stated that Cliff Cave is down in Congressman Bartholdt's district, with a river exposure.

Dr. Peterson has known it all his life, but as a man he believes he overlooked its possibilities as a boy. He has been down there several times this summer, usually accompanied by Dr. W. F. Parks, also an archeologist. They have gophered around in the floor of the cave to some extent, and have uncovered one old trunk lock, one irregular fragment of one beer bottle, and one pasteboard box of bones—dry, deer and bird.

Evidently the ancient cave dweller of Missouri was not the rude barbarian we had supposed. His wife had a trunk, and her liege lord had his hot bird and cold bottle. Now, if Drs. Peterson and Parks will excavate the floor at the rear and find the bones of a hired girl, we may well envy the cave dweller and lament that we had not lived in his golden age.

STORIES TOLD IN WASHINGTON

To the Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Vice-President Fairbanks came down the street this morning in his finest carriage. He met Representative Brownlow, who was walking along Fifteenth street.

"Get in, Brownlow," said the Vice-President, "and I will take you up to the Capitol."

Brownlow hopped in. They chatted until the corner of Fifteenth and F streets, where the Vice-President halted the carriage in order to go into a store. He left Brownlow in the carriage.

Two or three representatives, walking to the Capitol, came along and found Brownlow there, sitting in state.

"Hi, Brownlow," said one of them, "how about this? When did you get a turnout like that and what are you doing here?"

"Nothing," Brownlow replied. "Nothing at all; merely getting a free ride in the ice wagon."

Vivian Fagan, the same being the United States Marshal for the Southern District of Ohio, has been a Cox man in Cincinnati politics for years and years, a ward boss and all that sort of thing.

Now the Civil Service Commission is on his trail. They are examining into Fagan's record to see if he is a politician.

"I quit," said Fagan. "I pass. If, after all these years, I haven't established myself as a politician I think it is time for me to get into the high grass."

"I see by the London dispatches," said a man in the minority room of the Capitol, "that the London papers are speculating on whether President Roosevelt is the only honest man in the United States."

"I know where you can get prompt confirmation of that story," said Charles Edwards.

"Where?"

"By calling 'Main 6' on the telephone."

"Main 6," it may be remarked, is the number of the White House telephone.

The Rev. Henry Coleman of Milwaukee is greatly stirred up over the course of the Speaker in relation to the meat inspection and pure food bills. Today Speaker Cannon received the following from him:

"Though I have never, in 50 years of voting, supported the Democratic ticket, your course on the meat inspection and pure food bills turns me strongly toward the Democrats for relief.'

To this the Speaker replied:

"When I was a boy on the Wabash the maxim ascribed to Davy Crockett, 'Be sure you're right, then go ahead,' was in universal use. I commend it to you."

JOKES BY THE DEAN OF AMERICAN JOKERS

The dean of American jokers thinks up the jokes for the Yonkers (N. Y.) Statesman. He has written thousands of jokes and originated several of the 13 original jokes recently pointed out by Jerome K. Jerome and George Ade. His title to the authorship of the "Why-Did-the-Chicken-Cross-the-Road?" joke is clear as the tinkle of a silver bell. Here are some of his latest grist:

LOOKED THAT WAY.

"Now I cannot exactly tell whether you are a married man or a roller skater," said the Professor, examining the bumps on the man's head; "but from the extraordinary large size of this bump, I think you may be both."

USEFUL TREE.

Mr. Bacon: I see China has a soap tree from which is produced strong suds, which removes dirt rapidly.

Mrs. Bacon: I wonder if with a switch from the tree a mother can wash and whip a child at the same time.

PREPARING FOR SUMMER.

Patience: Is Will getting ready for summer?

Patrice: Oh, yes; he's broken off his engagement with his winter girl.

A GREAT HELP.

"Do you help your wife about the house, Sam?"

"Indeed I does, boss."

"What do you do to help her, Sam?"

"Why I keeps outer de way, boss!"

BRAINS ON THE INCREASE.

Redd: They say there are fewer people betting on the races now. Do you suppose that means money is getting scarcer?

Greene: No; it only means that brains are getting more plentiful.

CERTAINLY TOOK IT.

Redd: How did the horse take the hurdle today?

Greene: All right. He took it about 20 yards with him.

ONE ON HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Small: My husband says he never yet had a lady thank him for a seat in a horse car.

Mrs. Sharpe: Of course not. I don't suppose he ever gave a woman an opportunity to thank him for a seat.

ANTICIPATING TROUBLE.

Redd: Are we all ready to start now?

Greene: I guess so. But are your shoes all right? No holes in the soles?

"What difference does that make if we're going in the automobile?"

"Why, it makes a great difference. When you're under the machine, trying to fix it, the passers-by can see the soles of your shoes, can't they?"

STRONG BUTTER.

"What do you mean, Tommy, by bringing home this package of butter with the paper all torn?" said the boy's mother.

"Couldn't help it, mamma," replied the boy.

"Couldn't you have the grocer wrap it in a good, strong piece of paper?"

"He did, mamma; but the butter, it seems, is stronger than the paper."

Is Drinking a Sin?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is a question with me whether preachers do not do more harm than good—not that they mean to do any harm, many of them. An East St. Louis expounder complains that the wicked people of St. Louis make a hell of his burg on a Sunday. Now, drinking people generally are not wicked. They may be weak and foolish from a worldly viewpoint, but wicked, not so much so as the rich or the well-to-do. Of course, there are hoodlums among drinkers, as there are among the wealthy, but they are the exceptions.

SIDNEY AVERILL.

A Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been interested in reading an item where one man was killed and three or four others are still in a serious condition from escaping sewer gas in the rear of 3336 Wisconsin avenue on the 18th. One of those men who was a victim was a personal friend of mine, Mr. Carny, and I hope for his recovery.

It would seem to me that corporations having excavating work done, where men are putting in gas pipe and water pipe in trenches, that for very little cost a contrivance could be arranged whereby it would not be necessary for men to enter a trench to ascertain whether the gas was strong enough to overcome them or not. I would suggest that all corporations doing such work would provide their foremen with a simple contrivance that I believe would save many lives in this work. They could have a large funnel made similar to a megaphone in construction, say from 18 to 24 inches in diameter, and attached to the small end of the funnel could be a rubber tube, this rubber tube to be of sufficient length to reach the surface of the ground, and before the men entered the trench to work, say in the morning, gases having accumulated overnight, the foreman could lower this funnel into the trench with this rubber tube attached reaching the surface, which would draw such gases as might be in the trench to the surface, and they could very soon ascertain from the foul air or gases coming through, whether it was of a poisonous nature or not.

I offer this as a suggestion and believe that it would assist the saving of lives along the lines above indicated.

R. B. ANDERSON.

The Worm Turns.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read a letter in your splendid paper from one "Junius" bitterly complaining of exorbitant rents and begging the "property owners to come off their lofty pedestals and listened to reason." I read the letter through several times to find some reason to listen to, but failed to find it. I am one of the many property owners in St. Louis who did not raise rents on account of the World's Fair. And I am sure that the property owners in St. Louis as a class are just as loyal to and just as much interested in the growth and prosperity of our city as any other class of its citizens.

Junius says nothing about constantly increasing cost of materials that go into the buildings. He says nothing about the ever-increasing cost of labor required in the construction of our buildings. He is silent about increasing assessments, increasing taxes, regular and special, all of which the property owner must pay whether his property is rented or not. If Junius wishes I will rent him a good flat, in a splendid locality in every respect, with every convenience, that was never raised on account of the World's Fair, for less money than it ever rented for, and be glad to do it.

THE SELFISH SEX

Roy McCardell Gets Out of Bed on the Wrong Side and Registers a Terrific Kick Against Womankind in General.

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell.

MAN'S inhumanity to man, dearly beloved, is as nothing to woman's inhumanity to everybody. As a sex, she is selfish, and, individually, she is inconsiderate. Where she is kind to a man, it will be found it is her own man; where she is kind to a child, it is her own child. And woe to anybody she detects trying to assist her in being kind to either! The Bridge policeman will tell you that the worst crowders, shovers and pushers in the rush-hour jams are women. He would not say it for publication, because the glamour of hypocrisy as regards the fair sex is over him as over all of us. In law a woman demands her rights and yours. A married man is responsible for his wife's debts, but she is not responsible for her husband's. She will argue, but she will not reason. If you do not give her what you can't afford, you are selfish; then she weeps, and you surrender. She is eager for her rights and touchy about her wrongs. She has had through centuries the entire charge of one thing, full and complete—the household. And that is why the servant question is the one industrial question in the most unsatisfactory state. But it is in public places that her selfishness is most apparent. At ticket windows she will NOT take her place in line. She rushes in ahead, glares at any man who may faintly protest, always fishes up a five-dollar bill, although there be change at the bottom of her purse amid dress samples, powder puffs and other feminine junk she persistently totes around. Then she carefully and slowly counts her change, counts it wrong and counts it over again, attempts to put it in her purse, spills some of it, glares suspiciously at any one who picks it up for her, tosses her head at the "brutes" if they do not, and mixes up matters generally as long as she can. At the theater she arrives as late as possible. At the head of the aisle she surveys the scene. If her seat and that of her escort are far down the line, with a dozen people sitting between her, she will see to it that she enters by that way, instead of going down a further aisle in getting into her empty end seats from that end. We asked an usher once if they always did that. He said he had been ushering for 19 years and had never seen them do otherwise.

In summer when the buttercup and open car are here, she will never think of occupying any seat save those in the latter part of the car reserved for smokers. Then let any mere man on those seats dare smoke! She will cough, be in such trepidation lest a cigar spark burn a hole in her shirtwaist, that all the men around and beside her stop smoking, save the most hardened.

She— But what's the use? Were she not all these things she would be all too good for us. As it is, she thinks she is anyway—and, dearly beloved, she is, at that!

XXX.—If blackheads are prominent, press them out gently with an old-fashioned watchkey or two fingernails, first covering the skin with a bit of thin cloth to prevent the nails of the key from leaving a mark. Apply carbolated vaseline immediately to the spot to heal. A blackhead is pressed out more easily if you will first rub a bit of vaseline into it. (Blackheads are an accumulation of dirt.)

CANNED CORN.—A housekeeper says: Cut the corn, young and tender, from the cob, and with the back of the knife scrape the cob lightly so as not to get any hard substance in the corn; then take glass cans, or tin ones if you have a soldering iron (I use glass), fill the cans with the corn and pack tightly; screw on the rubbers and tops. Now take your wash boiler and put some hay or cloths in the bottom, lay or stand your cans in, and cover with cold water; bring the water to a boil, and continue to boil for three hours. Peas may also be canned by the same recipe. You cannot pack peas, as shake them down well. When through boiling take the cans out and tighten if possible, then wrap in paper and set in a cool place.

CHOICE STORIES

Had Her Dates Mixed.

The 17-year-old daughter of a certain Wall street man, says Harper's Weekly, recently visited for the first time the fine farm in Dutchess County for the past year owned by her father. The girl immediately became greatly interested in the prize cattle that are the especial pride of her parent, and asked many questions relative to their breeding, etc.

One evening, just at dusk, as the girl was standing on the veranda of the farmhouse, talking to the manager, there came the low, mournful note of a cow.

"Just listen to that poor cow," said the girl to the manager, "mewing for her colt."

Strong Sense of Humor.

"There's nothing like a sense of humor," said Rear Admiral Boehler, at Atlantic City. "In a woman, in a soldier, in a sailor, in a clerk, a sense of humor is a help and a blessing through life.

"At the same time, even a sense of humor may exist in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about.

"This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but under the rain of blows the soldier laughed like a man at a farce.

"'What are you laughing at?' the sergeant finally asked.

"'Why,' the soldier chuckled. I'm the wrong man.'"

An Echo Alarm Clock.

President Murphy of the Chicago National League Club says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, told at a baseball dinner a remarkable echo story. "There was a man," he began, "who had a country house in the Catskills. He was showing a visitor over his grounds one day, and, coming to a hilly place, said:

"There's a remarkable echo here. If you stand under that rock and shout, the echo answers four distinct times, with an interval of several minutes between answers."

"But the visitor was not at all impressed. He said, with a loud laught:

"'You ought to hear the echo at my place in Sunapee. Before going to bed at night I stick my head out of the window and shout, "Time to get up, William!" and the echo wakes me at 7 o'clock sharp the next morning.'"

She Remembered Him.

A little girl was out walking with her aunt one day. The aunt bowed to a man they were passing. "Who is he, Aunt Jennie?" asked the little girl.

Mrs. Littlefield told her that he was Mr. Melrose, the village undertaker.

"Oh, yes," replied the child, quickly. "I remember him. He undertook my grandmother."

A SONG OF PRAISE

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By W. H. James.

O, humble edible, I sing of thee,
For long despised, now come into thy own.
Reviled and shunned, yet persevering still;
For slighting thee contritely I atone.
I know they do not use a big syringe
To fill thee full of deadly, poison dope;
Thou art not canned with germs and creepy things,
And so to thee I come to pin my hope.
Though tough you may be, still you are not bad,
Though thou art black we hail thee best of boons
Thou saving grace when meat is on the blink,
O, prunes!

Lights Out.

Wallace Irwin in the New York Globe.

Diogenes, when he had yearned
To find a tub more clean,
His little bull's-eye lantern turned
Upon a magazine,
Wherein he read such words of dread
It made his blood run green.

"The world," it said, "is gone to pot,
The land is full of graft—
The Senate is a horrid lot,
And so is William Taft.
The Wall Street crew is frenzied, too,
And gone completely daft.

"Our drink is poor, our food impure,
Our beef is ptomaine-flavored,
Our fruit is queer, likewise our beer
Is salicylic-savored.
The poor man pays for law's delays
Because the trusts are favored."

Thus reading, poor Diogenes
His eyes began to rub,
"Oh, what's the use of running loose
In such a Pirates' Club?"
So in affright he doused his light
And sneaked back to the tub.

"I've decided to patronize your store," she said, condescendingly; "everybody says you keep such pure drugs and all that."

"Yes, madame," replied the new druggist, "we are particularly careful to supply only the best. What can I do for you, madame?"

"Give me a two-cent stamp, please."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Highest Observatory in the World.

The highest scientific station in the world belongs to Harvard. It stands on the summit of Mount Misti, an extinct volcano near Arequipa in Southern Peru. The altitude of this station is 19,300 feet.

No one lives at the station. No one could live there. The air is too rare and cold. The barometer on top of Misti often stands at 14 inches. The thermometer often falls to 25 degrees below zero.

Once a month an observer climbs up to the station to take the readings of the instruments. He is two days climbing up and two days climbing down.

THE WOMAN'S CORNER

A Pretty Woman's Advantage.

"If a guilty woman with a pretty face smiles at a jury and rustles her silk skirts in their ears, no testimony is damning enough to convict her." Such is the ungallant but perhaps truthful assertion of one of the characters in Frederick Upham Adams' novel, "The Bottom of the Well." No better instance of the danger of accepting circumstantial evidence in murder cases has been presented than in the closing chapters of Mr. Adams' book, in which one of the characters is suspected, arrested, imprisoned, tried and convicted for his own murder. What is more remarkable is that there is nothing unnatural in the series of events which results in so strange a climax.

In the Kitchen.

Hang at least one picture in your kitchen in such a place that it will meet your eye a score of times daily. Let it be a landscape or a picture "that tells a story," only be sure that it is not a scene that reproduces something of the daily routine. If practicable, change the picture for another once a week or month. Good prints of the best pictures can be had. Take a look at the picture often, seeing what it means, or, rather, realizing each time what it says to you personally.

This will break up the monotony which is the deadliest thing about housework and some other occupations, and will help to prevent the formation of the "fixed idea," which is the seed of most mental and emotional troubles. Just try this for a month. You will find this suggestion one to be thankful for—always bearing in mind that "the point of the idea lies in the application of it."

RUNAWAY CAR KILLS ENGINEER

Freight Vehicle, Speeding Down Steep Grade, Runs Into Express Train.

RUTLAND, Vt., June 21.—A peculiar accident on the Rutland Railroad a short distance from this city yesterday resulted in the death of Harry N. Davis, the engineer, and the severe shaking up of the passengers on an express train.

At a point about seven miles south of Rutland the railroad ascends a mountain, the grade being one of the heaviest in Vermont. While the express was climbing this grade Engineer Davis suddenly saw a single freight car coming down the hill on the same track. He tried to bring his train to a standstill, but before this could be done the car had crashed into the locomotive.

ALLISON IS FAILING.

Senator Suffers From Kidney Trouble; Friends Fearful.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Friends of Senator Allison do not note any improvement in his condition and their uneasiness over his continued illness is increasing. Despite the assurances of the Senator's physicians and his own belief that he is making satisfactory progress toward recovery, the impression prevails that the contrary condition prevails.

Mr. Allison has been in the Senate but little during the past six weeks. He was present Wednesday after an absence of several days. He remained but a short time. His friends were shocked to notice that he has lost heavily in weight, that his face has grown white and his entire appearance suggests ill health.

Senator Allison is suffering from a complication of kidney troubles. It is said that an operation would be beneficial, but Mr. Allison is opposed to submitting to one.

Helen Bertram, Old-Time Favorite, Comos to Alps as Next Week's Soloist

HELEN BERTRAM, NEXT WEEK'S SOLOIST AT THE ALPS.

She Will Sing "Moon, Dear," and Other Lyrics—Midweek Notes.

Helen Bertram, who will be the soloist at the Alps next week, is one of St. Louis' prime favorites, and as a summer opera star here several years ago, attained a popularity almost unequaled. She came to be regarded practically as a St. Louisan, and since that time has invariably been welcomed with especial acclaim by her many St. Louis friends on the occasions of her return with the companies with which she was later associated. Her principal offering during her Alps engagement will be the famous song, "Moon, Dear, Why Don't You Shine Clear?" in which she has made a great hit in the East. In this song she will be assisted by a male chorus, and it is confidently expected that its Eastern success will be repeated in St. Louis. In addition to the "moon song," however, Miss Bertram will be heard in several other lyrics displaying her voice to the fullest advantage.

Especial interest attaches to the operetta, "Thebe," the topliner attraction making a big hit at Forest Park Highlands this week, because of the fact that Mr. I. L. Blumenstock, author of its book and lyrics, is a young St. Louisan who seems destined to take a prominent place in the comic opera and musical comedy world in the very near future. He is, indeed, already known as the author of two successful comic operas, "The Yankee Regent," which has enjoyed a four-months' run at the La Salle Theater, Chicago, and "Uncle Sam," which has also been successfully produced.

The book and lyrics of "Thebe" are notable for a crisp brightness that constitutes a potent factor in the success of that production. The operetta is staged by Col. Hopkins, there being three complete changes of scenery and costumes in its 25 minutes' duration, and is presented with lively spirit by a company of 10 players, consisting of "Billy" Rock, Grace McArty and the Eight Lotus Girls. Its engagement promises to go on record as one of the most successful of the Highlands' season.

shown herself to be an artist, and as Gismonda, in Sardou's play of the same name, which will be given at West End Heights beginning with next Sunday matinee, she will have a part that is suited to her ability. It is one of her strongest and best roles, and one in which she made the greatest success when it was produced at the Suburban last summer, with Melbourne MacDowell. The production will be elaborately put on and Miss Fuller will have the full strength of her excellent company to support her.

This week an artistic performance of "Ingomar" is being given. As Parthenia, Miss Fuller is surprising her friends by the manner in which she is playing the part, which is so entirely different from the emotional roles in which she has been seen thus far this season. There will hereafter be no Friday matinee at West End Heights, the company needing this day for rest in preparation for coming productions.

For next week at Mannion's Park O. M. Mitchell, the ventriloquist; Wahlund and Tekla, modern exponents of physical culture; Willison and Wellone, singers; Herbert and Vance, musical artists; Caprice, the singing comedienne, and the Mannionscope will make up the program.

The Empire Minstrels have scored such a success at the Empire Garden Theater that it has been decided to keep them on for two more weeks, beginning next Sunday. The organization includes Al Blanchard, interlocutor; Baby Cecil, page; Onie Blanchard, Walter Austin and Will Cook, end men, and the Manhattan Quartet, consisting of William Miller, M. J. Gallagher, E. S. Borgelt and Charles Price.

Papinta, the dancer, will head the bill of varieties next week at Forest Park Highlands. Papinta is variously known as the "fire dancer," and the "mirror dancer," and by other titles more or less accurately descriptive of her style of entertainment. She was the first performer to combine mirror effects with serpentine dancing, and she has worked at this combination until she now presents what is probably the most elaborate and gorgeously beautiful development of that kind of act now before the public.

Other important features of the vaudeville bill at the Highlands will include Patty Bros., in one of England's best novelty acrobatic acts; Dixon Bros., in a European musical grotesque; Carson and Willard, in one of the best Dutch acts now on the stage, and Bonnie Gaylord in an act entitled "The Girl From Posey County." She does a comedy sketch or act which has delighted thousands and which will create ripples of merriment. At the close of the bill, the Kinodrome will show a large number of new and animated pictures.

The headliners this week are: The Nelson family, 12 in number, in one of the most wonderful acrobatic acts in this country; Mme. Slapoffski, remarkable operatic soprano; "Billy" Rock, assisted by Grace McArty and the eight Lotus Girls in "Thebe," and the Wilson Bros., German comedians, with a lot of pictures at the end of the bill, among them incidents in the life of an American policeman. Herr Schilzonyi and his Hungarian Boys' Band are rendering music out in "Tekko Gateway," which pleases immensely.

The thrilling melodrama, "Crimes and Criminals of New York," is the Stanley Stock Company's offering at Eclipse Garden this week. In addition, there are specialties and illustrated songs between the acts. An auto merry-go-round is a new amusement feature. On Saturday afternoon and evening the American Workingmen's Society of Carondelet will hold its annual picnic at Eclipse Garden.

Midweek Amusement Notes.

"Said Pasha" is receiving quite an elaborate revival at Delmar Garden this week and is proving a good drawing card. Both costumes and scenery are new and handsome and the strong organization of the Garden is presenting the piece in a delightful manner. The opera is tuneful and there is plenty of comedy business in it.

"The Girl from Paris," which was the opening production at Delmar Garden last season, will be put on next week. This proved quite an enjoyable offering last year, when done by the weakest cast that played at Delmar during the whole season. As produced next week, the musical comedy will be greatly strengthened in a half-dozen different places by the present excellent company at Delmar.

Miss Amelia Bingham and the entire Suburban Stock Company appear on Sunday night next at the Suburban Theater in Clyde Fitch's comedy of prevailing manners, "The Climbers." The play calls for the entire strength of the Suburban Stock Company, the special support of Miss Bingham consisting of Mr. Morris McHugh and the Misses Kate Blanke, Adelyn Wesley, Florence Fisher, Margaret Campbell, Blanche Walton and several others for the minor parts who are to make their first appearance the coming week. Now that the Sunday matinees have been eliminated, added time for preparation is at the company's disposal.

"The Climbers" tells the story of a social feud between the Sterling and the Hunter families. Clyde Fitch has done his best in making a semi-humorous picture of the embroilments of two sets of "climbers" after social preferment and despite the fact that he has to resort to a scene following a funeral in the first act, and more than suggests a suicide in the last, he yet manages to entertain, if not always in a healthful, yet in a diverting manner. It is another costume play that the Suburban management is giving, modern, up-to-date and unusually informing as a stage-pattern of current events. "The Climbers" is one of Miss Bingham's favorite plays. She excels in characters like Katinka Jenkins in "A Modern Magdalen," and her Mrs. Sterling (nee Blanche Hunter) will be found as if specially written for her. The management manifests no disposition, it is said, to rest on the laure's of its current success with "A Modern Magdalen;" on the contrary, the desire at the Suburban headquarters is reported to be strong along the line of further excellence. It is the purpose of the Suburban people to give the "star-stock" system, now worthily inaugurated, a thorough trial.

The Alps is entertaining crowds this week, in spite of the rainy weather, and Sorrentino's concerts are as thoroughly enjoyable inside the big hall as outside in the grounds. The big features of this engagement will begin tonight, when the Banda Rossa and the Alps Orchestra will alternate in playing the concert numbers, 28 in all. There will not be a moment without music from 7:30 till 8:30, the close of the concert. The last number on the program, Svendsen's "Coronation March," will be played by the Banda Rossa and orchestra combined, making in all 100 musicians. This arrangement of having both organizations play will continue during the rest of the week. Friday night is Wagner Night, and the two conductors, Sorrentino and Rosenbecker, will enter into a friendly contest over the Wagner program. Six numbers in all will be played, four by the Banda Rossa and two by the Rosenbecker forces. As on the previous night the last number will again be directed by Rosenbecker for the two merged bands. This arrangement also holds good for Saturday night, when the Banda Rossa engagement comes to a close.

Helen Bertram, now in the city, will be the soloist for next week's concerts, and her repertoire will consist entirely of popular ballads. The songs with which she has made her greatest hits will be given by her.

COMIC OPERA STAR HURT IN RUNAWAY

Miss Pauline Hall Suffers Broken Limb and Is Badly Bruised.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Miss Pauline Hall, the comic opera star, suffered a broken leg and was badly bruised in a runaway accident last evening. Her sister, Miss A. Hall, was also bruised, but her daughter, Pauline J. Hall, and a girl friend, escaped injury by jumping.

Miss Hall is the owner of a team of Shetland ponies. With her sister, daughter and a companion of the latter, she drove to Yonkers and started to go back to their home at Caryl.

While driving over the crest of a hill near Mosholu one of the traces broke, frightening the ponies and causing them to run away. Near the Mosholu Hotel they ran into a telephone pole and Miss Hall and her sister were thrown to the ground. The two children jumped just before the ponies struck the pole.

A few moments later two men in an automobile came along and took the party to their home. Miss Hall's left leg was broken near the ankle.

FIREMAN SAVES LIVES.

Heroism in a Collision Minimizes Disaster.

NEW YORK, June 21.—By an act of heroism, Charles Klausman, driver of a fire truck, saved the lives of passengers on a Third avenue open car last night when the car and truck collided at Sixtieth street with terrific force. As it was, two women were injured, one of them seriously, and about 40 other passengers trampled over one another in a wild attempt to escape from the car.

The injured women were Miss Alice Dunn and Mrs. Bridget McCarthy, the latter's condition being serious.

Klausman threw his weight on the reins of his galloping horses and swerved them to the right at a sharp angle. One of the two poles of the truck struck the two women passengers. Klausman probably owes his life to the fact that he was strapped to the high seat of the truck.

Woman and Man Arrested.

Harry Valedore, aged 21, and Mabel Davidson, 19, are held by the police on charges springing from the recent robbery of Frank McKenna, a guest at the New Lindell Hotel. McKenna reported that while he was sitting in the parlor of the Planters Hotel he met a woman who later accompanied him to his room at the New Lindell. While there, he says, she robbed him of $300. W. Walton, a watchman at the Planters, told the police that he had seen the woman and Valedore together around the hotel a few hours before the alleged robbery.

CHICAGO, June 21.—One man was fatally injured, four were slightly hurt and the Illinois Steel Co.'s plant at South Chicago was damaged to the extent of $150,000 as the result of a violent rain, wind and hailstorm, which raged in this section yesterday afternoon.

The storm began at 5 o'clock and before it had lost its fury sheds were blown down, wood piles overturned and several of the big smokestacks of the Illinois Steel Co.'s plant toppled to the ground.

QUICK WIT SAVES BOY.

Little Sister Flags Train; Rescuer Holds Him Down.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 21.—Frank Roskic, 12 years old, had a thrilling escape from death. He was crossing the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Parsons, in company with his 10-year-old sister, when his foot caught in a frog. The Philadelphia flyer was nearly due, and the girl ran up the track to flag the train with her hat. She met Edgar George, who ran to the boy's assistance.

The engineer of the train saw the little girl's signal and applied the air-brake. The train could not be stopped, but was going slowly when the locomotive passed over the frog, and, as George managed to lay the trapped boy on his back, the wheels only tore off the heel of his shoe.

MOUNTAINS SWIM ON EARTH'S CRUST.

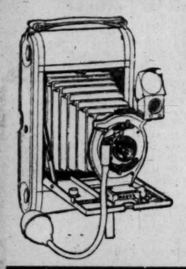

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, June 21.—Prof. Schuster, in the course of an address at a meeting of the Royal Society, mentioned an interesting theory to account for the ability of the earth's crust to sustain the weight of mountain ranges like the Himalayas and Atlas.

"The theory is that they swim in the ground in a manner similar to that of the iceberg in water," he said. "Mountains are lighter than the rest of the earth's surface."

He added that this theory had been confirmed to a great extent by investigations now in progress that show that the earth generally is denser than the material of the mountains.

CAVE YIELDS SKELETON OF PERSON WHO DIED OVER 200 YEARS AGO

Book Found Beside Stone Bier Bears Inscription, "B. A. Strong, Oxford College, May 24, 1676"—Remarkable Discovery Near Andover, N. B., to Be Followed by More Explorations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ANDOVER, N. B., June 21.—Great interest is manifested in the towns of Perth and Andover in a remarkable discovery made Sunday afternoon by Charles Stewart and his uncle, John E. Stewart, near Johnsville, where the bones of a person, who perhaps had been dead more than 200 years, were found in a cave that had been blockaded by a big boulder for at least a century.

Using dynamite, the Stewarts demolished this boulder. Then they found 12 stone steps leading down to a passage about seven feet long and two feet wide. This opened into a main room about 12 feet square. Entering the larger room they were startled to find the bones of a human being lying in a bunk made of stone. There were no traces of flesh, and the bones were dry and crumbly.

Near the bones was a gold ring, on which were inscribed: "John Long, Dec. 4, 1779." A few inches away was a silver watch, which bore the date "1740."

Underneath the bunk they found three books, two in Latin, the third written in English. One of the Latin books was Suetonius' "History of Rome," dated 1667, and on the leaf were several Latin inscriptions. Inside was written the following:

"B. A. Strong, Oxford College, May 24, 1676."

Underneath this appeared the name, "James Hayward, 1686."

The other book was "Seneca's Tragedies," and in it was marked the date, "1659."

Around the books, which were in a good state of preservation, was a large piece of bark, on which were marks believed to be plans of other caves. Some of the writing on the bark is in English; the rest appears to be in Latin or French. The whole bundle was inside a rusted iron teakettle.

IN SOCIETY

Notices of social events intended for publication in the Sunday Post-Dispatch should reach the Post-Dispatch office not later than noon of the Friday preceding.

One of the pretty home weddings of Wednesday was that of Miss Stella Marguerite Mullen, daughter of Fanny E. Mullen, and J. Kirk McDearmon, at the bride's mother's residence, at 6 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom. W. T. S. Mullen, the bride's brother, gave her away. The bride, who is a pretty young girl, wore a bridal robe of white hand-embroidered mull and lace. Miss Mabel Fitz Williams attended her as maid of honor and Mr. McDearmon had Frank Bialne as best man. A large reception followed the ceremony and later Mr. McDearmon and his bride departed for a two months' honeymoon journey in the East. Upon their return they will be at home at 4465 Morgan street. Mrs. McDearmon graduated from Maryville Convent with the 1903 class.

The marriage of Miss Mary M. Brazill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew P. Brazill, to Edwin C. Spuehler, took place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. S. Phelan, assisted by Rev. James J. O'Brien and Rev. John N. Keen. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elisabeth V. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride for the immediate relatives of both families. After a wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 3649 Shenandoah avenue.

Mrs. Emile J. Lambrechts of Minerva avenue entertained Mr. and Mrs. Bird Fletcher on their return from their honeymoon trip. Mrs. Fletcher was formerly Miss Caroline Grassmann. Music was rendered by Mrs. Blakesley, with vocal accompaniment by Mrs. Maude Loewe. At 5 o'clock luncheon was served. Among those present were:

Christ Church Cathedral was the scene on Wednesday afternoon of a pretty wedding, when Miss Minnie Maddern Wright and Charles Herbert Webb were married by Dean Carroll M. Davis at 3 o'clock. Col. George C. Wright gave his daughter away. Only relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom were present.

The bride wore white lace over chiffon and had no veil. A wreath of bridal blossoms and bouquet of bride roses completed the toilet. Miss Sybil Wright was maid of honor. She wore white Paris mull, with primrose ribbons, and carried a shower of Marguerites. A small informal reception followed the ceremony in the church parlors.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dooley and their children of West Pine boulevard will depart early next week for Asbury Park, N. J., where they will remain until early autumn. Miss Margaret Doyle will accompany the party.

The engagement of Miss Florence Rothschild, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rothschild of 4608 Washington boulevard, to Clarence Scott Siegfried, formerly of Zanesville, O., was formally announced Tuesday by the bride-elect's parents. The wedding will be one of the fashionable affairs of the early autumn.

ANOTHER BALTIC MUTINY COMING

Narodny Says the Black Sea Affair Will Be Eclipsed Very Soon.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Discussing reports from London, which were denied from St. Petersburg, of trouble at Cronstadt, Ivan Narodny, a Russian, who came here in the interest of the revolutionists, said yesterday:

"There will be, soon, a great mutiny in the Baltic fleet at Cronstadt, with vastly more success than the already historic mutiny in the Black Sea fleet. The captains commanding are in sympathy with the revolutionary movement and will declare at the appointed time for the reforms.

The fact is the army officers drawn from the noble class are in sympathetic terms with the men from the peasant and artisan classes. The common people and the nobles in Russia are not separated by the gulf that stood between these classes under the ancient regiment in France. The nobles throughout Russia—and the gentry, too—are the peasants' closest friends, on the most cordial and friendly footing. The nobles are the backbone of the revolution in Russia. The bureaucracy is drawn from neither class, and is hated by both classes.

"It is the system which causes riots like that at Bialystok.

"The reason why the bureaucracy stirs up this resentment against the Jews is that they are seen to be an element strong for revolution—radicals.

MUTINY OF GUARD AT SEVASTOPOL.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 21.—A serious mutiny which for a time threatened to place the fortress of Sevastopol in possession of the mutineers was suppressed yesterday. According to a special dispatch to the Novoe Vremya, it was started by a battalion of the fortress artillery, which declined to obey orders, whereupon the men were promptly disarmed.

Two other battalions then mutinied and took possession of the guns in the north shore batteries, but on the appearance of several loyal regiments of infantry the mutineers abandoned the idea of fighting and returned to their barracks.

Gen. Nepuleff, commander of the Fortress of Sevastopol, is represented to be greatly concerned about the temper of the sailors as well as the soldiers. The Bolschoff regiment at Ryazah has driven out its officers and burned the armory. Another report says the soldiers deliberately attacked the officers' club at Ryazan, killing one and wounding two officers. A panic prevails in the town.

Four companies of the Viborg Regiment, stationed in St. Petersburg, have presented demands, which were granted, and they have now returned to duty. The soldiers of the notorious Semenovsky Regiment, whose name became synonymous with repression, owing to the deeds committed at Moscow, are reported to have held a meeting and to have decided that they can not longer endure the public opprobium, and must wipe out the stain on their regiment. Their tenderness with which the military authorities are treating these and recurring exhibitions of the mutinous spirit among the troops is sufficient evidence that they fear the entire army is infected.

MRS. FRANK J. KLAUS.

Church ceremonial and class celebration made the marriage of Miss Leonore E. Lalumier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Lalumier of Centerville Station, and Frank J. Klaus of East St. Louis one of note in St. Clair County Wednesday.

The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Centerville Station, at nuptial high mass, by Rev. Father Reinhardt, acting pastor. Lalumier, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

The class celebration took place at the wedding breakfast, which was served at the old Lalumier homestead, built more than 100 years ago. Toasts were offered by the members of the East St. Louis High School class of 1902, of which the bride was a member. The speakers were Arthur O'Leary, Edgar Hissrich, Nathan Lelvy, James Miller, Robert Kresse. The bridegroom was made an honorary member of the class and formally initiated. The other members of the class present were Miss Anita Griffin, Miss Mary Albertson and Mrs. Robert Kresse.

COLUMBUS, Ind., June 21.—As a result of Mrs. Wallace Rynerson's promotion to the position of chief operator of the Citizens' Telephone Co., to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Blanch Smith, the operators say that if she comes they will strike. Some say that it is because she is married, but the telephone girls assert that they will strike because the promotion should have been given to Miss Edna Brown, who is next in the line of promotion. Manager W. G. Butler says Mrs. Rynerson is a good operator, and that she will be retained.

Sermon and Result.

LONDON, June 21.—The text of the sermon at the Mortlake Congregational Church was: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal." AWFUL PSORIASIS 35 YEARS

Terrible Scaly Humor in Patches All Over the Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Itching Unbearable—Cured by Cuticura in Thirty Days at Cost of $4.75.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA

"I was afflicted with psoriasis for thirty-five years. It was in patches all over my body. I used three cakes of Soap, six boxes Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. I bathed with the Soap, applied the Ointment once a day, and took the Resolvent as directed. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think permanently, as it was about five years ago.

"The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the center a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound flesh. In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of a white silvery appearance and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the flesh would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance would ooze out. That scaly crust would form again in twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in spots all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long without removing by bath or otherwise, the skin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense itching, worse at nights after getting warm in bed, or blood warm by exercise, when it would be almost unbearable.

"To sum it all up, I would not go through such another ordeal of affliction for thirty-five years for the State of Kansas. (signed) W. M. Chidester, Hutchinson, Kan., April 20, 1905."

NEW INSTRUCTOR FOR MISSOURI A. C.

President Guyett Announces That a New Man Will Have Charge of the Gymnasium and Training of Athletes After September 1—Bassett Still Athletic Director.

President Joseph H. Guyett of the Missouri Athletic Club announced Thursday that a physical instructor would be appointed in the fall to have charge of the gymnasium and business men's classes which he is laboring so earnestly to promote.

The appointment of a new physical director does not necessarily mean that Bassett is to be supplanted. Bassett is to remain athletic director. What disposition of him is to be made, if any, remains to be seen.

Despite the fact that there is a lack of activity in the gymnastic departments of the M. A. C. the inanition does not begin with the head of the organization.

Mr. Guyett, besides being engaged in getting up a business men's class for the fall is responsible for the changes that are being made for the benefit of the members. Painters and decoraters are now engaged on Turkish bathrooms and the contract to renovate them was taken with the understanding that when finished they would be the finest in the city.

Mr. Guyett has put the architects to work figuring on skylights for the handball courts, which are badly needed for the purpose of giving light and admit fresh air to the courts.

The impression has existed among M. A. C. members that the various managers and instructors of the various departments have contracts with the organization and have the big institution bound hand and foot. This is a misnomer. There is not an employe of the M. A. C. who has a contract that cannot be waived on 30 days' notice.

Mr. Guyett is the recipient of complaints day in and day out from members that want what they deem mistakes corrected.

While the gymnasium is a place of solicitude and seldom visited, the swimming pool is a veritable hive of activity, too much so, say members of the swimming squad.

McKITTRICK AROSE TO THE OCCASION

By a Splendid Tee on a Momentous Four-Hole at the Psychological Moment He Defeated Harry Allen and Won Golf Match at Country Club.

By rising to the occasion, or perhaps going beyond it, and making a three on a most important four hole at the exact psychological moment, Ralph McKittrick of the Country Club defeated Harry W. Allen of the Field Club in their golf match at the links of the Country Club Wednesday afternoon, two holes up and one hole to play.

While the golf played was not any too brilliant, the scores were sound. It would be inaccurate to say that Mr. Allen lost because he did not putt well. True, he did not run down any of those long putts, but he did not miss any short ones; nor did Mr. McKittrick. It was just a hard, cold game of golf, all even for 15 holes and it took a three on a four hole to win it. When that kind of golf beats you it is not because you are off your game or unlucky, but because the other fellow fairly outplays you.

Allen Outstayed and Outplayed.

Mr. McKittrick won by outstaying and outplaying Mr. Allen. He began badly. Mr. Allen was two up on No. 5. McKittrick squared the match on No. 8 and was one up on No. 12. Allen squared it on No. 13. Going to 15 both men sliced their drives, Allen away down to the railroad tracks. Playing the odd, Allen came handsomely within 15 feet of the hole. McKittrick, playing nerve-racking like, laid a beautiful mashie shot within five feet of the flag. Allen was within six inches on his long put, but McKittrick arose to the opportunity, ran his third down and won the match right there.

It is the most nerve-racking of all games, is this apparently quiet and slow Scotch pastime. Proverbial for his pluck and nerve as Allen is, this master stroke at the crucial period of the match took some of the starch out of him. For the first time in the match he made a bad iron shot and sliced going to No. 16. McKittrick lay close in. Allen overran his approach and missed his putt. McKittrick ran his up close and sent his putt down for another three.

He was then dormie two, that is, had a two-hole lead and but two holes to play. A half at the seventeenth green 6-6 made him two up and gave him the match.

As a rule Allen outdrove McKittrick, was in better line and better luck. He was not steady, however. He topped his first tee shot into the tracks, and missed his drive and second on No. 5 when he was two up. He played a hard, plucky game, but it is only truth to say that after that crushing three at the fifteenth he was not there any more. He sliced his iron as before set forth, going to No. 16, and for the first time during the match McKittrick outhit him, from tee and second, going to seventeenth. The ring is not the only place where men give and take wallops in the solar plexus.

McKittrick has played better games, taken on the whole, but none in which he came to the front at the right time in better style. Allen gave him No. 6. McKittrick took No. 8 by sheer merit and force. He laid a full drive within 10 feet of the hole and was down for a three. Allen needed four on a three-hole. Then there was that par three on No. 12 and again on No. 15.

McKittrick was not at his best. He was ever pulling his ball, from standing too close to his it and hitting from under his instep. Allen had him invariably playing the odd, especially in the early part of the game. But while Allen missed and topped at least three wooden club shots, McKittrick never missed one. He was schlaffing a bit on his drives, but not nearly as much as Allen, who was getting a deal more distance.

Mr. Allen is known for his stanchness of play and tenacity of spirit. He displayed it all Wednesday. But that three on No. 16 was enough to take the heart out of pigiron and it did shake Mr. Allen.

Joy Defeats Carleton.

Of the minor matches the defeat of Jesse Carleton of Glen Echo by Duncan Joy of the Country Club was the most surprising. Mr. Carleton was runner-up to Ralph McKittrick for this championship last year and should have won. He is regarded as being in the very first flight of local golfers, while Mr. Joy is considered a nice fellow in a catch-as-catch-can foursome. However, he caught Mr. Carleton with a rheumatic shoulder and sadly off his game on Wednesday. Doing a 46 going out, Mr. Joy had Mr. Carleton four down in nine holes. Mr. Carleton, a 40 man, must have done about 52. At 15 it was all square, but Mr. Joy won the last three holes and the match two up and one to play.

Mr. Orthwein's Brilliancy.

William Orthwein, who has been playing but two months, also strode into the lime light by trimming the famous veteran B. S. Adams of the Algonquins 3 and 2. Mr. Orthwein is the most promising young player that has come along in St. Louis since the days of golf began.

Harry Blodgett was meat pie for Arthur Stickney, 7 and 5. In a style that became the man who once was champion of France, A. B. Lambert beat Sol Swarts 3 and 2.

Country Club on Top.

Now that the championship is down to cases what do we find? Eight men in the affair, seven are from the Country Club, one, Mr. Orthwein, from Normandle Park.

We find the same old names, the Stickney boys, McKittrick and Lambert, at the top. S. C. Davis never before reached such an eminence but he is a veteran of the Country Club.

The match today between Mr. Orthwein and Mr. Davis should be close. Good wishes will accompany the boys and the novice against the man and the veteran, but it would not be at all surprising to find the finals semi-finals exclusive to the Country Club. Inasmuch as the tournament is being played on its links this perhaps is to be expected. Then golf first had local hold at the Country Club, where Mr. Steadman brought it to St. Louis. Yet we would be so glad to see some young men, in golf at least come along and break up this trust of the links which the Stickneys and McKittricks have formed and maintain.

Many keen judges fancy Harry Potter to beat McKittrick this afternoon and win the tournament. Mr. Potter has played good golf at the tournament, but scarce seems to possess the class necessary to beat the big ones. Still, he plays a neat, clean game and the short links suit him.

INDOOR BASEBALL AT THE M. A. C.

Indoor baseball has supplanted all other pastimes and sports at the Missouri Athletic Club and patrons of the gymnasium have become so infatuated with the game that, not satisfied with playing it at the noon hour, they come down to the gymnasium at night and indulge in its practice. Wednesday night there were so many aspirants for positions on the team that Trainer Trueman, who is responsible for the introduction of the game, had to put 10 men on a side for the regular contest of nine innings.

EGAN AND KARGER MARKS FOR QUAKERS

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Failure to hit at opportune times, the futile efforts of Karger and Egan to befuddle the Quaker batsmen and general meekness on the part of McCloskey's men, lost them a game here Wednesday, 8 to 3.

So easy were the Cardinal pitchers that Duffy's men recovered their batting eyes and made 15 hits, something startling for this team recently.

Lush, who opposed the Cardinals, was very effective in all innings except the second, when he got careless and allowed the Cardinals to score three runs. After the second inning, however, the St. Louis men did not score a run. Circus catches by Doolin and Magee helped to enliven the one-sided contest.

The Cardinals got a good lead in the second inning. In the third inning the Quakers began to ply their bats against Egan's curves and chased that youngster to the tall timbers. Karger succeeded Egan. In the fifth inning the Duffy men got busy with Karger and scored three runs.

GARESCHE-GLEASON WIN IN DOUBLES

Mrs. Charles McClure Clark, the present holder of the Post-Dispatch cup, participating in the doubles with her brother, Mr. Charles Scullin, against Miss Mimi Garesche and Paul Gleeson, in the women's tennis tourney at the Triple A courts at Forest Park, Wednesday, met with the first defeat she has ever sustained in tournament play. The scores of the match were 10 to 8 and 7 to 5, the matches being the hardest fought of any of the doubles that have been played at the Triple A courts this year.

Mr. Gleeson played excellent tennis. His exhibition was exceedingly consistent.

Mr. Scullin performed nicely, but his tendency to drive out on smashes betrayed lack of practice.

Miss Mimi Garesche played a wonderfully strong game, and had her opponent chasing to all sides of the court. This young lady has the strength of a man and plays with a man's strength when hard pressed. She drove, smashed and volleyed like a whirlwind, all the time maintaining her usual consistent type of play. Her dazzling style of service and terrific line smashes were more responsible for the victory than any work of her partner.

Mrs. T. B. Entz defeated Miss Bertha Semple impressively, 6-4, 6-1. Mrs. Entz is a more formidable player than she was last year. She has acquired the knack of serving on the left side of the opposing player that is tactful tennis of high caliber.

Thursday's schedule:

At 10 a. m.—Singles: Miss Elma Rumsey vs. Miss Isabella Hull (Miss Rombauer to meet winner). Doubles: Mrs. Charles McLure Clark and Miss Elizabeth Donaldson vs. Miss Marion Hodson and Miss Tessie Hudson.

At 3 p. m.—Doubles: Miss Adelaide Garesché and Miss Bessie Prince vs. Mrs. Erwin Hilts and Miss Elma Rumsey.

CORNELL USES QUICK RECOVERY THIS SEASON

Courtney Found That the Long Slow Stroke Was Not the Proper Thing When Syracuse Coached by Ten Eyck Defeated Him in 1903.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 21.—The great regatta is due at the little town of Poughkeepsie. The hotels are filling with sightseers and rooms are at a premium.

On the river the great crews of the big colleges are putting finishing touches on the training for the great races on Saturday. At the invitation of Coach Courtney I spent some time on his training launch watching Cornell.

"Go!" cried Courtney.

Sixteen big sweeps dropped into the water without a splash. Sixteen statues in living bronze sprang suddenly into life. The water rose in a wave of foam under the churning blades. The two boats lifted almost clear of the river, hung for a tenth of a second and shot forward as if they had been hurled by an explosion. The coxswains shouted through their megaphones. The rowers swung back and forth machine-like. The blades beat the waves and ripples into froth. Courtney's launch started ahead at full power of her engines. The banks flew past like the scenery in a stage auto race. I never saw a finer, cleaner exhibition of sweep rowing than Courtney's men gave. Cornell's crew can row and it can row right.

It has been said that under Courtney's coaching Cornell uses a long stroke and a slow, even recovery. That is untrue. Cornell did use such a style of rowing three years ago, and for a year or two before that. In 1903 Cornell was successful with the long stroke and the slow recovery that was said not to check the boat. At that time Courtney thought it the right style of rowing. But there is only one right style—the quick, snappy recovery—the style that gives some 36 properly executed strokes to the minute instead of 28 ponderous pulls. When Syracuse, coached by Ten Eyck, whipped Cornell in 1904, using the snappy recovery, Courtney saw his error and changed back again. The Cornell crew today recovers like a flash and can easily stroke 36, or even faster. It looks like the swiftest eight Cornell ever turned out. And it is strong. The ideal weight for an oarsman is 170 pounds. Cornell's crew weighs a little over that on the average. Three men weigh 180, three weigh 170, one weighs 173, and Foote, stroke, weighs 165.

Foote is the lightest man in the boat, but he is the strongest. There is not a better stroke on the river. I doubt that there is a better stroke in the country. Foote is 21 years old and is six feet tall. He is the only man on the crew that an inexperienced spectator would call awkward. He does look a little clumsy, but appearances are deceitful. He always has his eyes on the bow and he tears into his work with the vim of a fighting bulldog. His broad shoulders are hunched up until his head seems to rest upon them, and he puts every ounce of strength he has into each stroke. He is as regular and as smooth of action as a clock.

Syracuse Boys Good Lookers.

Down by the great iron bridge Syracuse was lying on its oars waiting to start a spurt. We came so close alongside that Courtney's launch had to slow up to avoid giving Ten Eyck's men her wash.

They are fine looking fellows, big and straight and strong, brown as Indians. Syracuse started and we watched them.

There has been a lot of talk going the rounds about Syracuse. People have said that they were glued to their sliding seats—or their sliding seats were glued—or something of that sort. Nothing like it. These Syracuse men can row too. In my judgment they did not show quite the speed of Cornell. Where the latter hit it up to 36 in that trial spin Syracuse did 34. But it rowed in proper style.

Syracuse has a powerful crew weighing about 170 to the man. I was struck particularly by the style of Steward Rice who rows No. 8. Rice is six feet one and one-half, and weighs 176. He is 24 years old, and has the strength of a veteran. In fact, he looks the strongest man in the boat. He whips his sweep through the water with a heave that fairly lifts the shell. I never saw a prettier water man. With better luck in the matter of avoiding back water than she had last year, Syracuse will be a dangerous rival for Cornell. The races are rowed with a favoring tide. Last year the date was changed without taking the different tide time into consideration. The result was that a heavy eddy interfered with the Syracuse course and held the boat back.

Boils Bother Oarsmen.

Syracuse has been crippled to a certain extent. Two men have suffered severely from the oarsman's complaint—boils. One was Rice, whose wrist was useless for several days. He says it will be good enough for hard work today and will be all right Saturday. Capt. Salisbury was in even worse shape, but is coming around all right. Packard, the Syracuse stroke, is a first-class man. He weighs only 153 pounds, but he is as strong as a beaver.

Pennsylvania has just turned out a phenomenal trial. Ward's men covered the course in 18:56. This indicates another dangerous rival for Cornell and Syracuse.

The Georgetown crew is light. It has snap and speed, but the wiseacres are overlooking it in the predictions.

Columbia has the best crew of years. It is a clever crew and shows plenty of good form.

Wisconsin rowed last year with the discarded slow recovery. But now the Badgers are as snappy as any of them, and look good to make a fight for the honors. There will probably be very little more hard work. The crews are nearly on edge now and will not chance any more hard fights against the watch over the whole course.

The following statistics show how the crews which will compete in the intercollegiate rowing regatta here Saturday compare in average age, height and weight:

Varsity Eights.	Age.	Height.	Weight.

TAYLOR CARDINALS' SOLE WINNING PITCHER

Chief of McCloskey's Staff Is the Only Man to Win a Game for His Team in the East—The Personality of Burch.

The Cardinals lose with such recurring frequency as to reflect startlingly little credit on their ability as baseball players. They have proved improving propositions for every team they have met since leaving home. No matter how poor their opponents play, the Cardinals generally manage to play even poorer. And the twirlers are not altogether blameless. Only one of McCloskey's pitchers seems to know how to get in the winning column once in a while. That is Taylor. Taylor has lost games this season, but he has not pitched any poor ones. He may get hit now and again, but he makes very few pitching errors. He's got grit, and nerve, and stamina, and speed and curves, and about everything that a successful pitcher could wish to have.

Had this Taylor a team like Cleveland behind him, his losing games would be few and far between. The stolid twirler of the Cardinals is accounted by the very good judges of the game as the best pitcher in the National League. New York has tried time and again to get Taylor, but the Robisons have always clung to him. Even with the handicap that a losing team brings a pitcher, this fellow from Nelsonville, O., continues to pitch good baseball and win every now and then. Still it is trying on one's soul to pitch for such a club as the Cardinals.

Taylor has nerves of steel. Whether his teammates play good or bad baseball behind him, the erstwhile miner goes ahead pitching his best.

Now and then some over-fastidious critics point to the fact that Taylor is not of an angelic disposition.

Be that as it may, the followers of baseball know that he is one of the greatest twirlers of the day.

If McCloskey had one more Taylor the Cardinals might hope to make a showing that would not be altogether disgraceful for a team representing the fourth city in the United States, and the best baseball city in the country under normal conditions.

Since the Cardinals went East Taylor has been the only pitcher strong enough to win a game. The Browns, and Egans, and Druhots, and Kargers and that sort have been simply slaughtered by their Eastern brethren of the bat.

Burch, whom the Cardinals have secured to play right field for them, seems to be at least an improvement over some of the comic opera performers that McCloskey has had in the past to cover the right meadow for him. The Tri-Stater has worked in two games and has rapped out a hit in each. He fielded poorly the first day he wore a Cardinal uniform. Young fellows are usually nervous. One thing, however, that is none too reassuring is the fact that Burch batted after the pitcher in Altoona. This, however, may be merely the provincial way that they have of playing the national game in that outlaw league. He was practically second in the list of batsmen in the Tri-State. Burch played in 40 games. He went to the bat 143 times, scored 27 runs, made 47 hits, had one sacrifice to his credit, and his average was .329.

Burch is said to be a very fast young fellow. He stole 18 bases in his 40 games. He played at short for Altoona for a time, a position in which he failed to show any particular brilliancy. As an outfielder, however, Burch led the Tri-State League, having no errors in 13 games. Altogether it looks as though Manager McCloskey has secured a very promising player in this Burch.

Harry Cohen, the St. Louis boy who is pitching for the Savannah club of the South Atlantic League, as Kane, performed the remarkable feat of shutting out the Columbia (S. C.) team of the same league without a hit last Thursday. During the game he struck out 13 men. Yet he lost, owing to errors behind him. This is a remarkable pitching feat, and one that has seldom, if ever, been equaled anywhere. Last year Kane let down the Jacksonville club without hit or run in 13 innings, yet lost. For a time this season Kane was with the Philadelphia management, but was let out. He was signed by Fred Clarke one year, but he would not work hard enough to suit Clarke and was let out.

The Wabash Juniors went down to defeat at the hands of the Harlan Place Juniors, the final score being 2 to 1.

The Wabash Grays defeated the Union Sodas by the score of 6 to 0 in a one-sided game. Abretch pitched splendid ball for the winners.

CRIMSON CREW HAS NEW ROWING SEAT

Superior Mechanical Appliance Said to Afford Advantage —Reduces Friction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 21.—That Harvard has a mechanical contrivance on which it is building great hopes for the race with Yale June 28, has been known for some time by insiders of rowing circles here, but the careful manner in which the secret was guarded, both here and at Red Top, left no doubt as to the importance of the invention. Eugene Buckley says that the secret is out now, and that the invention is a marvelously smooth-running roller seat, with wheels two inches in diameter, just double the size of the regulation wheels, turned out of solid casting, with a three-eighths-inch axle, the core or journal being bored out, making them very little heavier than the old-style wheels. On top of the wooden run (of the regulation pattern) is a three-eighth-inch veneering of fiberine, taking the place of metal and reducing friction to a minimum. The higher wheels give a chance to drop the after end of the run an inch, the incline giving the oar blades a firmer hold in the water and greater power to the oarsman, as it makes the stroke more of a lift. The invention also obviates jamming the calves of the oarsmen's legs.

COURT STICKS TO ITS HARSH WORDS

SPENCER TO GET $3100

Essen Receivership Is for a Second Time Declared Improper.

The Supreme Court refused Wednesday to amend its decision regarding the receivership of the People's United States Bank by striking out the language regarding E. G. Lewis, president of the bank, to which he objected. His motion asking for a modification was denied without comment.

Lewis objected to the language of the decision, which was made two months ago, and which held that Frederick Essen was made receiver of the bank improperly and without proper authority. This decision referred to the literature sent out by Lewis as being of the same nature as that sent out by patent medicine concerns, called the first Board of Directors Lewis' "hirelings," and referred to other Lewis enterprises as "vest pocket corporations."

In the motion filed by Lewis' attorneys, asking the modification, the reasons offered are in part:

"Our firm belief that parts of the learned opinion are based upon imperfect views of some matters therein mentioned (outside the issue of the receivership), and our faith in the fairness and justice of this court, inspired by long and intimate association with many of its members, prompt this appeal to your honors for a careful scrutiny of the learned opinion with reference to certain of its minor features, which, doubtless accidentally, reach (as it seems to us) beyond the strict scope of the appeal.

Bank Plan "Fetching."

"The idea of a postal or mail bank itself was a valuable one, supported by the approving opinion and reports of a former Postmaster-General. Many minor features of the bank were 'fetching' (to quote a current word) beyond those items of 'rodomontade,' which are exploited as though they comprised the sole contents of Lewis' invitations to invest in the bank.

"Mr. Lewis may not, possibly, have had the advantage necessary to acquire a calm, clear, quiet, dignified and judicial literary style. He wrote for the plain people who took his 10-cent magazines.

"The first Board of Directors are not properly branded as 'underlings,' nor the Lewis Publishing Co. and the University Heights Realty and Development Co. as 'vest-pocket corporations.'

"The rhetoric of 'bitters and liver pills' is a rather harsh descriptive label to apply to Lewis' literature, and we hope that something milder will satisfy to describe it."

The Court also overruled the motion filed by Attorney-General Hadley, asking a rehearing of the case. After the proceedings of the court yesterday the case stands as it did two months ago. The appointment of a receiver has been declared improper by the court, and the appointment set aside.

Judge Valliant's opinion, handed down in the Supreme Court en banc, upholds the ruling of the St. Louis County Circuit Court scaling down the fee of Judge Selden P. Spencer from $12,000 to $3100 for serving as receiver of the Lewis People's United Bank for seven days last July.

In his opinion Judge Valliant agrees with the position taken by the trial judge, who held that the appointment of a receiver was without authority or jurisdiction.

WIFE GETS DIVORCE.

Dr. Henry B. Farmer Must Pay $500 Alimony.

Mrs. Emma W. Farmer was granted a divorce from Dr. Henry B. Farmer in the City Court of East St. Louis, Wednesday. Judge Moyers also ordered that Dr. Farmer pay his wife $500 alimony, within five days, and gave Mrs. Farmer the custody and control of their 8-year-old daughter, Hazel.

They were married at O'Fallon, Mo., Jan. 12, 1897, and lived together until July 17, 1899. Dr. Farmer was formerly a dentist in East St. Louis and both are well known in society circles. He left East St. Louis in 1899 and has since been a traveling salesman. His wife is a stenographer for the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

In her petition Mrs. Farmer alleged statutory grounds and named a co-respondent. This charge was withdrawn Wednesday when the case was called and desertion was alleged. The divorce was granted on that allegation.

JOSE DE OLIVARES GETS FEDERAL BERTH

JOSE DE OLIVARES.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Roosevelt sent to the Senate this afternoon the appointment of Jose De Olivares of St. Louis to be Consul at Managua, Nicaragua.

The position pays $2000 per annum and is considered a desirable berth. The place has been vacant since last November. Olivares has been in Washington for some time seeking an appointment of this sort.

Olivares was commissioner of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition to a number of South American countries. Later he was the commissioner of Argentine to the Exposition. Olivares was also connected with the American Commission to the Paris Exposition of 1900 and was in charge of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Building at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo in 1901.

CROWD LIMITED AT GRADUATION

East Side Fire Chief Warns Against Overtaxing of High School Hall.

It will be a case of "First come, first served" at the commencement exercises of the East St. Louis High School to be given in the High School auditorium Thursday night. No one will be allowed to stand in the aisles or on the sides of the hall, and the audience will be limited to the seating capacity of the auditorium.

This action follows the request of Fire Chief Edward Dowling, who stated to the Board of Education that the crowding of the hall was against the law. In case of a fire, the crowded condition of the hall would prevent the safe exit of the audience. Several firemen will be stationed in the hall during the exercises for protection.

The class has 43 graduates, each of whom was allowed to distribute 25 invitations. In addition to this, the teachers and members of the Board of Education were allowed a certain number of invitations. In all, invitations have been distributed to 1600, which is much larger than the seating capacity. The exercises begin at 8 p. m.

The High School Literary Society held its annual meeting Wednesday night in the auditorium, and the eight past presidents of the society were presented with a president pin, emblematic of the honors of the society. During the year a president of the house and senate of the society are elected each three months.

The giving of the pins to the presidents at the end of the school year is the only honor bestowed upon its members, and the rivalry for election to the presidency during the year is intense.

The pins were presented by Oscar Jost, chairman of the Presentation Committee, and the following members received the pins: Ralph Caughlin, Leon Tilton, Frank Smith, Clarence Beck, George Renard, Claude Brown, Ferdinand Abt and Adrian Buschmann.

POLICE FORCE DRILLED.

East Side Guardians Prepare for Parades.

The members of the East St. Louis police force are to be drilled. The force has been divided into two squads. Those measuring six feet and over are called the Giants, and those under that height must take their places in the Brownies division.

The members were all measured Wednesday by Bertillon Superintendent Tony Stocker, and Chief Purdy assigned the members. The Giants will have their first practice drill at 5:30 p. m. Thursday at the Rex roller skating rink, and will be drilled by Policeman William Taylor, a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

The Brownies will go through the maneuvers Friday night at the same place. The drills will continue each week during the summer, each division being assigned to different nights.

The object of the drills is to improve the appearance of the police in the several parades in which they will be required to take part during the summer.

DRUGGISTS MADE SERIOUS ERRORS

Putting Up Prescriptions? Oh, Dear, No, Trying to Play Baseball.

DEFEATED BY DOCTORS

Grim Gallows Warned Umpires of Fate If Decisions Were Bad.

St. Louis doctors and druggists played a baseball game at League Park Wednesday afternoon, netting several hundred dollars for the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk Fund. The pill rollers lost by the top-heavy score of 15 to 5.

Immediately after the agony Louis Sims, chief correspondent for numerous dailies, received a message over the wire from the general manager of a great vaudeville circuit offering an attractive contract to have the affair reproduced on the stage the coming theatrical season.

The attendance was good as to size, considering the weather, and enormous as to enthusiasm, and the chief aim of the players seemed to be to make everybody laugh themselves sick. Sickness is a source of profit to these artists of the scalpel and mortar.

Ample provision had been made for first aid in case of accidents, several of which occurred. Dr. Post Mortem, a negro surgeon, was in charge of the liniment and surgical section. He carried the tools with him about the grounds and used them frequently.

Warning for Umpires.

The umpires stared death in the face, but had sufficient warning to escape it. A gibbet was erected near the visitors' bench with a placard, "Beware, umpires!" tacked thereon. Near by were huge receptacles for carbolic acid, arnica and other necessities to be utilized in emergencies.

The batteries were announced in Hebrew letters on the score board, and before the bold umpires sounded the gong to start the contest the audience was in convulsions of laughter.

The druggists assert that they were robbed of victory by the brass band, which persisted in getting on their nerves by playing popular and other airs backwards. They say the doctors had been soused with dope and did not mind it.

Play began with Dr. Dillon wielding the stick, Mr. Bascom being in the box. The first ball pitched resembled a curvature of the spine, but the batsman being a physician located and dislocated it. He struck the sphere a terrific blow, shattering it, and to the spectators' astonishment a shower of feathers fell over the plate. The umpire declared it a "fowl." The ball was plaster of paris.

Twirler Bascom put ball after ball directly over the plate, and each time the batter bowled it to the left of the line. Dr. Post Mortem was appealed to. He examined the pitcher carefully and at length drew a live chicken from beneath the player's blouse. Few fouls were made after this discovery.

Mr. Stegner of the Druggists was listless when he went to the bat, but Dr. Post Mortem gave him a hypodermic injection and the man brightened up considerably.

Thought It Was Billiards.

Mr. Abel absent mindedly thought he was playing billiards and tried to carom everything that came his way at third. He persistently stopped the balls with his shin, permitted it to roll up his leg and usually grasped it firmly under his arm after it had circulated over his anatomy.

Dr. J. J. Harris was the star performer, having five runs to his credit in five times up. He pounded out three three-baggers, one two-base hit and a single.

Dr. Dillon executed some phenomenal catches at short, and Mr. Stegner, who played the same spot for the druggists, did good work, even if he is over 50 years old. He was lively as a cricket.

Mr. Pilkington on first put up a fair showing, and R. C. Harris received a beautiful bouquet of cabbages for excellent work in his garden.

When he peered into the bouquet, while bowing his gratitude, he discovered a large bottle of whisky which he was careless enough to exhibit, whereupon all the players fainted and Dr. Post Mortem had to revive them with cheer from Harris' flask.

Mr. Bascom's ankle was sprained in sliding to third, but Dr. Post Mortem fixed him up with a horse syringe and said the injury is not serious.

Louis Sims, dressed as Uncle Sam, had his hands full handling 30 wires connected with that many prominent journals. He represented the Assassinated Press.

The druggists made 16 errors and 4 hits, 3 striking out. The M. D.'s made 3 errors, 18 hits and 9 strikeouts.

CRUSADE ON EAST SIDE.

Acting under instructions from Chief of Police Purdy the East St. Louis police arrested 16 women on the streets Wednesday night and their cases came up for trial in Justice Stanton's court Thursday. The lawyers representing the women demanded a jury, as provided under the law, and, there being no provision for the cost of summoning jurors through the usual medium of constables, Justice Stanton gave the venire to Police Sergeant Sam Overmyer for service.

The police summoned 20 prominent East St. Louis business men as jurors and dismay filled the souls of the attorneys for the defense when this jury material appeared in court. Instantly an objection was offered to the police serving the venire in such cases, but Justice Stanton overruled the objection. He stated that a good jury could be obtained from this venire and he saw no reason why it should not stand.

When this ruling was announced, the attorneys for the women asked for a change of venue, which was granted, the trial of the cases being transferred to Justice Brady's court. There, to avoid the necessity of the police serving the jury summons, the defense furnished the money for service by constables and a new jury was summoned and accepted. The trial of the cases in a body then began and is expected to continue throughout the day.

Cook Limits Fireworks.

Mayor Cook of East St. Louis has issued a proclamation prohibiting the use of blank or loaded cartridges in revolvers, the firing of giant firecrackers, or the placing of torpedoes in the street car tracks, either before or after July 4. The use of other fireworks will be allowed on the Fourth of July, but the public is warned to be careful.

SELLING IN STEELS WEAKENS MARKET

Cut in Southern Foundry Iron Has Bad Effect on Sentiment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Opening prices on stocks today showed a steady range and some of the specialties made gains. Trading was again active, and market sentiment among the professionals less pessimistic.

The developments of yesterday were all favorable to higher values and the bears found themselves in a distressing position. The increased dividend on Baltimore & Ohio and the payment on American Locomotive indicate that insiders are set upon making the present level of prices attractive, although the apathy of the public to the market has evidently forced this policy on the insiders.

Money market conditions both locally and abroad remain favorable, and the reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate to 3½ per cent is a decided bull factor. London's range on Americans was higher.

The Early Market.

Heavy selling in the steel and iron securities caused a spilling out of stocks of all kinds in the second hour and prices dropped 1 to 2 points below yesterday's closing before the decline was arrested on active covering. The selling followed the announcements of the dissolution of the Southern Furnace Association, an organization formed some time ago to maintain $14 Birmingham as the price for No. 2 foundry iron, and the placing of an order for 10,600 with the International Harvester Co. at $13, a decline of $1 per ton. In stock market circles it is thought that the reduction in price at the present time, while the summer dullness is coming no, will have a bad effect on the steel and iron trade in general and cause a cutting of rates by other companies to meet the Southern competition. Outside of the changed conditions in the steel and iron market there was little of importance in the early news. The crop reports, if anything, were improved and indications of higher temperatures made the grain bulls cautious. Foreign markets show a better tone and mercantile reports continue favorable. No letup is shown in railroad earnings at the present time. The market was quiet at the noon period at the lower level with call money loaning at 8½ per cent.

LIVESTOCK MARKETS.

CATTLE—Receipts, 3000. Today's supply consisted of about 1000 natives and 2000 Southern cattle of fair to good quality. The market was fairly active at steady prices.

WHEAT FUTURES HELD STEADY

Slightly Improved Speculative Demand Offsets Slightly Bearish Conditions.

OTHER GRAINS STEADY

Firmness in Wheat Checks Selling in Corn and Oats.

A slightly improved speculative demand gave the bulls in wheat a slight advantage today and prices closed firm to a fraction higher. News generally was unimportant, but the offerings were light at all times and buyers had little difficulty in sustaining values.

Foreign markets were quiet and Liverpool closed ¼d up on wheat and ⅜d up on corn. Paris prices closed ⅛c lower, Antwerp unchanged, Berlin ⅛c up and Budapest ⅛c up.

Receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth were 192 cars, against 163 last week, 149 last year and 139 two years ago. The Minneapolis market showed an improved cash demand and this helped local sentiment. The local cash market also reflected a little better demand.

The reported damage to the Argentine crop circulated yesterday was denied today, a Buenos Ayres cable saying the damage is very trifling, barely worth mentioning, as the growing area is too small. The seeding season is now in full swing.

The Price Current says: Winter wheat harvest beginning, with indications of good quality and yields justifying expectations. Advices concerning oats confirm story of a short crop. Corn irregular, cool weather not propitious, but crop making fairly good progress, clean of weeds and few evidences of injury are shown.

Clearances of wheat and flour were 139,000 bu.

The corn market was steady throughout on the strength in wheat. Buyers were not enthusiastic, however, and speculation was light. Clearances were 2000 bu.

Oats were steady in sympathy with the other grains. Clearances were 10,000 bu.

Primary movement—Receipts, 208,725 bu, against 250,055 bu last year; corn, 610,298 bu, against 557,500 bu last year. Oats, 420,945 bu, against 367,933 bu last year.

Shipments—Wheat, 204,687 bu, against 181,000 bu last year; corn, 873,930 bu, against 647,000 bu last year; oats, 774,539 bu, against 239,000 bu last year.

St. Louis receipts and shipments: Receipts—Wheat, 11,000 bu; corn, 31,000 bu; oats, 41,600 bu. Shipments—Wheat, 31,945 bu; corn, 72,405 bu; oats, 74,005 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts, 5300 sacks; shipments, 8030 sacks. Quote soft red winter, patents, $4.45@4.60; straights, $4.20@4.40; extra fancy, $3.75@3.90. Foregoing in wood, low to medium grades; $2.40@3 in jute. Hard, in jute sacks, patents, $3.65@3.85; straights, $3.45@3.50; clear, $2.75@3; low grade, $2.20@2.50.

HAY—Receipts, 300 tons local and 110 tons through; shipments, 430 tons. Quote hay, timothy, choice, $18@18.50; No. 1 timothy, $16.50@17.50; No. 2, $14@15; choice clover, $15; No. 1 clover, $13@14; No. 2 clover, $11@12; No. 1 clover mixed, $12@13.50; No. 2 clover mixed, $11.50@12.50.

FLYNN UNDER CHARGES.

Policeman Released by Supreme Court Accused by Board.

Though the courts have freed him of a charge of neglect of duty, Policeman Timothy Flynn of the Manchester Avenue Station will have to stand a Police Board trial for the same offense. The specifications have been drawn by the Secretary of the board and the case will come up Friday.

Flynn was convicted in the Court of Criminal Correction of having been one of several policemen who failed to prevent violence at the polls at the Folk primaries in 1904. The decision was set aside by the Supreme Court several days ago. The action of the board against him followed and he is now under suspension.

HE WANTS NO COMPANY.

"Lord" Barrington, convicted of killing James P. McCann, Thursday requested Sheriff Herpel at Clayton not to permit anyone to visit him. He refused to discuss the ruling of the Supreme Court, handed down Wednesday that he must hang July 26.

The only hope left to Barrington now is an effort to have the case transferred to the Federal courts or a petition to Gov. Folk for clemency.

CROWDS ATTEND CORONATION OF NORWAY'S RULER

King Haakon, Selected After Country's Separation From Sweden, to Ascend Throne.

TRONDJHEM IN GLORY

Town Magnificently Decorated and Harbor Fitted With Fleets of Nations.

AMERICANS IN SWARMS

Ruler, With Queen, Formally Receives Diplomatic Delegations From World Powers.

TRONDJHEM, Norway, June 21.—The approaching coronation of King Haakon finds this city a mass of decorations, the harbor filled with the fleets of nations and the city crowded far beyond comfort. Many Americans, among them William J. Bryan, are here.

The Danish royal yacht, Danneborg, with Prince Christian of Denmark, a brother of King Haakon, on board, and the steamer Tromp, carrying the special Dutch embassy to the coronation of the King of Norway, entered the harbor early this morning.

Another loud cannonade thereupon awoke the few who remained asleep in the city. In view of the fact that a few drops of rain fell at intervals, the scientifically inclined insisted that these endless artillery salutes are proving rainmakers and will eventually spoil all the pretty decorations of Trondhjem.

King Receives Nations.

The palace was astir early, as it had been planned to receive there the special French, American, Italian, Austrian and Dutch embassies in the order named, commencing at 9:30, before the King proceeded to the Danneborg to greet his brother.

The special American Ambassador, Charles N. Graves, the Minister of the United States to Sweden, supported by Maj. William W. Gibson, military attache at St. Petersburg, and Lieutenant-Commander John H. Gibbons, naval attache at London, and attended by the Norwegian officers assigned to escort them, drove to the palace shortly after 9 o'clock. After a brief wait, King Haakon received the embassy and gave the Americans a cordial welcome, expressing his pleasure at their presence and the most friendly feelings for the United States.

The diplomatic receptions continued for over an hour. A great crowd gathered in front of the palace and watched the arrival and departure of the embassies.

King Haakon and Queen Maud, unless the receptions interfere with their plans, intend to lunch on board the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which yesterday brought the Prince and Princess of Wales and their children here.

The special German and Russian embassies have not yet reported, but it is expected they will arrive during the afternoon.

The first vessels of the fleet of excursion steamers are arriving, adding their crowds to the city's and increasing the large fleet in the harbor.

Norway Is Maritime.

Norway has an Atlantic Coast line as long as that of the United States, not including her dreary Arctic shore.

Norway is thus by necessity the most maritime of nations. Its railway mileage is only about one two-hundredth part of that of the United States. Its tonnage of sea-going vessels is two-thirds that of the United States and greater than that of France. The United States has 73 vessels of 5000 tons or over, and France has 62, where Norway has none; but in steamers and sailing craft of modest size, the school of seamen, she is strong. Such an owner of sailing ships as Johanson of Christiania is not behind the Seawalls of Bath or the Winslows of Portland. The Norse fishing fleet is famous the world over and the Norway flag is carried by tramp steamships into many ports where the Stars and Stripes are hoisted only in compliment.

There were in 1900 1,125,000 Norwegians by birth or parentage living in the United States, just half of the number remaining in the old home. A large and prosperous delegation of Norwegians from America is in Trondhjem today hurrahing for Haakon.

Norway has had no King of her own for 600 years. For more than 400 years the country remained in union with Denmark, though with separate government. Because Denmark remained faithful to Napoleon the allies in 1814 punished her by joining Norway and Sweden. Thus was rewarded the perfidy of Bernadotte, who was made a King by Napoleon and later helped dethrone him. The present King of Sweden is a descendant of the Marshal of France, the only trace on any throne in Europe today of the career of the Corsican King-maker. The Norwegians fought against Bernadotte and wished for their King that Crown Prince, who became the beloved but ill-fated King Christian VIII of Denmark. Again they have chosen a Danish Prince as King.

How Haakon Became King.

The dual monarchy with Sweden proved as vexatious to the smaller partner as that with Austria has to Hungary. Norway is maritime, democratic, free-trader. Sweden is agricultural and manufacturing, aristocratic, protectionist. It has been a grievance with Norway that the consular service of the dual power favored Sweden at her expense.

The bloodless revolution by which Norway effected her independence was due, therefore, to business as much as to sentimental reasons. The Norwegians figure that, running their own affairs to suit themselves, they can keep more of their people at home. It is a fact that Sweden has proportionately lost less by immigration than Norway.

The wider outlook of the sea seems to have had an esthetic effect in Norway. Her poets and dramatists and artists have bulked bigger in Europe than those of Sweden. The latter country has held its own in science and in invention. Both peoples are educated; illiteracy is less common than in the United States. Both countries are enough alike in race, religion and language to live more amicably as neighbors than as partners. They should be kept friends by a common fear of Russia, which would like to seal a harbor on the Atlantic kept ice-free, in spite of its latitude, by the Gulf stream.

HOW TRAIN DEPRIVED THIS BOY OF GREATEST PLEASURE

WITH HIS LEGS GONE, BOY WEEPS BECAUSE HE CAN'T PLAY BALL

Eight-Year-Old Albert Pokorny, Immigrant, Was Becoming Good Player When He Was Run Over by Train—Still, It Will Be Fun to Watch Others Play, He Says.

Bemoaning the misfortune which deprives him of the greatest joy of his childhood, 8-year-old Albert Pokorny, at the City Hospital, plaintively repeats over and over again:

"I can never play baseball any more."

And this bitter thought brings the tears to his big, brown eyes and pales the color in his ruddy cheeks.

Little Albert was run over by a switch engine near his home, 4036 North Broadway, and when he awoke from the stupor of his pain, both of his legs had been amputated below the knees.

To his childish mind, the tragedy of it all is that he must give up his favorite game. Albert is the bravest of patients, but tears will come when he thinks of the other boys on the "lot," happy and care free, with nothing to do but play ball through all the long summer days.

Making of Good Man.

In Albert there is the making of a good American. He has been in America only eight months, but in that short time he has learned to speak English, to throw a curved ball, and he wants to be a storekeeper.

His father, Charles Pokorny, a poor immigrant, came from Germany three years ago and saved enough money to furnish a home and to send for his family last October. Mrs. Pokorny crossed the ocean with Albert and his little sister, and since her arrival in St. Louis, another boy has joined the family circle.

Albert is unusually bright. Within three months after coming here he had learned enough English to make it possible for him to enter the Clay School in January. He now speaks with scarcely a suggestion of foreign accent.

"I was learning to be a good pitcher," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday. "I liked that best of all and the other boys were teaching me to throw a curve. It is too bad, too bad. I can never play again.

Loved His Ball Best.

"The only toys I have are a wagon, a sled and my baseball. I love the ball best. Even if I can't play with it, I am going to keep it all the time. O, it was fine out there on the lot. I was just saving up to get a bat and one of these big, thick gloves, but I won't need them now."

Albert's curly brown head sank back on the pillow and his eyes were moist. Then, smiling, he said:

"O, well, I might have been killed. I guess I can go and see the other boys play when I get out. That will be some fun, anyhow.

"I wanted to be a storekeeper, and I was studying hard, especially English and arithmetic. Maybe I can't keep a store now—and I never can play ball again. It's too bad, too bad."

SAGER DROPS LAST ALBRIGHT CHARGE

Lighting Bribery Indictment Is Dismissed by Prosecutor's Motion.

ACQUITTED OF PERJURY

Newly-Made Friends in Macon Cheer Verdict Freeing Former Delegate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., June 21.—The last boodle charge against T. Ed Albright, that of bribery in the $47,500 city lighting deal, was dismissed on motion of Circuit Attorney Sager in the Circuit Court here today. This action was taken a few hours after the former member of the St. Louis House of Delegates had been acquitted of the charge of perjury in the Suburban franchise deal.

Today's acquittal and that at Troy, where Albright was tried last summer on a bribery charge, convinced the prosecutor that it would be useless to press the remaining charge, especially as the indictment was defective. Mr. Sager explained this defect to the Court as follows:

"The indictment charges the defendant with having accepted $2500 under an agreement that he would vote for what is known as the lighting bill. As a matter of fact, the State's evidence will show that, while he voted for the lighting bill, there was no agreement; and that he did not get any money until, after its passage, members of the combine came to the conclusion that, inasmuch as he had voted with them on the bill, he ought to have something. Under those circumstances the indictment should have charged him with having voted in violation of his oath of office, and having with partiality and favor accepted this money consideration.

"Because of its failure so to charge, there is a fatal variance between the allegations in the indictment and the proof."

Hair Has Turned White.

Albright is expected to return to St. Louis this afternoon. His family was with him at the trial. His home is at 4000 Russell avenue.

The case on the perjury charge was given to the jury shortly before midnight, and within a few minutes the jury returned to announce acquittal. A large number of spectators had remained in the courtroom and they cheered heartily when the verdict was read. Judge Shelton, who presided at the trial, made little effort to quell the demonstration, caused by the popularity Albright had gained during his short stay in Macon.

Albright has a large circle of friends in St. Louis. Since he was first indicted four years ago, the strain has told on him so that his hair has turned white.

Macon is still talking about the testimony of former Delegate John P. Sweeney and Delegate Henry L. Weeke yesterday. Both were character witnesses for Albright. Both discussed at length poker playing in the House lounging room in the combine days.

Sweeney said nobody could keep him out of the room, even if he wasn't in the combine, and Weeke told Judge Shelton he (Weeke) was the best poker player around the House in those days.

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY.

Woman Who Said Chickens Were Rivals Win.

Judge Douglas Thursday granted a divorce to Mrs. Huldah Anderson of Old Orchard, who testified that her husband, Miles M. Anderson, cared more for his chickens than for her.

She was awarded $25 a month alimony and the custody of her 6-months-old baby girl. The child was born after the separation and Anderson has never seen it.

TEACHERS ARE DESERTING OIL KING'S SCHOOL

Eight Professors Leave Chicago University, Report Others Will Follow.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Has John D. Rockefeller forgotten the institution to which he has already given $15,000,000? It appears so, for since the death of Dr. Harper there has been no coin-getter and Mr. Rockefeller has turned to foreign fields for relaxation.

The result is a regime of strict economy and lack of a permanent head, five prominent professors having resigned in a bunch. They say smaller universities and colleges pay much better. One report has it that there is a spirit of disorganization in the university and many other resignations will follow.

The men who resigned are: Prof. Thorstein Veblen, political economy, salary said to have been $2400, will go to Leland Stanford Jr. University; Prof. Oliver J. Thatcher, history, salary reported to have been $2500, will spend a year in Europe; Prof. Alexis Carrell, medicine, will go to the Rockefeller Institute in New York; Prof. C. C. Guthrie, medicine, will go to St. Louis University; prof. Charles A. Huston, English, will go to Leland Stanford Jr. University. Prof. Valdemar Koch, son of the great German scientist, has been appointed to the chair of physiological chemistry.

Three additional professors resigned from the university last night. Acting President Harry Pratt Judson said:

"Until the present deficit has disappeared the university will not be in a position to consider various plans. Heads of departments will realize that in the attempt to meet the needs of so many branches from a limited income it has been quite impossible to add many things, in themselves desirable, but impracticable without a considerable addition to our resources.

"Matters of this sort must wait until adequate means are at hand. It will be admitted that it seems almost humorous to speak of an institution with a budget of about $1,000,000 as not being able to do a number of things. Of course, those who are familiar with the facts, who know that all the funds expended are devoted to special objects and that these objects are very numerous and very pressing, realize differently on the question."

CONGRESS WILL SEAT COUDREY NEXT SATURDAY

St. Louisan Who Won Contest With Wood Will Serve One Week.

SUED FOR HOTEL BILL

Riggs House Wants $400 for Rooms Occupied by Sim Harris.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Although Chairman Olmsted of the Committee on Elections has made no official announcement, it is practically certain that Harry M. Coudrey will be seated as the Representative of the Twelfth District of Missouri in the House Saturday. Chairman Olmsted, who will submit the committee report unseating Ernest E. Wood and seating Mr. Coudrey, merely stated that the report might come up Saturday, but not before. Mr. Wood, it is understood, is in New York City.

There will be no opposition to the report of the committee. The Democratic colleagues of Wood in the House do not show any more affection for him than did the late Democratic Convention of Missouri, which indorsed every Democratic member of Congress from Missouri by name, with the single exception of Wood, in resolutions.

Wood and Coudrey will "break even" on the salary question, as well as contest expenses, clerk hire, mileage and stationery allowances. A member of the Elections Committee figured it out that there would be due Coudrey, on July 4, one year and four months' salary, and the other allowances would bring the total amount of the first check he will receive from the Government up to $8271. Wood is allowed the same amount—$2000—for contest expenses as Coudrey. Each is allowed $1200 for a secretary, $125 for stationery and $400 for mileage. Up to the day of his unseating Wood will have received the same amount that Coudrey will get.

Will Serve a Week.

If Mr. Coudrey is seated on Saturday, he will have just a week to serve before this session of Congress adjourns, according to the present program of the leaders, who have tentatively settled upon either a week from Friday or the following day for adjournment. He will, however, serve the full short session, beginning in December.

A hotel bill of $400 contracted, it is alleged, by Simeon Harris at the Riggs House while here attending the contest hearings before the House Committee in the Coudrey-Wood case, was the subject of a suit filed in the District Court here today by Col. Orrin G. Staples, proprietor of the hotel. Harry M. Coudrey is made defendant.

The stipulation avers that the bill is for rooms and board and articles furnished therein; that Simeon Harris engaged the rooms and occupied them, together with sundry other persons; that Mr. Coudrey visited them on several occasions, and that the accommodations were furnished on faith of Coudrey's credit. The bill was first presented on Feb. 19 and was approved by Harris, who drew a sight draft on Mr. Coudrey.

Mr. Coudrey refused payment when the draft was presented to him in St. Louis. Mr. Coudrey left for New Jersey before the suit was filed. He will be back on Saturday to take his seat, however, and will likely resist the suit.

The girl's parents live at 2708 North Ninth street. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Henry Lightner, 1417 North Market street, and later to the home of the parents.

The suit was filed in the United States Circuit Court Wednesday. Other defendants are Charles Broeker, Alexander Kessler, John Scheirer, J. C. Ossenfort, F. W. Scherer, J. P. Ossenfort, F. W. Schweikert, Henry Wolf and John Haler.

CHERRY PICKERS HURT.

After remaining unconscious for a half hour after a fall from a cherry tree, James Monroe Stevens, a school teacher at Edwardsville, insisted that his wedding be not postponed, and was married at the appointed time.

Shortly before, Rev. J. G. Hildenstein fell from a ladder while picking cherries a few yards from Stevens and was picked up unconscious. He recovered after being taken to his home.

Stephens' bride was Miss Matilda Schirmer. They were married Wednesday evening. Rev. Mr. Hildenstein is pastor of the German Methodist Church at Edwardsville.

Yours very truly,

The Brainerd & Armstrong Co.

Regal Shoe Co., Inc., East Whitman, Mass.

Gentlemen:-

Your order for immediate shipment received. We undoubtedly shall be able to continue to ship you the quantities ordered of the Select grades of King Patent Calf, notwithstanding the extreme difficulty of obtaining raw materials which will produce the quantities and quality of leather which you demand.

We are putting through about a thousand dozen raw skins in the tannery especially for you, and can guarantee that you will not be delayed, or the selection changed, on account of the heavy advance in prices.

Yours very truly,

Regal Shoe Co., Inc., East Whitman, Mass.

Gentlemen:-

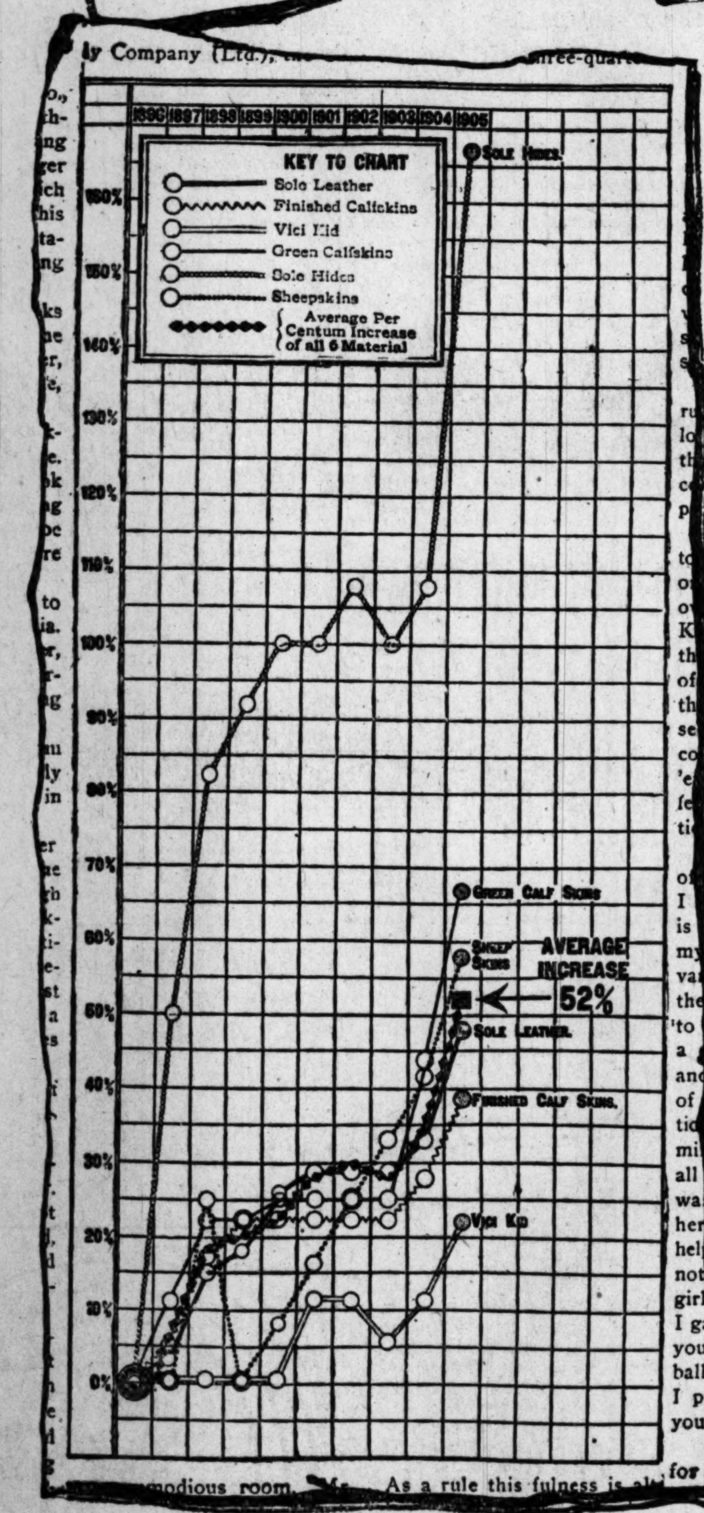

We are pleased to acknowledge renewal of order for 250,000 yards of Goodyear Welting.

We had to insist upon a further advance in price in order to meet the great cost of hides and to maintain your standard of quality, which we know you will not change.

We shall make, as indicated, regular weekly shipments of 20,000 yards from the tannery direct, as you are our only New England consumer of this welting on men's shoes, the balance of our tanning product being taken by a very few of the custom shoe men, whom we supply in small lots.

Yours very truly,

Eberle Tanning Company, Treasurer.

This chart shows the percentages of increase in the cost of the six most important materials used by shoe manufacturers. The AVERAGE increase of these six materials has been 52 per cent.—From the Boot and Shoe Recorder, March 7, 1906.

Facts of Vital Interest to Every Shoe Wearer.

460 shoe manufacturers—including every one of the principal shoe-concerns in the United States—have endorsed the BOOT AND SHOE RECORDER'S chart and table of increase in costs of shoe materials which we reproduce herewith.

Study that chart a minute, look through the table of "Other Increases" and then read the clippings from prominent trade journals and newspapers reprinted below.

As always, the Regal is proving every claim it makes. The remarkable series of letters reproduced herewith (representing more than 75 per cent. of the output of tanners and manufacturers of shoe materials) offers the most conclusive evidence that Regal quality is being maintained.

Not what we say but what we do—that has made the Regal shoe famous!

One of Three Things:—Get an Advance, Skin the Shoes, or Lose Money.—The shoe manufacturer who tells you that he will make you as good a shoe . . . at the same money that you paid for the same shoe one year ago is either a liar or a loser. If he is a liar he is also a cheat, and you may expect him to skin his product to your ultimate loss . . . There is but one wise thing to do . . . Keep up the quality, and make the price accordingly.

Today the American shoemaker is confronted by a great temptation. Can he withstand it? He has educated his customers, through long, successful years, to recognize his wares at a certain claimed and undenied basis of value. He is believed. His production is rated at his own claims. But he finds today that times have changed and are changing. His leather and findings cost him more. The cost of factory maintenance is greater. The cost of distribution is greater. His margin of profit dwindles away toward the vanishing point. His balance sheets show less and less on the side of reasonable profit on the capital invested and the efforts and brains employed. What's to be done? . . . He is forced to the knowledge that he must get a better price for his goods as now manufactured, or conduct his business as a public philanthropist, or put cheaper quality in his shoes.

There is the temptation. Shall he trade upon the good name he has spent years in erecting? Shall he lose his repute as an honest maker of honestly branded shoes to blind the eyes and sensibilities of the consumers who wear his shoes? In short, shall he lessen the quality of his output, relying upon the trustfulness and ignorance of his trade for failure to observe it?—From Illustrated Footwear-Fashions, February 15, 1905.

Beef Trust Puts Up Price of Shoes.—The Beef Trust has raised the price of shoes by shipping cattle abroad. And the Leather Trust, according to the tanners, has aided the Beef Trust in this popular enterprise by storing great quantities of hides, with the practical result of a scarcity of shoe leather. Three hundred and ten cattle on the hoof were sent to Europe yesterday from this port on one steamer, and thousands are shipped abroad every week. . . . Milton J. Meyer, of No. 111 Reade street, said yesterday: "There is no way out of it, and people who buy shoes might as well be told the truth. Either they will have to pay a little bit more for their shoes, or else they will get from unscrupulous makers a shoe for the same money that is not quite so good."—From the New York World, Oct. 28, 1905.

Shoes Being Cheapened to Meet the Trade's Demand.—In 1894 an upper leather hide, weighing fifty pounds, sold for $1.75 and at the present time this same hide has been forced up to a selling price of $6.75. . . . Population has increased, but, following an economic law, with increased density of population the ratio of cattle has decreased so that at present it is estimated there are five people whose wants in leather must be provided for by one hide. Such a marked change in supply and demand could have but one result.—From the Boston Transcript, Jan. 2, 1906.

Highest Since the Civil War.—The higher prices for the finished product, which circumstances indicated a year ago, are now beginning to be felt by the consuming public, and as the year 1906 advances there is little doubt that these prices will appreciate still more, for the materials from which next season's goods were made cost more than at any time since the Civil War. It is not a boomed market, brought on by the shoe retailer, wholesaler, manufacturer or tanner; the underlying cause is high priced hides and all raw materials. . . . The wholesale and retail trade came to a full realization of the fact that the leather market had reached a new high level, that shoe manufacturers' quotations were legitimate, that it cost on an average about thirty per cent. more to purchase the shoes, and as a consequence more money must be paid for them. [E. S. Grover, Editor Shoe and Leather Reporter, Boston, Mass.]—From the New York Herald, January 1, 1906.

Quality Can be Maintained Only Through Higher Prices.—It must be apparent to everybody not prejudiced, that the present situation calls for maintaining of quality and securing a higher price for shoes. Everything favors the pursuing of such a policy. There are interests which might be favorably affected by the continued skinning of shoes, and the throwing of quality to the winds, but ninety-five per cent. of the shoe industry of this country, and by this is meant manufacturers, jobbers and retailers, are vitally interested in quality, and that is only to be maintained through higher prices.—From the Shoe Retailer, Boston, Mass., February 10, 1906.
